CAPITALS PUZZLED BY NAZI RETICENCE ON FOREIGN POLICY

French Press Sees German Leader Definitely Approaching Decline of Power: Paris Fears for Locarno Negotiations.

OFFICIAL COMMENT DECLINED BY HULL

Hitler's Address Received With Varied Effects in London and Rome. British Are Silent.

By the Associated Press.

The capitals of the world, cautiously commenting Saturday on the re-echoing address of Chancellor Hitler, revealed almost universal disappointment that the chancellor did not choose to discuss Germany's foreign policy.

In some cases official comment was entirely lacking. European capitals especially not wishing to jeopardize recently aroused hopes of eastern peace pacts.

PARIS—The government maintained rigid silence, fearing to upset delicate negotiations on France's eastern Locarno project.

The French press, however, bluntly envisaged Hitler on the defensive and said his star seemed to be waning. The Transatlantic commented that a German revolution was under way, and explained the applause of the reichstag as due to hesitancy to "show coolness toward a man who does not hesitate to massacre his adversaries without a trial."

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Hull and other department officials declined official comment, but there were clear indications of disappointment at Hitler's failure to touch on foreign affairs.

Washington officials had expected an exposition of the Nazi foreign policy as a clue to the future trend of events in Germany.

LONDON—The reichstag address of Chancellor Hitler caused widespread "interest" in official circles but brought no comment. Surprise was manifested in press accounts that the American and British ambassadors both were absent from the reichstag session where Hitler spoke.

The opinion was expressed generally that the Germans will be wise if they accept half a loaf as better than none, pointing out distinct advantages to Germany in such a British attitude to join an eastern Locarno pact.

ROME—Official quarters expressed disappointment because foreign policy was not discussed in the Hitler address. Hitler's attitude toward the proposed eastern Locarno pact had been eagerly awaited here.

GERMANY LAUDS HITLER FOR REICHSTAG ADDRESS

BERLIN, July 14.—(P)—The Nazi press poured forth its praise of Adolf Hitler for his reichstag speech and gave assurances of the world's approval.

All was praise for the chancellor. His address justifying the violent deaths of 77 persons in the "Roehm revolt" was lauded to the skies.

The identity of the dead, however, revealed by Hitler, remained unpublished by the press, and a government spokesman said the official list will never see the light of day.

It was said that Hitler chosen to have it published was to have announced the names himself.

What Lies Ahead in the Far East?

BY FRANCIS W. CLARKE

Assistant to the Editor of The Constitution and Member of Party of Outstanding American Journalists Sent to the Far East in 1929 by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. This is the first of a series of articles on the Far East by Mr. Clarke, who is now touring that section for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

The Unsettled Problems of the Far East and Their Bearing on Conditions Throughout the World.

For half a century the far eastern problem has become increasingly important in its bearing upon the political tranquility and economic prosperity of the world.

Today the solution of this problem is more vitally necessary to the welfare of all nations than it was even at the time of the Washington conference in 1921 when the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and China joined in the formation of a program it was hoped would eliminate the uncertainties and friction attending upon the rapidly changing conditions in China and Japan.

In some respects the situation has been clarified as the result of the agreements reached by the five major powers participating in the Washington conference, all of them with large interests in the far east, but the chief objective of the conference—the launching of a program that would assure the restoration of China to its ancient position in the nations of the world, and the elimination of the friction existing between the great powers over far eastern conditions—is still far from being achieved.

CHINA STILL HELPLESS GIANT.

China is still the helpless, and almost hopeless, giant of the world's family of nations. One and a half times as large as the United States and with a population nearly four times as great, its progress has, in most respects, been backward rather than forward during the past decade.

The bright hopes of a strong central government under the so-called democratic Kuomintang party have gone glimmering. There has been almost continuous internecine warfare and there are now going on at least four definite revolts from the National government, in as many sections of the country.

Bandits still ride almost at will, looting and butchering their neighbors. Once navigable rivers are filled with silt, and the railroads that once joined most of the important cities are largely in ruin. There are practically no highways.

ways, schools or sanitation steps. All in all, the lot of the earth's most helpless people—once a proud race of pre-eminent position—is, if such a thing is possible, even worse than it was under the empire.

The increasing importance of Japan in world affairs, both politically and economically, is another phase of the far eastern problem that must be squarely met by the other powers having interests, either territorial or financial, in that part of the world.

In all history no nation has undergone in so comparatively brief a time so miraculous a program of development and expansion as has Japan during but little more than half a century. Fifty years ago the country was a typical eastern nation with practically no modern phases to its life, its business and its government.

GROWING NEEDS OF NEW JAPAN.

Now Japan, figured by any method of comparison, is one of the world's greatest nations and is still driving

NEW YORK POLICE SEE EARLY ARREST IN BABY KIDNAPING

Department of Justice Agent Leaves Home of Missing Child on Mysterious Mission.

By FRANCIS A. JAMIESON.

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 14.—(P)

The father of the missing Bobby Connor, weary after a 48-hour fruitless search, expressed the belief tonight that his curly-headed 21-month-old baby had been kidnaped.

"I have no money to pay a ransom, but I will do anything to get him back," said Charles A. Connor as he waited at home for word from federal and state officers.

"I feel certain my baby is alive and well," he added.

Although lacking tangible evidence that the child had been abducted, officers pressed their search for an eccentric peddler who visited the neighborhood shortly before Bobby disappeared Thursday evening. They wanted to learn whether he had seen the child in the vicinity.

Some of the authorities were checking the possibility the baby might have been struck by a motorist and then carried away to avoid an inquiry.

While they worked on a wide-flung front, Frank Fay, department of justice agent, hurriedly left the Connor home in suburban Hartsdale Manor on a mysterious mission.

Police Chief Philip J. McQuillan emphasized that the only letter bearing on the case which had come to work of a crank or youth demanding "$50 ransom." The authorities, however, clamped a censorship on all mail and sheathed the entire inquiry in secrecy.

Handkerchief Found. A man's handkerchief, stained apparently by blood, was found on a road near the home where the boy was last seen. Officials were studying its possibilities but indicated that they did not regard it as important evidence.

A second handkerchief, unsold, was found at the same place but as the highway had been searched closely yesterday, neither was considered a crime clue. Both handkerchiefs bore the initials "J.D."

A woman canvasser, reported seen driving past the Connor home at the time of the disappearance, was absolved of any connection with the case.

The eccentric male peddler, crux of the investigators' efforts, frightened housewives with his mumbling of "castles in Spain and France" as he tried to sell "cure-all" pills in the secluded Hartsdale Manor section.

While police concentrated on the abduction theory, they considered also the possibility that Bobby had been the victim of a degenerate killer, or that he was struck by a passing automobile and his body carried off.

The boy was frail for his 21 months, able to speak only a few simple words and had been walking only a few weeks.

His father, Charles A. Connor, an

Key Unanimously Named President Of New Georgia Mayors' Association

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK. Dedicated to "constructive service" for the people of the entire state, 229 Georgia mayors Saturday formed the Georgia Mayors' Association, dedicated to consider any controversial matters, sweep discussion of prohibition repeal or Sunday amusements from its deliberations and sidetracked an attempt to take a definite stand on bus license fees, but adopted a conservative program with "home rule" as the major measure.

The gathering, characterized as the most important and far-reaching convention of the state's municipal executives ever held, elected unanimously and by acclaim Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, as president.

Meeting Saturday morning and continuing throughout the day with the exception of a few hours in the afternoon, which were devoted to recreation and entertainment, the body handled a mass of business with a dispatch and zeal seldom displayed by any body of men brought together for only one day.

The unanimity of opinion of members concerning the matters on which Supplies Virtually Exhausted as Citizens Stock Up Against Continuance of Virtual Blockade.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(P)

A paralyzing general strike, affecting intimately the 1,000,000 residents of San Francisco and Oakland, was ordered by union labor tonight to begin Monday.

Representatives of 105,000 workers voted the walkout in a desperate maneuver to help Pacific coast longshoremen and marine workers, licked badly in battle with employers.

Howling down "conservative" elements in a zero hour meeting of a huge general strike committee representing the 65,000 union men of San Francisco, the rank and file voted overwhelmingly for the walkout.

Those not having balloted on the matter were ordered to take strike votes immediately.

Bloodshed, Hunger Feared. Like a flash the vote fired trambay union elements into action. The Alameda county (Oakland) building trades council voted a simultaneous strike of all its unions. Labor leaders there announced the central labor council would meet Monday night and declare a general walkout for that city—another 40,000 men.

Forebodings of chaos, bloodshed and hunger settled like a dark cloud in the background of this feverish activity.

There was a rising tide of warlike preparations in the already paralyzed Golden Gate city.

National guardsmen holding control of the state-owned waterfront here since the bloody rioting of July 5, began armed movements into the industrial district. Officers said they were gathering food for an emergency.

To Keep Roads Open. Mayor James Rolin ordered 500 special patrolmen added to the regular police force of 1,300. County Sheriff William Fitzgerald announced his 2,200 special deputies were subject to call.

"This is the worst calamity since the disaster of 1906," Mayor Rolin said, recalling the earthquake and fire that leveled San Francisco. The mayor announced he would make full use of all the power at his command. He

Ex-Governor Hardman Ill at Commerce Home

COMMERCIAL, Ga., July 14.—Former Governor Lamar G. Hardman is confined at his home here, suffering from an illness with which he was attacked a few days ago. Members of his family denied reports that he is gravely ill and said his condition is not serious, that the former governor was "taking a rest" and that he expected to be out in a few days.

Governor Hardman served four years as governor, retiring in 1931 to his home here where he has extensive interests, both textile and farming.

Crowds Greeting Governor Spur Opponents To Increased Activity.

By LLOYD B. DILBECK.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.) LOS ANGELES, July 14.—(P)—June DeLong was found tonight wandering alone in the streets of downtown Los Angeles, in a dazed condition.

She was found by Nellie Child, a writer and wife of an automobile man, Frank Gerard, who definitely identified her as the missing state's witness in the "Hollywood morals trials."

Miss DeLong, Gerard said, gave every indication of having taken poison in an attempt to commit suicide, as she had indicated she planned to do in a letter she left in her apartment when she disappeared shortly before noon today.

The point where Miss DeLong was found is within a block of her former residence, the Western Arms apartments, at Eleventh street and Western avenue, where she was living at

MRS. G. J. DICKEY PIONEER, PASSES

Prominent Atlanta Woman Dies in Hospital After Brief Illness.

Mrs. Gertrude Joseph Dickey, pioneer and mother of James L. Dickey and Eugene Dickey, prominent Atlantans, and Ervin Dickey, of Waterbury, N. Y., died after a brief illness Saturday night at a private sanitarium.

A member of the Second-Pence de Leon Baptist church, Mrs. Dickey devoted much of her time to church work and was one of the most influential members of the large congregation.

Mrs. Dickey was born in Louisville, Tenn., August 2, 1854, and was married to James LaFayette Dickey in Louisville on October 16, 1873.

She received her education at Staunton, Va., and had lived in Atlanta for the past 60 years, having witnessed the rebirth of Atlanta "from the ashes" to its present state of metropolitan accomplishment.

She had a distinctive interest and love for Atlanta and was highly enthusiastic about announcements of learning and improvement to and advancement of the city anticipated. She connected with her sons and revealed

Boy Bleeds to Death As Congregation Prays

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 14.—(P)—Sixteen-year-old Thelma Newborn, stabbed by a younger boy who resented a prank, bled to death as members of a revival congregation prayed over him as he lay on the ground, officers were told today as they jailed the youthful slayer.

Garland Thrasher, 13, was a boy arrested, but he was not charged.

Thelma died at his home less than an hour after he was stabbed. A physician who attended him said death was due to the loss of blood from a severed artery. Had he received medical attention sooner, the physician said, he probably would have lived.

GROUNDWORK LAID BY AVIATION BODY

Chairman Howell To Make European Inspection Tour in August.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, July 14.—Completing its first week's deliberations the federal aviation commission, meeting in the cabinet room of the White House under the chairmanship of Clark Howell Sr. of Atlanta, has laid the groundwork for the most comprehensive survey yet undertaken by the United States government in the field of aeronautics. The commission has recessed to meet again Monday, July 23.

Preliminary plans already adopted by the commission, which President Roosevelt appointed just prior to his departure for the Hawaiian Islands, provide not only for an exhaustive study of every phase of aviation development in this country, but the assembling of data on flying conditions abroad.

Preparatory to the opening of formal hearings in Washington in September, the presidential commission, created by special act of congress, will undertake a personal inspection tour of flying fields and aviation production centers as a means of gaining first-hand information on the subject.

Howell to Go to Europe. At the same time, Chairman Howell, at the commission's request, will spend the month of August in Europe making a personal study of aeronautical programs adopted by continental countries.

Sailing from New York August 4, he will visit the leading countries of Europe. In preparation for his tour, officials of the department of commerce here have dispatched instructions to American commercial attaches abroad, instructing them

BOARD OF APPEALS CREATED BY NRA

New Body Named To Protect Small Business Against Monopolies.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(P)—NRA today created an industrial appeals board for the special protection of small businesses against monopolies.

Amos J. Peaslee, a New York attorney, was named chairman and John S. Clement, a Philadelphia manufacturer, one of the other two members. The third member will be chosen shortly.

The board, which will organize August 1, was established in an order by Hugh S. Johnson. The official announcement did not say so, but at NRA the new appeals court was regarded as Johnson's own way of handling monopolistic charges against Blue Eagle codes which Clarence Darrow's review board originally was named to do.

The Darrow board, which has passed out of existence by President Roosevelt's order, in three reports said NRA was fostering monopolies. The Constitution Offers Seven Scholarships to Riverside

By THE SCHOLARSHIP EDITOR. Seven deserving and qualified Georgia boys will be awarded full or partial scholarships to Riverside Military Academy at Gainesville, Ga., for the 1934-35 school year by The Atlanta Constitution, Major Clark Howell Jr., vice president and general manager, announced Saturday.

The scholarships which will be awarded are as follows: One $1,000 full scholarship, covering all expenses for the full school term.

Two $500 partial scholarships. Four $300 partial scholarships. All Georgia boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years who are not now enrolled at Riverside are eligible to make application for the scholarships.

It is reported that he suffered fractures of the skull, neck, back and ribs.

Mrs. McWhite, a saleswoman for the McWhite-Birney Company, of Athens, Ohio, was in Wilmington on business when the accident occurred.

Three of his brothers were en route to his bedside from Atlanta Saturday night.

RATE PLEA MAY GO BEFORE 5 JURISTS

Possibility of Trial by Jury Also Heard as More Join Injunction Plea.

Eight more independent telephone companies Monday will join the Georgia Continental's plea for an injunction halting a 17 per cent slash ordered by the public service commission. It was announced Saturday by J. Prince Webster, attorney representing the companies. It was reported at the courthouse that the case may be heard by two or more superior court judges, maybe even by the full bench, or that the issues of fact would be laid before a jury.

If only one member of the court hears the case, it will be Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, who is presiding over the motion division for the term.

Judge Virlyn R. Moore, acting on the Georgia Continental's plea, granted a temporary injunction Friday and set the application for a permanent injunction for hearing Saturday. The other companies will join in the plea Monday and the court has agreed to hear the plea for a temporary injunction in their cases Monday afternoon. Marion Smith is attorney for the Georgia Continental.

Although no records were available it was said Saturday that if all five judges sit on the case it will be the first time in the history of the court that the five jurists have sat en banc.

A provision in the code permits "two or more judges" to sit on such cases in cities of more than 10,000 population.

The telephone rate is scheduled to go into effect on bills for July. The Georgia Continental Saturday posted $2,500 to insure refunds to subscribers who pay their higher bills in the event the new rate is approved by the courts. The other companies are expected to post bonds for refunds Monday.

Mr. Smith applied for the state court injunction after a three-judge federal court had held that it had no jurisdiction in the case. Judge Johnson bill sends rate injunction cases into state courts.

The companies, it was said, had not decided Saturday whether to appeal the decision of the federal court. The action in the federal courts would in no way jeopardize their cases in the state courts as, if pushed, both would reach the supreme court for final adjudication.

AMATEURS LEAD NRA, DECLARES DARROW

DULUTH, Minn., July 14.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, internationally known attorney, today charged that the NRA was led by "amateurs" with no understanding of political economy.

"The trouble with this method is that nobody has been in charge of affairs who is schooled in political economy, nothing but amateurs," the attorney said at the final session of the Minnesota State Bar Association here.

Darrow, who was chairman of President Roosevelt's national recovery review board, did not mention General Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA administrator, by name.

"Somebody suggested to Roosevelt the NRA and he took it. Unfortunately he did not call around him men of experience in statesmanship. I won't mention whom he put at the head of it. I can't remember his name. I heard he is a military man, not a statesman."

"The business collapse was brought on by Wall Street money changers, the greedy men and big business," Darrow continued. "Roosevelt at his inauguration promised a people's administration; that he would do his very best and there is no doubt that he has tried. The country is like an individual. It's easier to get them sick than to get them well."

7 SCHOLARSHIPS ARE OFFERED TO RIVERSIDE

Boys submit in letters addressed to the Scholarship Editor of The Constitution. Modesty will be a handicap and should be forgotten. In other words, the boys in making their applications must sell themselves through their letters to a board of judges. In addition to the letters the candidates write, setting out their qualifications, they may also submit letters substantiating their statements regarding their characters, education and physical condition, or other recommendations they may desire to forward.

All letters must be postmarked not later than midnight, August 15. The board of judges will sift these letters, selecting letters from the 20 boys the board believes to be the most deserving and best qualified. These 20 letters the board of judges will turn over to a special scholarship board which will be named from prominent public officials and educators. The scholarship board will then invite the 20 candidates to meet in Atlanta at a designated time and place for the final test when the seven to receive scholarships will be selected. The tests will be similar in many details to the tests to which candidates for Rhodes scholarships submit themselves.

The letters which candidates will write making their applications for the scholarships must be written in the candidate's hand and each boy should make out the strongest case possible for himself. He should not neglect to mention anything that would build the word picture of himself into a strong argument in his behalf.

The letter should be prefaced with the candidate's own expression of why he wants to continue his education. While the Scholarship Editor has no idea of attempting to tell candidates specifically what they should include in their letters, it is necessary that among other facts they should include full name, address and age, physical condition, their class in school and what class they hope to enter at Riverside.

Successful candidates will enjoy the full privileges of Riverside Military Academy, just as do the other 400 cadets at the fine military preparatory school in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains near Gainesville, Ga., about 50 miles north of Atlanta. During the winter months, they will go to the new winter home of the school at Hollywood, Fla., 16 miles north of Miami, where classes

Simple Rules Govern Scholarship Contest

1. Georgia boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years are eligible. (The judges, of course, will take into consideration the ages of the writers when judging the applicants.)

2. The letters of the boys applying will be the basis of selection, although the boys' school records, achievements as leaders, athletes and other factors which go to make up the well-rounded boy will count.

3. Letters must be mailed not later than midnight, August 15, to the Scholarship Editor, Atlanta Constitution, and must contain the following:

- a. Name.
- b. Address.
- c. Class in school.
- d. Age.
- e. Participation in school activities.
- f. Athletic attainments.
- g. Candidate's expression of why he wants to continue his education.

It would be to the candidate's advantage, when possible, to accompany his letter with letters substantiating his claims, and with other letters that might serve to strengthen his application. It is the desire of The Constitution to award these scholarships to boys who make good, but not necessarily perfect scholastic records, and who can show by their records of activities that they are wide-awake and deserving. The boys need not be athletic stars, but should participate in athletics. They should also be interested in some branch of literature or art.

The beautiful 250-acre campus of the school near Gainesville provides a wholesome recreational outlet for the energies of the cadets, enabling them to mix plenty of hunting, fishing, hiking and other outdoor activities and athletic endeavors with their classroom work.

Establishment in 1931 of the winter home of the school at Hollywood, Fla., made it possible to carry on the outdoor activities throughout the entire school year.

Riverside Military Academy, on June 1, 1934, for the twelfth consecutive year, following the most rigid government inspection, won the coveted distinction of being designated by the United States war department as an honorary military school and was the only school in the south between Virginia and New Mexico to win this distinction so many times in succession.

In addition to the high school courses of study which Riverside emphasizes, the school offers in addition work above the grades of high school. It is probable that many candidates will take advantage of the two-year course in business administration for boys who do not plan to attend a four-year college course.

Riverside graduates are accepted without examination by all colleges and universities in the United States. Colleges substantially agree in prescribing 15 or 16 units for admission. Riverside meets these requirements fully and guarantees academic progress.

The fall term, September 16 to December 21, is spent at the Gainesville school plant. School is then closed for the Christmas vacation. Instead of returning to Gainesville, the cadets who go home for the holidays report to Hollywood, Fla., January 3, where the school work is continued through the winter term, which ends March 15.

NEW YORK POLICE SEE EARLY ARREST IN BABY KIDNAPING

engineer, had been out of work many months and the family is not wealthy. His 80-year-old father, Charles P. Connor, a retired merchant of Arlington, Mass., joined the vigil at the modest Hartfield home.

The boy's mother, with her three other children—Claire, 8; Richard, 7; and Joan, 4—went into seclusion at the Bridgeport, Conn., home of her mother, Mrs. R. M. Murphy.

The child was last seen about 6 p. m. Thursday. He then was playing with the young daughter of a neighbor in a sand pile 150 feet from the Connor home.

Boy Disappears. Ten minutes later when the baby's father went to find him, Robert had disappeared without a trace.

Late in the afternoon, after his regular daily nap, the child toddled from the Connor home to find Ruth Schwagman, three and one-half years old, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schwagman, live about a block away.

He and Ruth played on the Schwagman lawn until about 5:30 p. m. when Mrs. Schwagman told her daughter to take Robert home for dinner. The children walked around the block, however, instead of going directly to the Connor home.

An abandoned automobile chassis and a sand pile at the side of the road attracted their attention and they stopped to frolic. At this point the father, who was standing nearby, saw the missing child's home but screened from it by dense woods.

Child Left. After 15 minutes, Mrs. Schwagman called for Ruth to return home and the girl tried to persuade the Connor child to leave. Robert refused and began to cry and Ruth left him there about 5:45 p. m.

She went to the Connor house and arrived there just after the father, returning home from work, had asked Mrs. Connor where the child was. Informed by Ruth that she had left him at the sand pile, Connor crossed through the woods to the spot.

There was no sign of Robert. The father searched along the side of the road, in the densely wooded area adjoining and in the backyards of neighboring houses, but without result.

After an hour, Mrs. Connor took out the family car and drove down the road for several miles. When 22, when the cadets return to Gainesville for the spring term.

One of the features which distinguishes Riverside is the democracy that predominates. There are no class distinctions. A cadet must work his way to special privileges and distinctions. Regardless of the financial rating of his parents or sponsors, he receives exactly the same allowance for spending money as his fellow cadets, the amount being regulated entirely by his attention to studies and response to discipline.

Students enrolled at Riverside last year from 38 states and five foreign countries in such numbers that on February 15 the school had the largest enrollment of any military prep in the country.

Riverside was established in 1907, the first session being held in September of the following year. The school proper is built upon the crest of an eminence at an altitude of 1,278 feet. The mean temperature at Gainesville during the months school is in session there is 65 degrees, while the mean temperature for Hollywood for the months school is in session there is 78 degrees, a 30-year average reveals.

she met a traffic policeman she asked him whether he had seen the boy.

Neighbors Join Search. The officer notified Greenburgh police headquarters and Police Chief Philip J. McQuillan went to the Connor home. Several neighbors joined the search and Ruth took them over the ground she had traversed with Robert earlier.

No alarm was felt for several hours because previously two of the older Connor children had been lost briefly after wandering into the thick undergrowth of the woods.

After darkness fell, however, an intensive search was begun. Poses of citizens, police and firemen were organized for an all-night hunt. In the morning, the aid of 150 Boy Scouts was enlisted to beat the brush.

The sweeping search continued throughout the day and into the night until police were convinced that every spot, which the child possibly could have reached by himself, had been fully covered.

All-Night Vigil. The department of justice assigned a squad of investigators to the case yesterday when it was feared that Robert had been abducted and they joined the all-night vigil at the Connor home. Telephone lines were hastily strung up and a concerted police inquiry set into motion over a wide area.

A bloodhound, given the scent from the missing boy's doll and slippers at the spot where he was last seen, failed repeatedly to find a trail. The dog called out, returning always to the starting point, and authorities regarded this as strengthening their belief that Robert had been carried off.

The child's description, made public by his father, was: Twenty-one months old, 24 inches tall, weight 22 pounds, eyes blue, hair blond and curly, wearing pink rompers, white shoes and socks.

Boy Struck, Killed By Walter Hagen's Car

ST. PAUL, July 14.—(AP)—An automobile driven by Walter Hagen, Detroit golf star, struck and killed a boy tonight. The lad was tossed under a street car by the impact.

Hagen is competing in the $5,000 St. Paul open golf tournament here. Hagen was taken to police headquarters pending questioning, by the county coroner. He was on his way from the Keller golf course to the city when the accident happened.

The boy, about 5 years old, suffered a fractured skull.

WOMEN CONTINUE LISTING OF VOTERS

New Candidates This Week Expected To Stir Primary Interest.

Swelling registration lists and more entries for the positions for which nominations will be made in the city democratic primary to be held September 26 are slated to feature this week's local political activities.

The Atlanta League of Women Voters will augment the drive which has been in progress by the Georgia Woman's Democratic Club, Mrs. J. O. Sanders Jr., president of the former organization, announced.

The league's drive will begin Monday morning and will continue until Saturday noon. About 28 other organizations have joined the league in its effort to place at least 25,000 on the lists.

J. Henson Tatum, registrar, Saturday announced that registration to date is 14,008, and that two booths—the one at Rich's, Inc., and the other in the lobby of the Henry Grady hotel—will be opened for the week to aid the league in its campaign.

Mrs. William P. Lunn, president of the democratic club, has announced that her organization will continue the registration drive until lists close at noon, Saturday, July 28.

Sam Cohen, who operates a downtown tailor shop, of 1065 Lawton street, S. W., announced definitely Saturday he will be a candidate for councilman from the tenth ward to succeed Councilman J. Raymond Curtis, whose resignation becomes effective Monday.

Roy LeCraw, insurance executive, one of the two qualified entries for mayor, Saturday announced he will champion a permanent registration list for the municipality in order to obtain additional city revenue if he is elected.

Mayor James L. Key, incumbent, also is qualified and Alderman J. C. Murphy, of the eleventh ward, is an announced aspirant for the post.

215 Register Saturday. A total of 215 were registered Saturday at the three booths which are open during the week, Tatum announced. The booths were at the city hall, the Grand Theater building and at 38 Whitehall street.

In addition to nomination of a mayor, voters will nominate two council members, from the tenth and thirteenth wards; three aldermen, from the fifth and tenth wards; two recorders, and four members of the board of education, from the first, second, third and fourth wards.

Added impetus is expected this week, registration for another reason. During the past week the city democratic executive committee voted to seek a public expression of the sentiment of the voters on the following:

1. Repeal of the state bond-dry laws.
2. Institution of daylight saving time for Atlanta during the summer months, from May 1 to September 1, annually.
3. Whether voters prefer to divorce Atlanta schools entirely from council administration or to have them be under the control of the municipal government.

All Are Live Issues. The three issues are destined to become live ones before the closing of the registration lists and it is anticipated that they will stir the interest in the forthcoming primary.

In addition to Key and LeCraw, the following other qualifications had been made Saturday for the post of city clerk: First ward—Guy Coleman, incumbent; fifth ward—James E. Bowden, incumbent; tenth ward—John W. Ball Jr., incumbent; thirteenth ward—former Alderman Alvin I. Richards and H. H. Hutchins.

For recorder, second division—John L. Cone, incumbent, and Robert B. Cohen, incumbent.

For board of education, first ward—J. H. Landers, incumbent; second ward—Louis Giffen and Thomas J. Ward; third ward—Ed S. Cook, incumbent.

Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Dunn Saturday urged potential voters to prepare for the primary by adding their names to registration lists at once.

"When the time comes to vote in September," stated Mrs. Sanders, "there will be important offices filled. It is deplorable to think that up to the present time only 14,000 persons are qualified to vote. We urge Atlanta voters to exercise their franchise rights and register immediately so that they may vote when the time comes."

Many Firms Co-operating. Twenty-eight civic organizations are co-operating with the league in its campaign by helping to contact all Atlanta business firms, banks and department stores in an effort to get clerks and employees to register this week.

Mrs. Dunn announced the following business firms and organizations are co-operating in getting all employees to register:

Trust Company of Georgia, Kent Sign Company, Storch Furniture Company, D. L. Stokes, insurance; Goodrich-Silverman, Inc., Aristocratic Dairy Products, Zillah's Beauty Shop, Equitable Life Insurance Company, John B. Daniel, Inc., Norris Candy Company, Atlanta Gas Light Company, Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, Texas Oil Company, Modern Dairies, Graymount Dairies, Julian Boehm, insurance; Atlanta Printing & Lithographing Company, Ivan Allen Company, Ford Printing Company, Lord's, Inc., United States Coast & Geodetic Survey, Oldsmobile Company, Cadillac-La Salle Company, A&P Tea Company, Lane Drug Company, Capital Auto Company, J. M. Harrison & Company, Marmon Motor Company, John Smith Chevrolet Company, Anthony Buick Company, McCord-Johnson Plymouth Company, Nash Auto Company, Boomerang-Pontiac Company, etc.

Cohen issued the following statement regarding his candidacy, saying at the same time that he has lived in the tenth ward for the past 25 years: "I make this, my formal announcement as a candidate for councilman from the tenth ward, subject to the city white primary September 26 to fill the unexpired term of Mr. J. Raymond Curtis, who has announced his purpose to resign."

"I have lived in the tenth ward for 25 years, married a tenth ward girl, Miss Nettie Trull, and my two children were reared and obtained their earlier education in the schools of the ward."

"I have always been interested in the welfare of my community and it would be with the view of furthering interests of the ward that I seek to occupy a seat in council."

"I am a candidate of no faction or clique. It would be my purpose to take office with no obligations to pay; no promises to fulfill. I would be guided by a policy of fairness to municipal employees and at the same time I would feel that property owners are entitled to consideration in the matter of tax equalization."

Club for Talmadge To Be Formed Here

Fulton county supporters of Governor Talmadge will form a Fulton County Talmadge Club at a meeting at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night in the ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel.

Henry C. Davidson, well known Atlanta lawyer who is acting as secretary of the organization committee, Saturday issued invitations to all Talmadge followers in the county to attend the meeting. Talmadge leaders and supporters from Alpharetta, East Point, College Park, Hapeville, Fairburn, Union City, Palmetto and Roswell as well as from the country districts are expected to attend.

"Although there appears to be no doubt that Governor Talmadge will carry Fulton county our club will work throughout the campaign to make the majority as large as possible," Mr. Davidson said Saturday in announcing the meeting.

CARROLLTON CHOSEN FOR 1935 PRESS MEET

Election of members of the code of authority and the selection of Carrollton for next year's convention occupied a meeting of the managers of the Georgia Press Association Saturday afternoon at the Piedmont hotel.

Representing daily papers will be John Green Herring, of Tifton, and Walter D. Hargrove, of Thomaston, while weekly members will be Roy McGinty, of Calhoun, W. K. Sullivan, of Blackshear, Jere Moore, of Milledgeville, Albert Hardy, of Gainesville, and Milton L. Fleetwood, of Cartersville, who is president of the state press association. A definite date was set for the convention next summer. The invitation to hold the gathering in Carrollton was extended by J. H. Thompson, editor of the Carroll County Times.

Storm Wrecks Plane. WASHINGTON, Ga., July 14.—(AP)—Considerable damage was done by a rain and wind storm here yesterday afternoon. A plane owned by W. T. Johnson at the Washington airport was completely demolished. Large trees were blown down and crops damaged.

JURY WILL PROBE CONVICT SLAYING

Trusty Guards Removed From Prison Farm by New Superintendent.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 14.—(AP)—The Pulaski county grand jury called into special session today for next Wednesday will be asked to indict Frank Martin, trusty guard convicted, for first degree murder for killing Helen Spence Eaton, escaped girl convict.

The guard, held in jail here on a charge of murder, shot the 21-year-old brunette slayer of two men when he overtook her on a highway near Jacksonville women's prison farm Wednesday afternoon 24 hours after she had escaped, leaving behind a note declaring she would never be taken alive. It was her fifth break from the prison in little over a year, and she was armed with a gun she had stolen in her getaways.

Witnesses will be summoned to testify, the prosecuting attorney's office here announced, including A. G. Stedman, who resigned as penal superintendent at a special meeting of the penal board yesterday. During the 18 months of Stedman's administration, 14 convicts have been killed in escape attempts.

Official Removed. Orders were issued today by S. L. Todhunter, former warden of the penitentiary named as Stedman's successor, for the removal of Mrs. O. Brockman, superintendent, and her husband, assistant superintendent, of the Eaton girl made five escapes. Mrs. Ben F. Maddox, whose husband was head warden under Stedman, was named as the new superintendent. Her husband was removed as warden and transferred to Jacksonville to assist her.

Labor Boards Meet In National Capital

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Frank E. Coffey, executive secretary of the Atlanta regional labor board, was in Washington today discussing his board's relation with Lloyd K. Garrison, chairman, and Harry A. Millis, and Edwin S. Smith, members of the national relations labor board. Representatives from most of the regional boards east of the Mississippi also were present at an all-day conference. It was the first of a proposed series of such meetings to be held with the national board which was recently appointed by President Roosevelt under terms of the Wagner labor act.

"We discussed the status of the regional board dockets as to whether they were crowded or up to date and the number and type of cases coming in," Chairman Garrison said after the meeting.

"We also went into the question as to whether the particular boards sit as full boards or with smaller panels, what forms of hearing records are kept, what percentage of cases are amicably settled and the attitude of the public toward the work of the boards in the different communications."

"The relations of each regional board with federal and state labor conciliators were also discussed, as were suggestions as to how the national board relations board can be of help to the regional group. The whole problem of co-ordinating the work of the boards in the different communications."

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

The Bishop of Havana. The author is a young Virginian, now living in Washington, who at 29 years of age has written a story which went into the second edition of a week after publication in the fall of 1933. The story is a romance filled with plenty of historical features which writers in the past have overlooked in dealing with Florida and Cuba's history in the 1700's. In fact, it is a romantic story of a bishop who tried to swallow life whole.

The story goes that the bishop of Havana was preparing to make his annual visit to Florida, and he was quite busy with all the numerous things incident to his going. There was to be a magnificent farewell service at the cathedral, and he could not rest well the night before thinking about it. So June and morning both came to find the bishop full of contentment and at peace with the world. He was ready for his summer vacation, he had lived and worked for his people, and now he was content.

Another story that will interest the reader is the story of a wild Gypsy boy of the 18th century in Spain, who after years of living through his youth, enters the church and is called by the name of "the bishop of Havana," with simply a far-away memory of the old days until he is called to witness the death of a man who once upon a time was the girl he loved, the Nordic girl, who never forgot him. There is life in the characters and there are no dull chapters in the story. (Wesley Washburn, publisher, New York.)

NEW FICTION.

The Fatal Element. By Edward C. Clark. It is seldom an author devotes the writing of more than 300 pages to one mystery story and that is what Mr. Clark has contributed to the "Fatal Element," which can be called a full-length murder mystery novel and guaranteed to keep the reader wide awake until the early morning hours.

The scene is laid in the great exposition city—Chicago. A young artist was found dead in his studio—the only clue was a scrap of paper in his hand on which was written a few bars of music. A number of persons are suspected, and the work of the police is also a mystery, and yet the author does not deal with the usual mysterious "ins and outs" of the mystery writer. He has created human beings who are just like those we meet in the hotels, on Broadway, in theaters and, yes, in private offices and studios. There is wit and humor to keep the reader from becoming too serious as he follows the detective's effort to find the solution of a mystery that holds with intensity the interest of the reader. (Empire Publishing Co., New York.)

Wake and Find a Stranger. By Eleanor Shaler. The author introduces her latest story by writing that it all happened long ago—that year we were all young and nobody starved. Miss Shaler claims that all the characters are fictitious, the places and events are also fictitious, and in reading this story of Broadway, with its many activities, its amusing incidents, of the two young girls who are heroines of the story, who went to New York to go on stage, understand that it is all fiction and that it happened many years ago before New York knew or felt the work of the word depression. (Morrow, publisher.)

Smugglers' Ranch. By Charles H. Snow. The author of "The Smugglers' Ranch" in this story there is another sheriff who is very much worried over the coming election, which was soon to take place in Ortega, a border county, and while during his 11 years of chief law-enforcement he had cleaned out the cattle rustlers, the bandits, the gamblers and even the last stage holdup had become a memory, but there were several other things to worry him, which he had not as yet been able to overcome. He had a woman's thrush—and he knew full well that sooner or later he would have to meet and test the sticking qualities of his thrush. It is a western story, naturally packed with thrills made up of love, hate, fights and gunpowder. (McCrack-Smith Co., New York.)

Death Strides at Six Bells. By Gregory Baxter. This is a synopsis of a thrilling story: Lesley Kinnear and her father, Sir Ronald, are on board ship returning from India. Sir Ronald is the only witness of a tragedy. Then Sir Ronald loses his life by masked robbers. The murderer was captured and then got away. The murder remains unsolved when the ship docks and it is then Scotland Yard is called in. When the reader turns the last page of this thrilling story it will be with the thought that he has been entertained by the reading of a splendid mystery story. The author is a young Scottish writer whose mystery stories are attracting attention in England.

The Prison Nurse. By Dr. Louis Berg. The author is a well-known physician of New York. He has been on hospital staffs and on the staff of many of New York's institutions. He has written several novels and numerous articles. He became well known during the exposure of the welfare island prison scandal where the dope and liquor traffic flourished. This story is still remembered in New York when it was extravagantly aired by the newspapers of the country. Dr. Berg tells in this book the story of a nurse in the prison hospital. The story is told perhaps for the purpose of being of benefit to some poor unfortunate, or it may be many.

Doctor Bob. By Robert Ravel. The author is a young doctor who thought he wanted to be a doctor though he was inclined to be literary, so he decided to combine the two by writing a story of medical life, and which is written from the inside. (Macaulay, New York.)

Misalliance. By Wilbur Fawley. The question is asked in the beginning of the story, "Can a great lover, as in the olden days, appear in this machine age?" It is a story woven around an up-to-date aviator and it moves from Long Island to Palm Beach and like a cyclone, it goes on and on until it goes out, and is forgotten. (Macaulay, New York.)

YOUTH—OLD AGE. By Dr. Johnson Brigham. State librarian of Iowa, Marshall Jones Company, publishers, Boston. In the beginning Dr. Brigham gives his observations on old age. A chapter that every reader will pore over with much interest and perhaps admiration for the writer. To quote: "It has been my pleasure to turn back to the literature of our own people and of other peoples, to the literature of our own time and of the past, and the story has been to me a renewal of youth, a joy which I would gladly pass on to others who, like myself, have passed life's meridian."

Dr. Brigham has been state librarian of Iowa since 1898. His hobby has been to collect quotations on the subject of old age and to this you will find some humorous comment of his own, and others that are very impressive: "I recall the saying of the great book lover, Gamaliel Bradford, 'Journal of a Man of Letters,' published just before his death: 'I find my love of books increases daily. . . I love the looks of my books. . . I love the touch of them.'"

MISCELLANEOUS. American Captivity to Prisoners. By Edwin G. Nourse and associates. This book is the first volume in a series of four studies dealing with the distribution of wealth and income in relation to economic progress. The purpose of this book is fully described in the foreword: The larger study, and introduction, the task of this book, is to give the reader a clear picture of the most important features as well as gives the reader an insight into the broadness of the subjects. Part I covers the subjects pertaining to raw materials; Part II, fabrication, under which cotton, woolen, silk, rayon, boots and shoes, as well as meat packing, dairy industry, fruit and vegetables are discussed. Part III is entitled Services under which will be found an interesting discussion on electric power utilities, transportation, waterways, highways, pipe lines, etc. (The Brookings Institution, Washington.)

That Heart of Yours. By Dr. S. Calvin Smith. Lippincott, publisher. The author, a well-known physician, tells an interesting story of the heart. He says that the book derives its inspiration from the countless questions of his patients: "Now that I have heart trouble how must I live to carry on to live happily and contentedly?" He also says that since the World War there has been an advance of modern methods and there has been a retreat in the old ideas with reference to the heart. Among the subjects discussed is "The Heart is more sinuous against than sinning." This book will prove of interest and value to those who have—or think they have—heart trouble.

Happy the man who has been able to learn the causes of things.—Vergil.

ROOSEVELT HEADS FOR HAWAII

Brief But Eventful Visit to Cocos Island Terminated by Party.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 14.—(P) President Roosevelt tonight set out on his 4,000-mile cruise to the Hawaiian Islands after a field day of sport on and about Cocos island, a small dot in the Pacific ocean west of Panama.

Burned by the sun and wind of a day of varied rainstorms and smiling skies, the president retired early.

Just at sunset the president's cruiser, the Houston, struck out for the west. The New Orleans followed in her wake and soon verdant Cocos island dropped below the horizon.

The uninhabited island will become a fond memory to the president, for while there he regained his fishing championship of his vacation party.

The president caught a 30-pound ono, a fish resembling the barracuda, and he brought it out of the water without misadventure. Roosevelt's strapping son, Franklin, also caught an ono, but a shark snapped off its tail before he could get it into the boat.

A marine got even with the shark by shooting it, but a hand held the honors of the day belonged to the president because of the clean landing of his catch.

The marine turned his pistol from the shark to a porpoise which splashed about the island.

John Roosevelt had several sailfish at the end of his tackle, and he almost succeeded in landing one.

Despite a downpour of rain the president, wearing an old blue jersey and fishing boots, kept an engagement at noon for a picnic in Welsh cove, on shore.

The picnic, on the precipitous rocky front of the shore, provided the only place on the island where a landing could be made.

The president stroked a sandy beach and inspected an abandoned shack.

Everyone tried his skill at shooting, but the total result was a frightened dove and a punctured coconut.

The president said he had no late information of official affairs in the United States which would warrant comment.

For the next 10 days he will be on the Pacific cruising straight for Hawaii.

MRS. NATHAN MOORE, TEACHER, SUCCUMBS

deals with the love of a London barman for a woman who, like himself, is unappreciated. The climax is a surprise one. Monday and Tuesday Manager Alpha Fowler shows Janet Gaynor and Lionel Barrymore in "Carolina" at the Tenth Street.

Friday's screen play is a picture of soul-stirring triumph, "No Greater Glory," with its all-star cast. A big stage show will be an added feature in the evening.

A rip-snorting western, one which has been well received wherever shown, is booked for Saturday with Ken Maynard in a blazing story of the cow country.

Ponce de Leon Offers Snappy Comedy Film

Charles Farrell, Wynne Gibson, Zasu Pitts and William H. Chytil are in the featured attraction of the Ponce de Leon theater today, Sunday, in "Aggie Applepie, Maker of Men." This is an unusual comedy with Farrell playing a news item in pictures, that of a mollycoddled mother's boy.

Wynne Gibson, however, with her modern ways, soon changes him into a rough and ready man of the world.

Monday and Tuesday the Ponce de Leon offers "My Lips Betray" with Lillian Harvey, John Boles and El Brendel. It is a spicy, saucy comedy in which a poor working girl falls in love with a king.

Wednesday the greatest picture of the year, "Little Women," with Mary Astor and with Katharine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Frances Dee, Paul Lukas and Edna May Oliver will be the offering. It is a picture that will please everyone.

Thursday and Friday Gloria Stuart and Roger Dwyer will be together in "I Like It That Way," a splendid musical with beautiful girls, new songs and plenty of laughs. Gloria Stuart, a hostess in a night club, finally succeeds in making her sweetheart open his heart and work for success as a song writer.

Saturday Buck Jones will be starred in "The Fighting Code of Jones," the fighting fool of many western comedies, provides many thrilling moments of entertainment with his hard-hitting and his fast shooting.

to proceed immediately with the gathering of statistical data on air conditions in the countries to be visited and to report to Chairman Howell.

Aside from his inspection of foreign air equipment and flying fields, Mr. Howell will confer with the air ministries of the countries visited.

Out of the mass of technical and lay information thus gathered here and abroad it will be the purpose of the commission to lay before congress by February 1 definite recommendations for permanent legislation embracing a comprehensive plan for a program for aviation development in the United States, not only as relates to air mail, but commercial, military and naval air activities as well.

In addition to Chairman Howell, the commission includes: Vice Chairman Edward P. Warner, former assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aircraft and flying fields; Mr. Howell will confer with the air ministries of the countries visited.

Franklin K. Davis, of California, an attorney and son of the former secretary of interior under the Wilson administration, who saw service as a pilot during the World War.

Jerome C. Hunsaker, of New York, retired naval officer who has, specialized in lighter-than-air craft.

Colonel J. Carroll Cone, of Arkansas, assistant director of commerce of the department of commerce in charge of regulations and himself a World War flyer, was chosen as executive secretary of the commission.

In keeping with the nature of its duties the four members of the commission who will make the tour of inspection of American plants and facilities while Chairman Howell is in Europe will travel in a giant plane tendered by commerce department air officials. Appropriately enough Colonel Cone will be in the command.

Members Administered Oath. At its initial meeting at the White House this week all members of the commission were administered the oath of office by Mr. Hunsaker.

Mr. Howell indicated that the purpose of the commission will be entirely constructive with this end in view. Careful study is to be given to the subject of co-ordination of the several governmental air functions.

spread over four separate departments, including commerce, postoffice, war and navy. Procurement practices of the army and navy, together with the need for more centralized planning, will be given consideration.

The inquiry into the air industry and aviation by the commission will mark the fifteenth such investigation that has been undertaken by an official congressional or otherwise, since flying became recognized as a practical art in this country.

The present commission, however, promises to be far the most comprehensive and epoch-making of the lot, and it may be the last, at least for some years.

Evidence of the nation-wide interest being manifested in its deliberations is found in the fact that already the commission has been flooded with requests from leaders in and patrons of the industry for an opportunity to present their views.

Public Hearings to Be Held. The tentative plan adopted calls for two months of public hearings, beginning in September.

After the formal hearings are closed, the commission will devote a period of three months to the stupendous task of assimilating the data and arriving at its conclusions. It is contemplated that the final findings will be ready for submission to congress after the beginning of the session in January.

By virtue of its previous service on other major national commissions, Mr. Howell, publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, is fortified with a valuable background of experience in expediting the task that lies ahead and is confident that the board's work will be completed well in advance of the limit set by congress.

A member of the federal civil commission appointed by President Harding to study problems of the coal industry, Mr. Howell was a member of the national transportation commission of which the late President Coolidge was chairman.

Practically every recommendation of this commission designed to untangle the transportation problems of the country has either been enacted into law since or have been voluntarily adopted by the carriers with a marked betterment of transportation conditions.

The announcement at the initial meeting of the commission that the body would approach the subject of aviation in the great spirit of 1922 and more recently served as a member of the national transportation commission of which the late President Coolidge was chairman.

The industry is looking forward to a new deal for aviation from the department of commerce, one that will give it the impetus necessary to move forward on an unprecedented scale of development. It has suffered from the uncertainties of the past, and it gives a firm and lasting foundation on which to build, confidence will be restored, and an epochal era of development may be expected.

Terrible Beating. It was a sad group of up-town boys and girls who motored back from the popular West End Golf Club tournament Thursday evening. About five youngsters went out, and only one came back. It was a single one of the lot finished one, two, three. The West Enders gave them a terrible beating.

Griffin was represented at the said tournament by Mrs. Freda Langford, Mrs. C. C. Newsom and Tommy Meher. The latter runs monthly tournaments at Griffin and reports that interest is exceedingly keen in the game in that city. All enjoyed meeting the visitors and hope they will run over often.

One of the saddest sights I have seen lately, and I have witnessed the ungodly Crackers lose many a ball game, was Al Walton playing checkers. One would think that being the first bridge player he is would at least be fair at the checker board. His game is so terrible that it is best that little children and weak-hearted old ladies not be allowed to watch his unhappy plays. I do not believe there is a single person now living who knows how to move and jump whom he could beat.

Vreman tournament held several weeks ago, Mrs. Kirt Smith and Mrs. Howard Muse had 13 tops out of a possible 15. That should stand as a record of some sort. Mrs. Smith plays little duplicate, liking the rubber variety of bridge best, but Mrs. Muse is one of the most enthusiastic duplicate players in the city. Her game has improved tremendously as witness the number of tournaments which she either wins or is well up in the running.

Florida Tournament Near. Maybe those who cannot make the financial grade and get to Asbury can collect some of the excitement to go to Jacksonville August 31, September 1 and 2, to attend the big team-of-four tournament which will be held at the Hotel Windsor at that time.

A letter from Mrs. Ruby Bennett, who will run the tournament, which is held under the sponsorship of the United States Bridge Association, states that she hopes many from Atlanta will come down. Likely many from here will receive notices from her in the near future and it is possible that several teams will motor down. With Atlantic Beach near and the event being on a week-end, prospects appear bright for a large attendance.

It is likely that there will be a qualifying round, or rounds, to reduce the field to eight teams after which the field of eight teams will be reduced to four. The knockout system will be used. You will hear more about this tournament later.

Georgia State. Tennessee has awarded the Georgia state tournament to the Cavendish Club, of this city. The tournament, which will be held in the city, will be a team-of-four and pair championship, down for decision will probably be held in October. The leading teams in the team-of-four event, Thursday at Louisville, will be the winning team in the regional goes as the guests of the United States Bridge Association to New York to deal two weeks of the championship.

While the association has made no award as to the site of the regional, it is highly probable that the Cavendish Club will be the site of the event. Last year this club ran the regional and was the recipient of many compliments from the visitors present on the manner in which it was conducted.

The states comprising the regional are Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi. It would seem that Birmingham or Atlanta offer the most central locations for this event.

TALMADGE FOES SPEED UP DRIVES

Governor Talmadge, who has been resting since his second campaign defeat, is expected to return to his offices at the capitol Monday and will continue to give his attention to his official duties until a week from Wednesday, when he will leave for his campaign at Seaside, which is four miles from Hartwell.

The governor has made no change in his plans to make more than two trips to the campaign, the first being to Seaside, which is four miles from Hartwell.

The governor has made no change in his plans to make more than two trips to the campaign, the first being to Seaside, which is four miles from Hartwell.

Although interest in the state campaign continues to be focused about the governor's race during the last week, there were marked signs of added interest in a number of state races.

Collins Now Unopposed. Activity in campaigns for other state house offices was centered during the week on the withdrawal of W. Irving Rigdon, of Fort Valley, as an opponent of State Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins and the announced candidacy of Robert E. Collins, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, and Madison Bell, of Cartersville, candidate for comptroller general, that they would open headquarters here this week.

Mr. Roberts announced that his Atlanta offices would be at the Piedmont hotel. He plans to continue his office at Columbus, at least temporarily.

Mr. Bell's headquarters will be at the Ansley hotel.

The withdrawal of Mr. Rigdon is the second to be made in state races. Alf Taylor, of Augusta, several weeks ago withdrew as an opponent of Secretary of State John B. Wilson. Mr. Taylor's action leaves Superintendent Collins, Secretary Wilson, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, Commissioner of Commerce and Labor Hal M. Stanley and Judges Richard B. Russell and J. B. McEachern, the only candidates without opposition. No candidates were entered against Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Stanley.

MRS. G. J. DICKEY, PIONEER, PASSES

Continued From First Page. His railroad career under Governor Joseph E. Brown and advanced to the position of general agent of the Western & Atlantic railroad at the time of his death in 1910. During legislative activities regarding the railroads and other carriers, Mrs. Dickey was a close adviser and frequently told members of her family arguments from both sides of the encounter before they were spoken upon the floor of the general assembly.

She is survived by three sons,

James L. Dickey, of the Dickey-Mann Insurance Company and director of the First National bank; Ervin Dickey, of Watertown, N. Y., vice president of the Agricultural Fire Insurance Company, and Eugene Dickey, prominent Atlanta attorney.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

BOARD OF APPEALS CREATED BY NRA

Another Step. Appointment of the board also was regarded as another step in Johnson's reorganization of NRA for administrative work in a manner to get away from one-man rule.

Mr. Peaslee, who has been acting as chief of the NRA compliance division, is a member of the New York firm of Peaslee & Brigham. He is a graduate of Swarthmore College, Columbia University and Birmingham University in England. A republican and Quaker, Peaslee was attached as a major to General Pershing's headquarters in France during the war and served as judge advocate of the general court-martial. He was associated also with the American commission to negotiate peace.

Clement is president of the Sandura Company, of Philadelphia, a manufacturer of floor coverings.

The order creating the board said: "There is hereby established a board consisting of three members, to be appointed by the administrator, who shall be known as the NRA industrial appeals board, to act on all complaints of inequitable application of codes to small enterprises or otherwise. The administrator will select three members."

Work of Board. (a) Hear and recommend to the administrator the proper disposition of complaints concerning NRA, especially those alleging that code provisions are designed to or tend to eliminate, oppress, discriminate against small enterprises, or to favor monopolistic tendencies; and complaints of non-compliance.

(b) Advise and make recommendations to the administrator with respect to effect of code provisions on small enterprises.

"Such board shall adopt rules governing matters of procedure and organization."

"The members of the board are: Amos J. Peaslee, chairman; John S. Clement."

George A. Lynch, administrative officer."

papers in New York, London, Paris, Warsaw, Rome and other world cities notified their newspapers in long dispatches that all the world is at least impressed and in most cases approves of the chancellor's words.

"The Fuehrer's speech was received by all listeners throughout the world as the earnest confession of a man who is honest about the future of his fatherland and his people as nobody before him," said the Nachrichten.

"Greatest Figure of Times." The entire German press called Hitler "one of the greatest figures of all times."

"The nation thanks the Fuehrer for his stupendous speech," said the Nazi party official news service. "Gratitude and fidelity are the German people's reply."

Not only was every editorial writer in Germany excessive in his praise of the speech, but millions of his followers saw a Messiah in the German people were assured that, as the Zwölf Uhr Blatt put it:

"Never before was a speech by a European statesman met with such universal approval as yesterday's speech by Hitler."

Various newspapers gave attention to the "unusual performance of the Associated Press in supplying to America the complete text of the chancellor's address."

Foreign Policy Reticence. One or another of the papers intimated that in France there was some disappointment that Hitler had not spoken on German foreign policy and that he had announced the return of the S. A. (storm troops) after the July leave, but these criticisms were not allowed to darken an otherwise bright picture.

So far as official Germany is concerned, the revolt of June 30 is a closed chapter—so much closed that the government apparently will not even bother to supply the list of those who lost their lives.

One informant, usually reliable, said Hitler put his foot down when publication of the list was suggested, saying "I will not do the traitors that honor."

Another version was that nobody knows the exact number of the killings, there having been a number of cases of private revenge beside the official executions.

The session of the reichstag before which Hitler spoke constituted the last major political event before the summer holidays. Most of the higher government officials are in the country with families, left today, or are about to leave, and all the schools are closed for the month.

Hitler himself remains in Berlin, at least until Monday, when he is to receive the protestant Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, who will present a report on his efforts to win the German church.

The excitement of recent weeks has so weighed upon the people generally that there seems to be a general desire to adjourn politics for a while.

The matter concerning a German protest against the utterances by General Hugh S. Johnson, exhorting the recent Nazi executions, seemed to be at rest.

Well-known circles were represented as feeling that the chancellor's speech effectively supported the protest into the German embassy at Washington against Johnson's intemperate attack on the necessity for his drastic action beyond the perambulation of a doubt.

Remembrance Week. The German public, whatever its thoughts in private, was not insensible to the grim warning that firing squads would be called into action again if necessary to hold Hitler's rule over Germany.

The significance of that section of the speech of Der Fuehrer was pointed out into the German public so hard by his driving oratory that they will not forget quickly the phrase "every one is to know for all future times that it is not only a matter of attack against the state certain death will be his lot."

The chancellor's mention of Germany's economic situation and his assertion to the world that German ingenuity would make the reich self-sufficient if necessary in raw materials, apparently had produced no reaction internally.

Harrison in Germany. Financial circles focused their attention on conversations in Berlin by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and Hjalmar Schacht, head of the reichsbank.

The substance of their conversations, while it was safely assumed to concern the financial future of Germany, remained undisclosed. Harrison is here for three days, following his conversations at Paris and Basel, Switzerland, and will board the Europa at Bremer-Haven Tuesday to return to the United States.

Harrison today re-emphasized to the press his strict confinement to the role of financial observer, declining a statement. He repeated his previous assertion that his European visit was without plan or mission aside from gathering information he deems essential.

His conjecture here, however, the possibility of devaluation of the mark was again prominent in view of the belief that Schacht is waiting patiently for the dollar and the pound to become stabilized in terms of each other before doing anything about the mark.

Peoples' Court. A sign of return to normality was the interest manifested in formal inauguration of the newly-created peoples' court.

In the beautifully decorated former Prussian diet building, now the seat of the new court, the inaugural session was conducted by Minister of Justice Franz Guertner, who swore the 32 judges recently appointed by Hitler into office.

The chancellor's slashing offensive on traitors and storm troop mutineers yesterday provided a startlingly suitable background for inauguration of the court, whose sole function is to handle high treason cases.

Roberts, Bell To Open Offices Here This Week

Two candidates for statehouse offices will open downtown headquarters in Atlanta this week. They are Columbus Roberts, of Columbus, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, and Madison Bell, of Cartersville, candidate for comptroller-general.

Mr. Roberts' offices will be in the Piedmont hotel. He plans to continue his offices at Columbus at least for the time being. Mr. Roberts has not announced who will be in charge of the headquarters here.

Mr. Bell's headquarters will be in the Ansley hotel. He said Saturday that the offices would be in charge of Jesse Hall, Atlanta lawyer, and W. D. Brannon, of this city, former president of the Georgia division of the Travelers Protective Association.

The candidate said he expected to make up his full ticket at a luncheon at the hotel.

The opening of offices by Mr. Roberts and Mr. Bell will make three headquarters which are open in Atlanta hotels as Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, one of Governor Talmadge's two opponents, has had headquarters at the Piedmont hotel for several weeks. Tom Linder, of Hazlehurst, also a candidate for commissioner of agriculture, has had offices on Capitol square for several weeks.

Other candidates have made no announcement regarding their headquarters.

Producers of Turpentine and Rosin Who Enter Farm Pact Get Loans.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—Producers of gum turpentine and gum rosin participating in the farm administration marketing agreement will be eligible to loans totaling $6,000,000. The administration announced today that upon its recommendation the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had made that sum available to the Commodity Credit Corporation. Loans, to be made on warehouse receipts representing gum turpentine

They will be made on this basis: 48 cents per gallon for gum turpentine in tanks, and for gum rosin $4.50 per commercial barrel of 280 pounds for Grade H or better, $4.25 per commercial barrel for Grades G and F, $4 per commercial barrel for Grades E, D and B.

Remarkable Run Made With New Airflow DeSoto

Crossing America on a car average of 21.412 miles to the gallon of gasoline, an Airflow De Soto sedan has just established a new transcontinental economy record under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, according to word received here Saturday by the McCord-Johnson Motor Company, of 486 West Peachtree street, N. W., De Soto distributors in this section.

The 21.412 miles to the gallon of gasoline was averaged on a 3,019-mile trip from New York to San Francisco, according to the report. It used a total of 145.975 gallons of gasoline.

Running through sand and rainstorms, from sea level to more than 7,000 feet elevation, the Airflow completed the test without a mechanical adjustment of any kind.

Harry Hartz, famous race driver, was behind the wheel. He was accompanied by Lee Oldfield, official A. A. A. representative. Mr. Oldfield held the keys to the locked gasoline tank and kept an official record of the amount of gasoline used on the journey.

Three large corporations, the De Soto Motor Corporation, the Socony Vacuum Oil Company, Inc., and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, sponsored the test run.

"The run was not an attempt to break any speed records," Elie McCord, of the local distributing firm, stated. "It was a test to demonstrate the small cost of a trip across the country in a modern Airflow car at normal driving speed."

The elapsed time for the trip was 106 hours 7 minutes. Actual running time was 82.02 hours. The car averaged 37.9 miles an hour, running time.

The record-making car, it is announced, was selected at random from the show floor of a Detroit De Soto dealer by Eddie Eberburn, regional director of the A. A. A. in Detroit. It was taken apart under the supervision of A. A. A. officials, who checked all parts to make sure they conformed strictly with standard specifications.

Announcement of the economy record run was made by L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the De Soto Motor Corporation, following receipt of telegrams from the west coast after completion of the test.

Auburn Convertibles In Special Display At W.C. Denny Motors

With the return of sunny days many motorists feel the urge to put down the top of their car and drive in the invigorating breeze.

Just how easily the open sunshine may be enjoyed by the motorist is shown in the convertible Auburn models which the W. C. Denny Motors is displaying this week especially to acquaint the motoring public with the joys and advantages of driving a convertible car.

These Auburn convertible cars are available in both two and five-passenger models and are produced in both the six and eight-cylinder lines. The windshields on both the phaeton and the cabriolet are unusually wide and may be lowered when the top is down. Two or three additional passengers may be accommodated in the rumble seat of the cabriolet. Interior of both cars is finished in genuine soft, pliable leather in tone to harmonize with the coloring of the car. Tops are Burbank.

Both the phaeton sedan and cabriolet models are very easy in appearance and are obtainable in many attractive colors. They have an especial appeal to the sportsman and to youth. Chrome plate is greatly in evidence in the custom models.

In extending a special invitation to the public to look at the new convertible models this week W. C. Denny, the local Auburn dealer, declared the year-round models would be found a revelation in the ease with which the tops may be lowered and the Auburn converted into an open car.

"The convertible Auburn has established its exclusive identity, with its fresh atmosphere, trim and graceful lines, and its decided appeal of youth," said Mr. Denny. "With warm, sunny days the motorist can revel in any sunbath setting. A matter of only a few seconds and your top is back up for protection in case of inclement weather."

"If the wind is too strong, the windows of the phaeton sedan may be raised independently, both in front and rear compartments, such an arrangement permitting the motorists to ward off the wind and yet have the full sunlight. Windows may also be raised independently in the cabriolet."

"The tops of the phaetons this year when down leave the lines smooth and unbroken. Tops of the cabriolets disappear in a recessed space."

"With the relaxation afforded by fresh air and sunshine, together with the smooth riding comfort of the Auburn, a drive in the convertible model leaves one refreshed at the end of the drive, instead of fatigued as is so often the case," the Auburn dealer said.

New American Oil Distributors and Dealers

Left to right, D. W. Winfree, president of National Products Oil Company; C. B. Whitaker, president of the C. D. Whitaker Company; C. M. Hall, Buckhead Tire and Battery Service; R. H. Patrick and V. E. Haliburton, of the Haliburton-Patrick Tire and Battery Service. The National Products Oil Company is the oldest fuel oil distributors in the south, and under the direction of Mr. Winfree has grown to the extent that today its warehouses cover over 150,000 square feet of space for supplies for its dealers throughout this territory. Mr. Whitaker, Atlanta's newest gasoline and oil distributor, while new in this particular line of the business, has already won his spurs in appointing many new independent dealers to be served by his company. Messrs. Patrick and Haliburton just recently opened their one-stop service station to serve the Inman Park and Druid Hills sections. C. M. Hall is celebrating the opening of his new Buckhead Tire & Service Station on Peachtree road at Buckhead.

All these stations have recently contracted for the American Oil Company products and reports indicate an assurance of their success.

Dodge Dealers 76 Per Cent Ahead Of 1933 Deliveries

DETROIT, July 14.—The week ending June 30 and marking the end of the first half of the present year, proved another profitable week for dealers of Dodge Brothers Corporation. During that six-day period, Dodge dealers' retail deliveries accounted for 5,280 passenger cars and 1,067 commercial cars and trucks, or for a total of 6,347 vehicles—as against 6,197 deliveries chalked up for the preceding week.

A summary of retail sales reported by Dodge dealers for the first six months of 1934 shows delivery of 122,620 passenger cars and trucks—an increase of 76 per cent over sales recorded for the corresponding period of 1933, during which 69,688 vehicles were delivered.

Segregation of Dodge truck sales from the delivery total achieved from January 1 to June 30 of the present year shows the remarkable truck business increase of 272.5 per cent—or 22,423 truck deliveries as against 6,019 made between January 1 and June 30 last year.

The delivery figures given represent only new car sales and are closely approached by additional sales of used cars, of which Dodge dealers closed 5,628 during the latest report week.

"While obvious factors might ordinarily tend to make inroads on sales figures for the week including the Fourth of July," observes A. vanDer Zee, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers Corporation, "the likelihood is that such inroads will be offset by accelerated buying incident to recently announced reductions in the prices of all Dodge models as well as by increased business such as usually precedes the Fourth, especially if good weather prevails. Our dealers found themselves in a uniquely favorable position about this time last year, when their sales volume, instead of undergoing the usual tapering-off process, kept going up. While the 1934 season does not exactly duplicate the economic trade conditions of last year, there is more than one reason for the expectation of a steady, if not actually rising, summer business."

ALLEGED LIQUOR CAR WRECK INJURES TWO

Two men were injured, one seriously, early Saturday morning when an alleged liquor car was driving sideswiped a truck at Red Oak, according to county police reports. County police found both men unconscious and took them to Grady hospital, where they were revived, and gave their names as J. W. Hawes and A. Goldstein, both of a Ponce de Leon avenue address. The latter was seriously hurt and was taken to Fulton Tower, where he was later released under a $300 bond, on a liquor charge. Hawes was admitted to the hospital suffering from a broken arm and possible internal injuries. His condition was reported as serious.

Police said they found five quarts of gin and 32 pints of grey whiskey in the car occupied by the two.

PROMINENT LAW FIRM GOES TO NEW OFFICES

Removal of the law offices of Harold Hirsch and Marion Smith from their present location to their new offices at 1045 Hurt building effective July 16, was announced Saturday by the two attorneys.

Airflow DeSoto Makes Fuel Economy Record

Crossing the country with an average of 21.412 miles to the gallon of gasoline on an American Automobile Association sanctioned 3,019-mile trip from New York to San Francisco, this Airflow De Soto, pictured, is credited with establishing a new transcontinental economy fuel record. Harry Hartz, famous race driver, shown at the wheel, drove the sedan. He was accompanied by Leo Oldfield, official A. A. A. representative, who held the keys to the locked gasoline tank and kept an official record of the amount of gasoline used. News of the record-breaking test was received here Saturday by the McCord-Johnson Motor Company, De Soto distributors in this section.

These men direct the sales and service activities of the Guy Henderson Tire Sales and Service, Inc., dealers in West End for General tires and American Oil Company products. Guy Henderson and Mr. Malcolm, owners of the business, direct the sales, while Huntsinger and C. D. Henderson are in charge of service and lubrication.

MACON GIRL SAVED AFTER 100-MILE RACE

A hundred-mile race against time, climaxed by a delicate operation with a fluoroscope, saved the life Saturday of Miss Anna Faye Brown, 13, daughter of a prominent Macon citizen.

The girl swallowed a pin Saturday morning while dressing and attempts to have the pin removed in Macon were unsuccessful as the necessary instruments for the operation were not available. The girl was then rushed to Georgia Baptist hospital and the operation was performed without delay.

The girl's condition Saturday night was reported as being "fine."

FINAL EXAMINATIONS AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Summer school at Atlanta University will be concluded this week with final examinations covering the six weeks' study on Thursday and Friday, it was announced by Director John P. Whittaker. The session has been one of the most successful in the history of the institution with an enrollment of 456 students.

Professor Kemper Harrell has arranged a musical program as a feature of the closing week in which a chorus of 40 students, accompanied by Willie Mae Perkins, St. Petersburg, Fla., soprano, will sing a Mendelssohn selection, "Hear My Prayer."

CHEF AT RESTAURANT SHOT TWICE BY NEGRO

W. D. Scott, 60, of Forrest Park, was seriously wounded by J. T. Ellis, a negro dishwasher, who opened fire on him with a small revolver during the noon rush hour of a local restaurant Saturday.

Police said that Scott, a chef, reprimanded the negro during the morning and that Ellis left early to return about 1 o'clock with a pistol. Without warning he emptied the pistol, two bullets striking Scott in the upper left leg and going into the groin, according to Grady attaches. A witness, to whom Scott was talking at the time of the shooting, told police the negro's name and said he escaped from the rear of the kitchen. He is being hunted by police.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 15, 1934.

UN-AMERICAN LEADERSHIP.

It is said that communistic influences are leading the strike on the Pacific coast, centered at San Francisco, which threatens to tie up the business of the city and bring about a shortage of food and milk.

Many a red herring has been drawn through many strikes. But this one is no red herring. The leader of the striking elements, which defy the president of the longshoremen, the original strikers, is an avowed communist.

The typical communist influence is at work. There is no effort being made to settle the differences between the longshoremen and the companies employing them. The communist temporarily has the striking elements in control. He seems to have succeeded in efforts to bring all labor into a sympathetic strike. The men who originally struck have been lost sight of. The communist efforts to tie up the entire city and create chaos and necessitate armed interference is typical.

State troops have already been called in. The city is facing a serious shortage of foodstuffs. Sailing vessels are idle in the harbor. Passenger traffic is being routed in other directions.

All because in the month of May the longshoremen decided they would strike until differences regarding the conduct of "the hiring halls" were settled. The "hiring halls" are the halls where the men are engaged for work.

This should have been fairly simple to settle. It probably would have been settled before the end of the month but for the efforts of the communistic element which took control.

They do not want the strike settled. They seek to enlarge and prolong it. The worker is lost sight of entirely as the communist leaders seek to create more discord. The president of the striking longshoremen admits he and his organization are now helpless, saying, "The communist party, led by Harry Bridges, is in control of the San Francisco situation."

The government's strike board is fighting desperately to bring about arbitration and a settlement. But, as stated before, those in control do not seem to want a settlement. They do not care if suffering among the workers or the residents of San Francisco ensue. They are working for the communist party, not for labor or the rights of the longshoremen who have been lost sight of.

Such communistic leadership is vicious. The administration is, and has been, friendly to labor. The strike board could work out a satisfactory settlement with the longshoremen. But the issue is now one of communism.

The American people are a patient people. They have permitted the communist party, which has for its purpose the upsetting of the government, wide latitude. The undesirable alien element should be deported. The San Francisco situation, with the communist leader in temporary control, is an example of what may be expected. The worker, the citizens and all the functions of government are ignored and endangered by the destructive policy pursued by the communist leaders.

It is a shameful reflection on those engaged that they should have so far forgot their own country and the efforts of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his administration to set at rights all such disputes that they should permit themselves to be led so far astray by an alien and un-American leadership.

The only respect shown nowadays for age is when it's old whisky.

FAR EASTERN PROBLEM.

"What lies ahead in the far east, a problem that has confronted the world powers for half a century, has become increasingly important in its bearing upon the political tranquility and economic prosperity of the world," states Francis W. Clarke, in the first of a series of articles on this subject to be found in another page of this issue.

Mr. Clarke, who is assistant to the editor of The Constitution, and one of a group of distinguished journalists sent to the far east in 1929 by the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace, is now making a second survey of conditions in that section of the world for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

He finds China "still the helpless, and almost hopeless, giant of the world's family of nations, whose progress has been backward, rather than forward, during the past decade; with internecine warfare going on almost continually, and bandits riding almost at will, looting and butchering helpless people. There are practically no highways, schools or sanitation, and, in all, the lot of the earth's most hopeless people is, if such a thing is possible, even worse than it was under the empire."

Contrasted with this condition of a once great nation now going backward, Mr. Clarke shows how Japan has advanced during the past 50 years to the point where she must be recognized as one of the world's great powers, not only in matters referring to the far east, but in a partition of the world's trade.

"A half-century ago," he says, "Japan had no public schools and the people were largely illiterate. Now 96 per cent of the people are literate and 99 1/2 per cent of children of school age are in schools which, from grammar grades to universities, have no superior in any country."

It is a well-known fact that territorial Japan does not have sufficient area for natural expansion, and her backing of the so-called independent state of Manchukuo is regarded as simply a dependency to be settled and controlled by Japan. That is one of the points to be clarified, and it will be made clear when other nations attempt to carry on commercial relations with the nation which Japan is believed to have created as a buffer state between her and Russia, and as a means of invasion of China at some time in the future.

In addition to the political questions which in time will have to have the attention of world powers, Mr. Clarke points out the problem that has arisen over the ever-increasing volume of Japanese exports. With low-priced labor, she is able to undersell other countries, and has invaded the markets in South American countries, Australia and the United States to an extent that has become alarming.

"The stopping of this destructive competition is a ticklish job," writes Mr. Clarke, "and is not to be gained through the simple expedient of building prohibitive tariff walls. Japanese textiles are flooding the United States, but Japan is now a large purchaser of American cotton. Should her mills turn exclusively to Indian and Egyptian growers for their raw cotton, the cotton growers of the south would be seriously affected."

A trained observer and able commentator, Mr. Clarke's series of articles will reveal an illuminating picture of the far east and its problems, which sooner or later will be on the world program for settlement. A knowledge of them will be of great value to the people of the United States when that time comes.

AUGUST IN GERMANY.

Those outside Germany interested in that country's future will await the coming of August with more than ordinary interest.

The "vacation" of the socialist army of "storm troopers" will be over with the coming of August. Then will come the question of how Hitler will handle the restoration of this private army.

It is estimated that about one-third of the 2,000,000 men making up this army were formerly communists. Another third is made up of out-of-work people and soldiers of fortune. The other third is composed of real Nazis.

It is believed by reliable correspondents in Germany that Hitler intends to reduce this army to one of about 500,000, keeping only those who are simon-pure Nazis.

This would immediately assure the dictator, whose purge of blood shocked the world, of an army on which he could rely with assurance. It would, at the same time, place in the field of opposition some 1,500,000 men used to being kept in comfort and in a mood to do something about remaining that way.

Before Hitler assumed control there were estimated to be some 17,000,000 socialists and about 6,000,000 communists. Those people are there today. They have remained quiet and silent to protect their lives. But the material is there to create opposition to the national socialists should the opportunity present itself. It is likely to come when Hitler reduces his Nazi army or storm troopers and leaves a million and a half of them on their own.

Meanwhile, the economic situation grows steadily worse. Even the Nazis admit it. The recent "purging," which the world very properly viewed as wholesale murder, left the Hitler regime with fewer friends than it once had. There is no friendly nation of importance. There is nowhere to turn for a loan.

The mills of the gods are grinding!

CONSTITUTION SCHOLARSHIPS.

Attention of Georgia youths is called to an article on another page of this issue, which announces that seven deserving and well-qualified Georgia boys will be awarded full or partial scholarships to the Riverside Military Academy at Gainesville, Ga., for the 1934-35 school year, by The Atlanta Constitution.

The Constitution takes great pleasure in awarding these scholarships, and in doing so gives seven of the most deserving and best-rounded young men in the state an opportunity of being enrolled as students in the largest military preparatory school in the United States.

Established in 1907, Riverside Military Academy has had an enviable record for the past 27 years. Following the most rigid government inspection on June 1, 1934, the academy won for the twelfth consecutive year the coveted distinction of being designated by the United States war department as an honorary military school, and was the only school in the south between Virginia and New Mexico to win this distinction so many times in succession.

The article on another page gives full instructions on how the applicants for the scholarships shall proceed in order to qualify for the final examinations that will decide the winners.

This excellent opportunity for scholarly advancement is certain to arouse great interest among the youth of the state, and The Constitution will take pride in the splendid young men who will be selected as a result of its offer to aid in the education of Georgia boys in a splendid Georgia institution of learning.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS.

It is to be regretted that those responsible for laying out the streets of Atlanta were not able to peer into the future and see the traffic problems that beset the city today.

A few more feet off the frontage of unnecessarily deep lots, added to the present widths of streets, would have simplified the problems that started with automobile transportation and has grown steadily worse with the increase in number of cars.

But we have the narrow streets, and we have the multiplicity of automobiles, so it is to be hoped that the present traffic survey will develop a solution that will come as near as possible suiting the police, traffic department, the city's businessmen and the drivers of automobiles.

Of course the ideal solution from the viewpoint of fast-moving traffic would be a yellow curb stripe on both sides of streets having car tracks. But this parking prohibition would carry us back to the period when everybody rode the street cars, and that would not suit automobile owners. The many changes that have been made in parking regulations attest to that fact.

Neither is all-day parking on a busy thoroughfare a satisfactory solution, for there are so many who will use the street as a parking place, thus shutting out the driver who desires to park for a few minutes, or causing him to risk double parking.

The recent change in parking restrictions was a change for the better, at least until a definite solution of the matter is reached. Curb painted yellow by the traffic department were augmented by persons or firms which occupied property, who bought a can of 10-cent paint and put a barrier in front of their places. In time the average driver could not tell which was prohibited by traffic regulations, so he proceeded to ignore all—and frequently those adjacent to fire plugs and street car stops.

Widening some streets by narrowing the sidewalks would aid in instances, provided white lines were drawn to indicate parallel parking, and then see that autos were parked inside the lines. But it would be useless to attempt this unless the lines were kept bright and drivers made to understand that they must obey the rules.

An instance of this is Edgewood avenue from Butler street to Boulevard. Some years ago the city spent a large sum of money to make this strip of Edgewood wider, but the advantage is nullified by cars being parked at an angle at such frequent intervals that only dare-devil drivers of speedy cars will chance passing a street car and beat it to some automobile the rear end of which is protruding beyond the danger line.

The parking situation is Atlanta's biggest traffic problem. The general laws regarding the operation of automobiles are about as comprehensive as could be devised; what is needed in this respect is a larger detail of officers to enforce them with such rigidity that drivers will learn that they must obey them—even if there is no officer in sight.

RAIL MEN GET PAY HIKE.

One million railway workers, of all classes excepting executive officials, will receive $4,000,000 additional pay every month, beginning with July, as a result of the restoration of 2 1/2 per cent of the 10 per cent wage cut to which they agreed over a year ago.

Under the terms of an agreement reached between labor and road managements in April, they will receive another 2 1/2 per cent in January, and the 5 per cent balance in April, 1935. This $4,000,000 will aid materially in the recovery process, for a large part of it will be used by railroaders and their families in buying articles which they have denied themselves during the past year.

Agreeing to the plan adopted in April demonstrates the sound judgment of the railway workers in accepting a graduated restoration of wages, rather than precipitating a long and costly strike—costly to the roads, the workers and the entire country.

The president's approval of the railway workers' pension measure, passed at the last session of congress, is also hailed by the men as a forward step in satisfactory relations between the roads and their workers.

The pensions legislation provides for the deduction of 2 per cent from the workers' salaries and 4 per cent from the carriers' pay rolls to set up a fund which is expected to amount to at least $9,000,000 per year.

Men will be eligible for retirement at the age of 65, on completion of 30 years' service with a carrier, or for disability. The amount of the pension will depend upon their previous earnings, but is not to exceed $120 a month, or more than two-thirds of their average pay.

It is expected that operation of the age limit will retire over 100,000 of the older men, which will create places for younger men, and provide work for men who have been laid off during the depression.

IS THIS A DREAM OR REALITY?

If the famous inventor, Nikola Tesla, is not romancing with dreams at the age of 78, he is on the verge of announcing a discovery to the Geneva conference that will go far in forwarding the interests of world peace than armament reduction or pacts against war.

The aged inventor declares that he has discovered force rays which can be set like a wall around a nation's boundaries that will render it impenetrable to military attack.

The new rays, he said, would be made of particles, microscopically fine, driven electrically and projected in the form of vast curtains miles high and 100 miles in length. Their effect would be devastating, he claims, and thousands of airplanes flying into these curtains would be destroyed.

He gave no details of the nature of his apparatus, stating that the invention was in the interests of world-wide peace, and as such there was only one body that could properly consider it.

In these days of marvels one hesitates to regard such an invention as just a dream of one who thinks deeply and ahead of even our advanced modern progress, for too often the thought of today is the reality of tomorrow.

Some believed the marvels of applied electricity were exhausted 50 years ago, but the wonders of today disclose that they were wrong. And if Tesla should climax his interesting and useful career with a device that would act to practically end conflicts between nations, the world will enshrine him as one of the greatest men that ever lived.

Nothing contributes to the spirit of unrest like a hard mattress.

The question now is to be an accidental or accidental nation.

All the world is a stage, but only the favored few get the spotlight.

Child welfare should include some of the infant industries.

Cuba is becoming as well known for her Cain as her cane.

It takes a healthy pocketbook to stand a health resort.

People are increasing their yearnings.

Though France has refused to come across, two of her flirts did.

The Happenings of The Church World

BY HERMAN L. TURNER,
Atlanta, Ga.
Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Julius Richter (in the Moslem World for July), the noted professor of mission in Berlin University, gives 10 handicaps which compels a certain amount of work:

- (1) The depression which compels a certain amount of work.
- (2) Loss of prestige to Christendom due to brutalities of war-psychosis.
- (3) Un-Christian and anti-Christian character of science and technique, the valuable fruits of which non-Christian peoples desire.
- (4) Competition between Roman and Protestant missions.
- (5) New advances of Islam.
- (6) Bolshevistic communism.
- (7) Nationalism, especially its "anti-foreign" phase.
- (8) Increasing restrictions placed upon mission work by non-Christian governments.
- (9) Immoral lives of so many representatives of white ruling classes.
- (10) Institutionalism, which absorbs so many people and so much money and hampers aggressive evangelism.

In 1739 Benjamin Franklin wrote in his Pennsylvania Gazette as follows: "On Thursday last, the Rev. Mr. Whitefield left this city and was accompanied to Chester by about 150 horsemen, and preached there to about 7,000 people. On Friday he preached at 'Willings' Town' (Wilmington) to about 5,000 and on Saturday at New Castle to about 2,500, and the same evening at Christian Bridge to about 2,000. On Sunday, at White Clay Creek, he preached twice, resting about half an hour between the sermons, to about 8,000, of whom 3,000, is computed, came on horseback. It rained most of the time, and yet they stood in the open air."

The Christian Century makes the following comment regarding "United Presbyterians Refuse to Unite": "Parallel lines, it has often been remarked, meet only in infinity. Perhaps that is the reason for the lack of convergence of the two Presbyterian lines represented by the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the United Presbyterian Church in North America. The general assembly of the latter body, in session at Oxford, Ohio, rejected the union proposal which was approved last month by the general assembly of the former at Cleveland. By a vote of 113 to 113 the opponents of union succeeded in defeating the proposed union plan to the 67 presbyteries of the church for their action. The vote followed a day of parliamentary wrangling with the anti-merger group in the presidency, though having seated Rev. J. Alvin Orr, Pittsburgh fundamentalist, in the moderator's chair. Immediately after the new moderator was seated the opponents of union moved to read a declaration from two presbyteries and five congregations opposing the merger. They represented in all only about 10 per cent of the 250,000 members of the church. It is to be hoped that such a small minority may not permanently succeed in postponing the presentation of this important matter to the membership of the United Presbyterian churches. Opinion on church union is vastly more favorable and incisive among the laity than among the ministers and church leaders. It is just possible that these laity would have something to say on this proposal that would open ecclesiastical eyes to the fact that a new day is dawning in relations between Presbyterians churches."

A new type of campus religious association has been formed at Princeton College, Carlisle, Pa. Protestants, Catholics and Jews have united in an all-college committee on religious affairs. Many of the activities of the committee are of a social service and chapel services, are conducted jointly.

"Protestantism and Jewry Join Cities in Move to Ban," according to The Christian Century, "The League of Decency, launched by the Catholic hierarchy, against filthy and anti-social films has touched levels of ecclesiastical intolerance and religious divisions is demonstrated by the widespread response of both Protestants and Jews to the Catholic leadership in this movement. The qualifications of any kind the proposal to withhold patronage from indecent pictures is being backed by organizations representing both Catholic and Protestant bodies. The executive committee of the federal council of churches, speaking for 28 denominations, recommended that the League of Decency be approved by the Catholic effort, approved the pledge of abstinence and left actual signature to the individual churches in their respective territories. The League of Decency, with its features and questionable forms of advertising as well as the films themselves in its condemnation, is a necessary step in breaking up the system of bribery and blind-selling if the local movie theater is to be put in a position where it can be responsive to public taste and where public taste is not repressed with discrimination, and suggested that the third Sunday in next October be set apart by the churches as a day for discussing the motion pictures, its potential value to society and religion, and the issues involved in improving the social quality of the films. The council announced that it proposes to issue a national photoplay review service" to aid the membership of Protestant churches in their purpose to exercise moral discrimination in their patronage of pictures. From all parts of the country we are receiving reports of action by local and regional denominational groups, both lay and clerical, expressive of strong determination to co-operate in making the ban on indecency effective. Some of the resolutions adopted refer gratefully to the long crusade of the Christian Century in defining the issue and bringing it to a focus in public opinion. The central conference of Jewish rabbis meeting in Wernersville, Pa., adopted a vigorous resolution approving the movement and appointed a committee to co-operate with Protestants and Catholics. The Atlanta Christian community recently gave its approval of the plan and will co-operate to the fullest in making the ban on indecency effective.

A correspondent from England writes about "The Bishop Discusses a Unitarian Preacher." "In the upper house of the convocation of York last week, the bishop of London, in a speech, invited Unitarian preachers to preach in the Anglican church should be invited in the future. The bishop of Liverpool defended his action in inviting Dr. Jacks, a Unitarian, to preach against the inherited prejudice which excluded Unitarians from the Christian name. It was an attempt to re-new intercommunion in terms of a philosophy long since discarded."

Most of the gigolos are chorus boys and vaudeville actors out of jobs. Some of them are former Wall Street customers' men and a fair sprinkling of them have college degrees and can look back on glamorous careers on the football field.

Not admit Unitarians to their company. If the free churches did not why should the Anglicans? New York Skylines

NEW YORK, July 14.—A few years ago it was possible if your ancestors were in order, to be invited to join a country club in Westchester county.

You paid as high as $10,000 for an initiation fee. You paid $50 or $80 for a single dinner without lunch refreshments. You paid up to $75 a day for a room. You were charged 25 cents for a shoe shine and a shave cost 50 cents. Then you paid $1,500 a year extra. That was for the privilege of paying for all these things.

That's all over now and the less refined methods developed in the night club of the prohibition era are in fashion. All you have to do to get into a Westchester country club today is walk in with money in your fists. That still makes it pretty exclusive, by and large, and taking affairs as a whole, but it's a relief to leave your ancestors home and something of a pleasure not to have to pay cash for the privilege of paying cash for what the country club has to offer.

Those that are still around really are not country clubs any more. They're rooming houses and many of them are being run by gentlemen who have a social acquaintance with society is limited to the members of the social register who are fond of slumming. These gentlemen, however, demonstrated their ability to attract hordes of people with money in their fists during the dry years and the harassed members of the prohibition era are called them in to do their business.

The Hommocks Country Club, now the defendant in an injunction proceeding, typifies the situation which is developing in Westchester since the coming of summer. This club saw when it was established as the center of a residential community in which a man was not allowed to spend less than $75,000 for a shack. Membership was restricted to 200. The initiation fee was $4,000 and the waiting list was long.

In this seedy year, Nick and John busted up from Broadway to save the club from the rocks. Nick and John got very busy and so did the club, under the name of the Simpson canon. Now Roger Steffen, a vice president of the National City Bank and an enforced neighbor of Nick and John, points out to a supreme court that these two gentlemen were convicted of maintaining a public nuisance under the prohibition law and wants an injunction.

If he gets it, it won't mean a thing to suddenly exclusive tag along with the North Castle Golf and Tennis Club. They'll go right on accepting money from the fists of those who have it and mightily glad to get it, thank you.

TRIALS OF THE GIGOLO.

Gigolos are very hard-working men. They always have to reply to the same question: "Why does a man like you take a job like this?" Most of the women they tug and haul around the city's dance floors are bright and intelligent and the code (not N.R.A.) demands politeness at all times. If you think that isn't hard, try it some evening.

The gigolos at the local night clubs average about $50 a week. This comes from tips, which start at $1 and soar all the way to $25. The usual method of paying a gigolo, if you are interested, is to roll the bill into a ball and give it to him while shaking his hand.

"The hardest part of the job," said one of them to us, "is being sympathetic and adapting your mood to the mood of the client. You might, for instance, be full of Burton's 'Anatomy of Melancholy' and the new laid of melancholy gossip. Neighborly gossip it must be. Say, I've learned more about husbands in one week than the average man learns in a lifetime. From all I hear, husbands seem to be a special kind of brute in pants."

Most of the gigolos are chorus boys and vaudeville actors out of jobs. Some of them are former Wall Street customers' men and a fair sprinkling of them have college degrees and can look back on glamorous careers on the football field.

The Children of Abraham

I. Thomas Carlyle insisted that "history is the lengthened shadows of the world's great men. This is the strangest of all truths. Each significant epoch of history has been ushered in by a great personality, who incarnated some great principle, personated a definite tendency of human life, or fleshed within his own person some challenging ideal. Thus he becomes the urge and inspiration of his generation, and the shadow may indeed be the prophecy of coming events. From this standpoint Abraham may be marked as one of the half dozen most significant men in the story of the human race.

Those who may be called the "fathers" of history were pioneers, discoverers, or leaders out of whose lives was indeed born something which was new to the race. Forever, identified with the name of Abraham will be, what was then new and revolutionary, the faith that there is but one God, and that he is the Father of all men. It is the fundamental faith in a man—any man—because a man is God-child and a human brother. So when one understands a man, he may be entertaining "an angel unawares."

One of the most revealing of all the Abrahamic stories is that of the entertainment of the angel disguised as a man, who prophesies the birth of a son. Here is the true philosophy of genuine hospitality. It is embodied in the old, "Entertaining an angel unawares." The angel comes in the form of a man, and faith in God as the Father of all men creates a presumption in his favor. He is God's child, and my brother, and so he is welcome. It is the fundamental faith in a man—any man—because a man is God-child and a human brother. So when one understands a man, he may be entertaining "an angel unawares."

Holds Older People Are Responsible for Attitude Of Today's Flaming Youth

Editor Constitution: Much is being said today about "Flaming Youth" and many suggestions made that our young people are not measuring up to the standards of a past generation. Without attempting to wage any crusade in favor of youth or any desire to make our young people any better, or worse than their elders, I am extremely interested in trying to see to face some facts.

First of all our world has been made by the elders, and children face what they have produced in the way of civilization. The conditions have been created by older people, and if they are not ideal it certainly is not altogether the fault of children. The impression that young folks are expected to engage in a tremendous responsibility.

Read the advertisements along our highways, on filling stations, and eating places, and beer and hard liquors would seem to be the one thing that should be drunk.

Swimming pools and places of amusement from the mountains to the seashore, give the impression that young folks are expected to engage in a tremendous responsibility.

Go into the courts and hear the cases tried for divorce and watch the conduct of the elders, and what could youth do in these times but wander away from the old-fashioned ideas concerning the marital relationship? Go to church and Bible school, even to day school, and watch what happens; see if children are made to live up to the ideas of righteousness that would produce the highest type of citizenship?

In other words our modern educators and parents would do well to tell again the story of the crab walking along the shore and his influence upon his offspring.

Many moving pictures are inclined to lead observers toward sex slurs rather than towards purity. Traveling around in autos unchaperoned at night, especially after midnight on the highways, give the impression that leads to questions. Who is responsible for this—the thoughtless young folks, or the elders who ought to know better?

Take the ideas of our young folks about politics—reading the papers and

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—

Bonds ended the week with a general advance of moderate proportions. Utilities, industrial and foreign issues, especially German, led the rise.

Trading was the slowest of the year, transfers totaling only $3,895,000 par value. This was the lowest volume since September 9, 1933. The Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point during the day to 87.2. This compared with 86.5 last Saturday.

German government issues rallied sharply on the report of a declaration of war by the Reich government, threatening the intent to discriminate against any creditors. Daves Plan 7s gained 1-1/2 points and Young Plan 5s 1-1/2 to 7-5/8. German bonds also gained moderate gains.

United States Treasury issues were inclined to ease slightly, although Federal Farm Mortgage and Home Owners Loan bonds were higher. The turnover in the government section amounted to only $300,000, compared with $900,000 a week ago.

A number of utility bonds, such as Utah Power & Light Co., Pennsylvania Power & Light 4-1/2s, New York Edison 5s and Laclede Gas 5s rose fractions to more than a point. Some industrial issues, such as American & Hudson Coal and Remington-Rand also advanced.

Railroad issues were irregular. Allegheny Corporation 5s of 1940, Santa Fe 4s of 1938, Union Pacific 4s and Lehigh Valley 4s were higher, while some New York Central, Southern Pacific and St. Paul issues declined.

Aside from German bonds, the feature of the foreign list was a further dip in most Argentine obligations.

Over Seas

By CHARLES E. HARNER,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

Adolf Hitler has taken "before history" responsibility for "the 24 hours of the bitter decision of my life," but the slight, impassioned leader now faces other responsibilities which are graver to the German people.

In his impassioned speech before the reichstag Friday night "der fuhrer" left virtually untouched his plans for Germany's financial future and her foreign policy.

An answer to these questions is sought throughout the world.

"If today I read in foreign newspapers that I am filled at present with deep apprehension over economic worries," Hitler said, "I can give but one answer: Yes."

Germany is planning a program to increase her shrunken foreign trade, at the same time making preparations for substitutes as if she were isolated.

Hitler warned: "If our trade balance becomes a passive one because of economic barriers raised in foreign markets or because of a political boycott, we shall, through our ability and thanks to the ingenuity of our inventors and chemists, find ways of making ourselves independent of imports of materials that we ourselves shall be in a position to create or substitute."

World disarmament leaders were disappointed that the chancellor made no reference to Germany's possible return to the League of Nations, upon which their hopes are kindled.

But, apparently, some declaration must come from Louis Barthou, astute French foreign minister, has met success in his lone drive to build up a series of defensive alliance pacts around Germany.

When Great Britain gave assurance she would support Barthou's plan for an eastern Locarno pact, guaranteeing peace in eastern Europe, Germany's hand apparently was forced.

Hitler's pledge that "in a few weeks the brown shirts will again be dominant on the German streets" came as a blow to some disarmament advocates, for France has insisted the stormers were in reality a military force.

France claims that the nazis, largely through the storm troops, have been steadily rearming in defiance of the treaty of Versailles.

125 Dead, 206 Missing In Japanese Floods

TOKYO, July 14.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty-five persons were known dead and 206 were missing today in floods which have swept over Assam.

More than 300 homes have been destroyed and nearly 15,000 partially inundated, said reports to the home ministry from prefectural offices.

Some 25,000 persons, it was estimated, are homeless.

Huge Blast Cripples Austrian Power Plant

VIENNA, July 15.—(Sunday)—(AP)—A powerful blast of dynamite at night wrecked an electric plant at Opponitz, in lower Austria, and for an hour stopped every street car in Vienna.

Another dynamite charge snapped a power line between the plant and Vienna, and for a time service of the Austrian radio was interrupted.

Authorities attributed the blasts to nazis, immediately started an energetic investigation to carry out Chancellor Dollfuss's demand for the repression of bombings.

Several sections of Vienna were plunged into darkness by the wrecking of the power plant. Most of the city, however, gets its current and light from another plant.

Excitement gripped the city as street cars came to a stop and police flew into action. At first it was supposed the blast had occurred in a warehouse, but it was some time before it was located definitely.

'Judges of Hell' Bomb Found in Paris Street

PARIS, July 14.—(AP)—Another bomb, still without the now familiar note from "the three judges of hell," was found today in a street in the southeast section of Paris.

Yesterday one was found in the base of a lamp post and police began an investigation of a renewal of the campaign of terror, which mysteriously ceased three weeks ago.

The bomb found today was placed before a block of apartment houses, but the fuse was not lighted. Presumably it was intended to frighten instead of to destroy.

The bomb was a simple iron cylinder eight inches long and two and a half in diameter with a fuse at the end. Police said it contained a yellow substance, presumably explosive, which was being examined in a laboratory.

Glass Missile Hurlled At King George, Queen

EDINBURGH, July 14.—(AP)—A bottle or a large glass landed with a loud pop behind the automobile in which King George and Queen Mary motored into Edinburgh today.

Authorities, who described the occurrence a "sensational incident," seized a man who stood at the rear of a crowd watching the royal couple pass. He was taken to the Bartsill police station, and it was understood he will appear in court Monday.

The king and queen were returning from Hamilton, where they had been taken to the Bartsill House here. A large force of police lined both sides of the highway to the race track to the city.

The glass struck the pavement a few yards behind the car in which their majesties rode.

State's Only Woman Mayor Charms Conferees at Meet

The mayor with more service than any other in Georgia, the only woman mayor in Georgia and the youngest mayor in Georgia here greet you. On the left is Mayor Shervette, of Austell; the lady is Mayor Reese, of Camak, and on the right is Mayor Foster, of Dallas. Shervette has served nine terms while Foster is but 28 years old. Everything but a beauty contest was held at the all-day session of Georgia mayors Saturday at the Ansley hotel. And the beauty contest probably would have been on the program, except that 224 of the 225 mayors present decided that for charm and popularity a unanimous vote would be cast for Mayor Reese, of Camak, Georgia.

Mayor Reese was elected to office in January by the whole populace of Camak with but two opposing votes. The dissenting voices belonged to the mayor's father and husband. For Mayor Reese is feminine, the only woman mayor in Georgia.

"I haven't had a single police case this year," she said proudly. "That's pretty good for a town of 400 people. The men say it's because they have to appear in court before a woman."

All of the mayors present from the oldest to the youngest agreed that any town would be lucky to have a woman mayor.

"I think I'll appoint a feminine mayor pro tem in my home town," sighed W. A. Foster, the 28-year-old mayor of Dallas, Ga. "They run the town anyway."

Film Censorship Effective Today

"Certificates of Purity" Are Issued for Number of Approved Movies.

HOLLYWOOD, July 14.—(AP)—The motion picture industry's self-censorship plan becomes formally effective tomorrow, but already a number of productions have been issued "certificates of purity." Some of these are for release during the coming week.

Joseph L. Breen, the one-man jury of movie morals, said today there is a disposition on part of all the studios to comply with the regulations of the new code administration.

"Instead of arguing about certain changes, as might be expected in some cases, the studios are really leaping over backwards," Breen said. "They are all willing to meet the regulations of the administration."

After viewing nearly 50 feature films, Breen said he demanded changes in some, which production heads immediately ordered.

One film will be almost completely remade. It was learned privately from the studio that the costumes of the star might be considered offensive.

Pictures in which Breen has asked changes will again be submitted to him when retakes and alterations are made. When they meet with his approval, they will be given certificates and released.

It became known today that a fine of $25,000 will be assessed against any member of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America found guilty of violating the code of ethics.

Specifically, the agreement—which is yet to be signed by all member companies to become effective—provides the fine in the event any member distributes or allows to be exhibited a picture which fails to receive a censorship certificate.

New Revolt Plot Bared in Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 14.—(AP)—A government communique revealed today a new anti-government plot has been uncovered at the military garrison in Plovdiv, less than two months after the coup d'etat which established a new regime.

The government announcement described the affair as a "communist" conspiracy.

The communique said "several dozen soldiers" were implicated and that about 50 persons had been thrown in jail.

It was with the co-operation of younger officers of the Bulgarian army that Kimpou Gueorguiev organized his coup d'etat of May 19 which placed him in the premiership.

Wilbert Robinson Charges Slander In Yarn By Mayor

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, president of the Atlanta Crackers, is looking for a good lawyer, but he wants him to serve first.

Mayor James L. Key is the object of the contemplated action—legal or punitive—which Robinson plans.

Key is charged with having libeled Robinson in a speech he made Saturday at a meeting of 300 Georgia mayors assembled on the roof of the Ansley hotel. Robinson says he is going to sue him then all if he decides he has been injured.

The Atlanta mayor's story in presenting the baseball magnate to the assembly ran something like this: "You know this guy once was a catcher on the Baltimore Orioles. He was a pretty good catcher, but he would have feuds and he can't run. He was in a particularly important game, and had a row with an op-found that Manchuria does not possess in sufficient quantities the raw materials absolutely necessary to her if she is not to be again relegated to the position of a third-rate power, is already casting about for other territory to conquer—presumably a further partition of China?

To be fair to the Japanese government, it has time and again unequivocally asserted that it never intends to annex Manchuria, that it will guarantee the open door in the new state and that it will never again take up arms unless attacked—but these are questions that must be settled by the diplomats of the world definitely and on a lasting basis before solidarity of conditions ever comes to the far east.

The Chinese situation is even more uncertain, with the entire collapse of its central government far from being an impossibility. In such event there is certain to be an immediate scramble by at least four great powers to secure their share of the pie, with Russia moving down from Siberia, Great Britain eastward from India and France, Canada and the United States.

Under such a condition it is to be expected that Japan, probably acting through Manchukuo, would move south of the Great Wall, thus creating a huge slice of territory to the area already controlled from Hankow.

JAPAN'S THREAT TO WORLD TRADE.

Back of this political phase of the far eastern situation is the greater threat of economic unrest throughout the world as the result of Japan's economic growth as an industrial and exporting nation.

It is a matter of fact, the chancelleries of the world are far more disturbed over this phase of the situation than they are over such matters as naval ratios and the recognition of Manchukuo.

During the past few years Japanese exports, in ever-increasing volume, have been flooding the markets of the earth and have practically driven out of many of the world's richest markets manufactured goods from Britain, America and the other great exporting nations.

The stopping of this destructive competition is a ticklish job and is not to be gained through the simple expedient of imposing prohibitive tariff walls. The case of Australia well illustrates this point. A part of the British empire, it has few industries and has formerly been one of the richest and most lucrative markets for goods manufactured in England. Now the Japanese have practically taken the market away from English manufacturers.

Japan's tariff wall is a tariff wall that Japan can retaliate by curtailing the purchase of the huge amounts of raw materials it now obtains annually from Australia. The export of these materials—wool, hides and similar products—is the backbone of Australian prosperity and the loss of the Japanese trade would largely paralyze the country's economic system.

Japanese cotton textiles are flooding the United States, but Japan is not openly buying the raw cotton from India and Egyptian growers for their raw cotton, the cotton growers of the south would face disaster.

These are some of many ramifications of the far eastern problem. It is in the hope that through direct expression of opinion by the American people a clarifying of the situation can be accomplished, that this series of articles is being undertaken.

Baby of Humble Tibetan Parents Is Acclaimed as New Dalai Lama

DARJEELING, Bengal, July 14.—(AP)—The prayers of 30,000 Tibetan souls that a reincarnated Dalai Lama would be found to rule over the Buddhist faith have been answered, said reports today from Lhasa, the capital of the Himalayas.

It was reported that a baby was found in a humble home in the remotest part of the mysterious mountain country whose tiny body holds the soul of the Buddhist pontiff, dead since December.

Should the report be true, it will be 15 years before the new Dalai Lama can actually assume the title "Patron of the Angels and All Living Things" and take active charge of 300,000 subjects of Lamasim.

It is the duty of Lamas to exorcise the "innumerable devils" with which tradition says Tibet is plagued.

Meanwhile, the picturesque palace of the Dalai Lama, "Potala," high on a rocky hill in the center of the forbidden city at Lhasa, awaits his successor.

This palace is a curious example of modernism in the midst of ancient mystical surroundings. Electric lights were installed by the late Dalai Lama, who died in 1933.

Reports reaching here said all of Tibet was in a furor over the discovery of the new Dalai Lama. For a nickname. She had not been seen about the house for several weeks until the morning of Friday the 13th.

The Tashi Lama, now in China, holds the belief that Tibet it held that the 13th year is wrong and that there are 17 reincarnations.

Friday, the 13th, is a Birthday Date Of Feline Siamese Quadruplets

Friday the 13th had its freakish happenings after all. Commonplace people and ordinary cats were not affected by the day of evil, but the daughter of Midnight had Siamese quadruplets, taken care of them. The four black and white kittens are joined together at the stomach. There are not open yet and their 16 legs are not very muscular, so they are confined to a cage on the floor of their home at 350 Mitchell street and new all day long.

Midnight, their coal-black maternal guardian, takes care of them. The mother is a wild young modern who has never been christened with even a nickname.

But Grandmother Midnight tries to make a mother for her daughter's misplanned litter. She is a very old cat. She overlooks their deformity and gives them the same attention she has given more normal litters. Probably she realized black cats can't expect much luck on Friday.

men will devote their efforts to securing the return of the cat to the furor, as it is generally realized that her presence is necessary to its success.

Arms Negotiations Will Be Resumed

GENEVA, July 14.—(AP)—The Geneva conference was committed today to another serious step in the settlement next September by the official convocation of the steering committee of disarmament.

Arthur Henderson, conference president, encouraged by the recent Franco-British conversations and the boom given to security pacts, officially called the committee to meet on the early days of the League of Nations assembly beginning September 10.

The eastern Locarno pact which France, England and Belgium signed in 1925, and which was regarded as a major factor in determining the progress of disarmament, was the subject of conversations between Henderson and a committee said:

"In the light of information concerning the progress of conversations between Henderson and a committee said: Between now and September states-

Mayors Discuss Motorcade

Mayors J. A. Horne, of Milledgeville, left, and Thomas C. Gamble, of Savannah, right, took time out Saturday during the sessions of the Georgia mayors meeting at the Ansley hotel to further perfect plans for the opening of the four-capitals highway October 12-15.

tion or coercion, but committees from the organization will appeal to the legislature for concessions, believing that the assembly, when informed of the "justice, equity and fairness of the contents, will cheerfully and liberally assist communities which are bearing an unjust burden of taxation without obtaining anywhere like a commensurate compensation."

In addition to Key the following officers representing every section of the state were named:

J. D. Ashley, Valdosta, first vice president; J. L. Smart, Macon; R. E. Allen Jr., Augusta; R. E. Armstrong, Albany; C. W. Moore, Gainesville; A. P. McKay, Rome; H. C. Smith, Columbus; A. C. Dudley, Athens, and J. M. Gardner, Brunswick, vice presidents not ranked.

Mayor James A. Fort, of Americus, was named treasurer, and J. C. Robinson, Atlanta, secretary.

The following were named as directors: S. T. Wright, Waycross; J. A. Carson, Barnesville; B. W. Boyd, Union Point; P. E. Cohen, Jessup; D. T. Bowers, Canton; G. W. Westmoreland, Jefferson; T. W. Tinsley, Cartersville; M. A. Chapman, Dublin; J. R. Brown, Cordale; Zachariah J. Gaines, K. T. Hines, Marietta; J. E. Drake, Bridgeville; W. E. Hewitt, Douglasville; Hugh Thurston, Thomaston; T. R. Luck, Carrollton; J. E. Cook, Cochran; H. R. Plamondon, Milledgeville; L. W. Pope, Douglas; H. C. Hatcher, Waynesboro; R. S. O'Neil, LaGrange; J. F. Norman, Moultrie; J. A. Horne, Milledgeville; M. Anderson, Perry; J. Doughterty, Ellijah; E. J. Pace, Dawson.

The resolutions committee, headed by Mayor Ed Rivers, of Lakeland, who also is speaker of the Georgia house, sidetracked every proposal seeking to embody the inflexible position in controversial matters. Rivers explained that the general home rule proposal of the committee embodied by implication that cities could do what they liked about Sunday amusements and prohibition regulations.

Mayor Key was empowered by the association to appoint a tax committee with a member from each of the 10 congressional districts to map a tax program to be submitted to the 1935 general assembly.

Amendment of the gasoline and motor tag laws to exempt municipalities and other governmental subdivisions from paying the taxes also was urged.

Among other recommendations were the following:

1. Amendment of the state highway act to empower and allow the state highway board to maintain highways through cities, where the route is a part of the city street systems.

2. Strengthen and clarify laws governing special licenses to indigent and disabled war veterans.

3. Request that cities be given adequate authority over operation of motor vehicles within their jurisdiction as a matter of public safety.

4. A constitutional amendment to acquire any municipality "which acquires, constructs, extends, repairs or improves any public utility to issue bonds beyond the general limits of bonded indebtedness prescribed by law, to be secured only by the property and revenues of such utility and a franchise for its operation in case of foreclosure."

5. To seek a liberal construction of NRA regarding city purchases of supplies and goods for the purpose of obtaining the lowest prices possible.

6. Rigid laws governing the possession of firearms, particularly machine guns, in a drive against lawlessness.

Members of the County Commissioners Association of Georgia were asked to work for a similar control of legislation in the resolution calling for "home rule of cities."

There also were passed thank-you resolutions to Mayor J. M. Gardner, of Brunswick.

Supporters of the Albany drive for the next meeting said they believed they would be awarded the convention with Macon being given an inside track on the 1935 session.

Albany Utilities.

Armstrong told of how Albany operates its own public utilities—power, gas and water.

He said that $250,000—enough money to bear all the expenses of the general government for the past three years with the exception of a school tax and sinking fund for the municipalities—has been collected. School taxes and sinking fund requirements, however, total 14 mills. The Atlanta rate is 15 mills.

The first business session of the morning was presided over by Alderman G. Everett Millican, of Atlanta, who is chairman of a special charter revision committee of council.

A special nominating committee, headed by Mayor Zack Arnold, of Fort Gaines, made the recommendations for the officers for the newly formed association. None of the recommendations were turned down. In fact, all were received with acclaim.

"I'm not able to give this job the time and attention it should have," Key said. "I don't want this convention to feel that I either expect or want this job. I rather think it should go to a younger man and to one from a smaller city."

"That's why we nominated Mayor Ashley, of Valdosta, to help you," Arnold interrupted. "We want you for this job."

"If that be the sentiment of this body, I'll do the best I can," Key said.

Clifford Ham, of Chicago, of the National Mayors Association, spoke during the morning, telling the group how it could affiliate with the national organization.

At the conclusion of his address, the body voted without dissent, to join.

Ham said he has recently attended five similar meetings in various states, but that Georgia was the most enthusiastic and most representative.

"Your mayors not only came here," he said, "they came to do something constructive."

REICH OPENS WAY FOR NEGOTIATIONS ON LOAN INTEREST

BERLIN, July 14.—(AP)—Germany opened the way to the United States today to effect a settlement under which interest may be paid on the Dawes and Young loans despite the reich moratorium.

Replying officially to Ambassador William E. Dodd in response to the American note of June 27, the government stated it has not the slightest intention of discriminating against the United States in the matter of debt transfers.

The German government said it was "ready to negotiate with the American government as with the governments of other countries relative to ways and means of making possible the servicing of the Dawes and Young loans."

The German reply was accompanied by a reminder that there seems to be no hurry about settling up negotiations similar to those conducted with Great Britain in London recently which resulted in a German agreement to pay English bonds.

It was pointed out that the next coupon payments on the loans in question are not due before October 15 and that the German government is not conditionally to the agreement reached with Britain during the London conference.

In case the three per cent funding bonds noted in the transfer conference communicated of May 29 were accepted by America, the German government would have to make the same contribution in the question of discrimination," the reply said.

It was made plain that should any such discrimination be based on currency and other countries involving new points, the reich would be willing to discuss with the United States similar treatment where the same consideration for all the circumstances."

Near-Cloudburst Hits Arid Arkansas Area

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 14.—(AP)—Rain of near-cloudburst proportions today came to the three-state sector hard hit by drought.

Coming a few hours before Fort Smith was expected to equal an all-time record for the day, the rain without rain, the downpour struck the adjacent Crawford county uplands and moved westward with reduced intensity into Sebastian county.

nah, presided at the mayor's banquet Saturday night on the roof of the Ansley hotel. The invocation was made by Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church. There was a musical program and Key spoke on "Municipal Responsibility."

The Atlanta mayor was introduced by Mayor Gamble, who paid Key a fine tribute.

"I have long ago quit trying to please anybody," Key said in opening his address. "That is I have quit in my public life. I just do what I think is right, and that pleases them, not what they just tolerably."

"What we must do is take the burdens of business and property and redistribute it. Give them a break once more."

"This association should take a definite stand on matters. It should oppose wrong measures and support those which are right. The cities of Georgia pay more than their share of the entire income of the state and should have some voice in the matter of police and how it should be levied and distributed."

Pernicious Legislation.

"For instance, the legislature several years ago passed a law prohibiting the cities from doing so in the pending any money on roads within the limits of cities having a population of 2,500 or more. That was a piece of pernicious legislation. I do not believe the men who voted for it knew just what it meant."

Atlanta pays more than $3,000,000 a year in taxes and license taxes to the state of Georgia, but a piece of the highway board should be set up at Fort Smith, as is proposed by my good friend, Mayor Gamble, to turn back to cities from which it is collected. Just think what $1,000,000 a year would mean to Atlanta. Think of it. It would put us on an easy street in so far as street improvements are concerned."

Atlanta should have concurrent jurisdiction in petty misdemeanor cases where no jury trial is demanded. Records then could impose fines and costs, and the city would not have to believe the men who voted for it knew just what it meant."

"My stand on prohibition has been misconstrued. So far as I am able to find out, I am about the only strict prohibitionist left."

"I meet conditions as I find them. I don't like liquor and I don't want it personally, but I do object to a boot-legal system where the bootleggers are getting rich while honest men are walking the streets looking for jobs with which to make bread for their families."

"Let the government itself take over the liquor sales and divert all profits into the treasuries of governmental divisions. It will relieve taxes and eliminate the bootlegger."

"Atlanta will collect $60,000 this year from licensing of no-increasing 3.2 beer. There is no harm in that."

"The small towns of Georgia took charge of this meeting. I am glad of that. They are the ones who need the help of the small towns and they need our help. That also is true of the rural districts of the state. When you are in a small town, you need the help of the small towns and they need our help. That also is true of the rural districts of the state."

"If people object to Sunday amusements, in which I see no harm; they can settle that themselves—just stay at home, don't go. We must eliminate narrow provincialism and dedicate ourselves to the service of the state."

Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, former member of the Georgia house and senate, told the mayors at the dinner table that he had a job but predicted success in unity.

Mayor J. A. Horne, of Milledgeville, extended a state-wide invitation to Georgia mayors and Georgia citizens to attend the four-capitals road opening October 12-15. Milledgeville will be one of the important stops en route.

Yates Loses to Dave Goldman, 1 Up, in Semi-Finals of Western

"What are the essentials you look for when you are scouting rookie baseball players?" I asked Ira Thomas, the veteran scout who has delivered Connie Mack most of his stars since 1915.

"Three things," said Thomas, "and the three most obvious things. Running, hitting and fielding. And in that latter must be included throwing. It's no good fielding if the player can't throw."

"Now, sometimes a player will have two of those assets and lack one and will still do for consideration. Often we get a player who can hit and run but can't throw well. We'll take a chance. Some of the stars in baseball have lacked one of them. But the other two are always so fully developed they make up for that deficiency. We prefer, of course, the player who has all three of those."

"What next?" I asked, "after the three essentials have been looked over?"

"Well, said Thomas, "we look for age and habits and experience and all that sort of thing. And we look at his health and his legs and his hands. But those things don't always do. There have been players with poor legs who made great players. Babe Ruth had a weak pair of legs, yet they have stood up under more than 20 years of hard pounding in the outfield. Because The Babe played outfield even when he was a pitcher. I'll string along with any young player who can run, field and hit. That's all there is to baseball. I mean that's the essential part of it."

"I'd say," continued Thomas, "that it all comes under the head of experience. After you've looked at them for years and seen them fail and make good, you sort of get an idea what made them fail and what made them stick. You get so you unconsciously apply a lot of tests which experience has taught you to look for."

HE WANTS HIS PITCHERS WILD.

"How about rookie pitchers," said I; "you look for speed and control and curves?"

"Not at all," said Thomas. "I look for speed. That's what I want. Tell me about a young pitcher who has a fast ball and I'll travel far to see him."

"I'd rather he be wild as a March wind," said Thomas.

"This was a bit unusual. 'Wild?' asked your inquiring reporter.

"Yep, wild," said Thomas. "When I hear about a young pitcher who has great control I never look at him. I know he hasn't anything on the ball. A young pitcher with control is probably throwing a few soft curves and his fast ball wouldn't dent a felt hat."

"What I want to hear about is a kid with a strong arm who is knocking his catcher down with a few of them and who is breaking boards in the grandstand back of the catcher with the others. That means he has a fast ball which will stay fast. He can be taught a curve or so and control. But if he hasn't got a fast ball he can't be taught to have one. So I like wild young pitchers."

And there, my constituents, is how to become a baseball scout in two easy lessons. All you have to do is dig up a Jimmy Dykes, a Bob Grove and Babe Ruth or so, and your future will be made.

The big idea, of course, is to get the proper gauge for what constitutes real hitting, fielding and running.

GOOD OLD BABE.

Babe Ruth, whom Mr. Ira Thomas referred to as having a poor pair of legs—so far as looking at them is concerned—hit his 701st American league home run yesterday, after having hit No. 700 on Friday to establish a lifetime record which will likely linger around as long as the pyramids stand.

It was some 15 years ago that Mr. Clark Griffith, the astute Washington club owner and president, refused to consider purchasing Babe Ruth because, he said, the thin legs with their small ankles would not carry the 220 pounds of Ruthian weight around for more than a year or so more. Griffith was not alone. Most of the critics agreed The Babe's legs would not last very long. Yet The Babe is still out there, busting home runs. And playing a pretty fair outfield game for an old gentleman who has been at it for more than 20 years.

RED ROBERTS FROM DALTON.

Red Roberts, the city champion from Dalton, Ga., is one of the interesting entries in the state golf tournament which begins Tuesday at East Lake.

Roberts has recently won the Dalton championship for the second consecutive year and the state meet will be his first big tournament try. He has been playing golf for five years, having started when he was 12.

The state tournament is going to see a number of good young players who will be teeing off in their initial tournament of importance. The state has been producing a number of them in the past few years.

It will be interesting to watch these products of the "Bobby Jones school." It would also be interesting to know just how many youngsters of 10 and 12 years of age took up golf about five years ago when Bobby Jones was at his peak. I recall that sporting goods stores all over the state reported tremendous increases in sale of golf accessories when the Jones boy was conquering the world.

Those interested in going ahead in golf face a long and arduous task. It requires the seasoning influence of many, many tournaments to bring out the ultimate in golf skill. And in tournament play one finds out whether one has it or not.

THE HALL THEORY.

Charley Hall, the veteran Birmingham professional and former president of the P. G. A., frequently is quoted in this column. Charley always has something to say and there is always something sound in his sayings.

"Publicity never ruined a young golf prospect," he said, "no more than it ruins a young tennis or baseball player. If publicity ruins them, then it means they didn't have what it takes to make a great player. Why not put the test on them? It's better to find out early."

CHATHAM HITS HOMER FOR CRACKERS

Buster Scores Wright; Schmidt Wins Eleventh Victory, 3-1.

By Jimmy Jones.

While Bill Schmidt, brawny son of the Pacific slopes and rugged as one of those California redwoods, was subduing the Memphis Chickasaws with seven paltry hits and giving them something in the way of reprisal for Harry Kelley's pitching of Friday, the Crackers squared the series with the league-leaders Saturday by winning, 3 to 1, and hoisted themselves into a three-way tie for third place with Little Rock and New Orleans.

While Schmidt, who promises to become the Southern league's outstanding rookie pitcher ere the season is out, was wheeling the ball so effectively that Memphis was never in the ball game, several developments transpired in the Cracker business of office regarding changes in the roster.

JAMES GOES.

First and foremost of these was the sale of Hyne James, the club's popular second baseman of the first half, to the St. Paul club of the American association on an outright cash basis. James, who figured in the now historical Redfern trade with Memphis which never went through, will leave immediately to join the St. Paul club. Several teams sought the little second sacker, who has been in the lineup only briefly since Spencer Abbott first designated him as trading material. Abbott said the move was for the purpose of gaining more punch on the infield.

Other news of significance was that a hard-hitting infielder is scheduled to join the club in a couple of days, and that Cracker officials expect to announce his name in the next day or so.

LINDSEY HURLS TODAY.

Jim Lindsey, right-handed pitcher who participated in two world series with the St. Louis Cardinals and was recently purchased from that club, signed a contract yesterday and officially went on the roster when James was taken off. He will pitch the first game of today's double-header at Chattanooga.

The other item, not so important, dealt with the fact that Johnny Abbott, rookie catcher who made a good showing with the Crackers in the spring, will be taken on as an emergency receiver. Abbott, who has been catching for Lithonia and various other clubs, will be signed as a precautionary measure in case something happens to Palmisano or Vance.

The sale of James was not exactly a surprise. It had been known since the Little Rock episode that the second baseman and Manager Abbott weren't hitting it off so well and the fact that "Pip" Koehler was in position at second and another infielder negotiated for, indicated that James' stay wasn't for long. James, a pleasant young man with an excellent personality, made many friends while here. He was an exceptionally brilliant fielder. He stated that he hated to leave Atlanta, but realized that baseball is not a game of personalities and that if Abbott thought he could strengthen the team at his position, it was all right with him.

LIKED IT HERE.

"I enjoyed playing with Atlanta and was completely satisfied here," said James, who was the first Cracker regular to sign a contract in the spring. He liked the change to St. Paul all right, however, since it is a higher class league. Bob Connery, the St. Paul president, has been keen on James for some time.

As for the game yesterday, it was actually dull at times, due to the ineffectiveness of the 19-year-old Schmidt, who pitches like a seasoned veteran. The big boy was master of the league leaders throughout in accounting for his eleventh victory of the season against only five defeats.

The Crackers scored on him in the ninth when Calvin Chapman, the sensational young third baseman who is being sought by Ira Thomas and several other scouts, rifled a curving liner into the right field sign sector that hit fair by the margin of a foot, going for the hit-baton Joe Judge, who beat out a hit to the pitcher's box right behind him and reached second when "Schmidt" threw wild to first. But the big rookie retired Duke and Redfern on successive flies to end the game.

HOT WEATHER.

It was warm and sultry out there on the field but Schmidt was perspiring in ice water. He actually toyed with the Chicks in besting Clay Touchstone, who pitched an excellent game, himself, limiting the Crackers to six hits.

Buster Chatham, the little guy who plays such a hustling game at shortstop for Atlanta, won the game as he developed, with his home run into the left field stand in the fifth after Taft Wright had singled. Chatham, after hitting a 32-ounce bat suggested by Spencer Abbott, has been hitting the ball better.

Chatham also figured in the Crackers' first score in the first inning when he singled with a single to left, stole second as McKee struck out and scored on Charley Sheerin's single.

MAYORS PRESENT.

A crowd of 1,800 witnessed the game, Atlanta's final appearance for

Three Atlanta Threats---in State Golf Tourney

Julius Hughes, city champion; Berrien Moore Jr., member of the Georgia Tech golf team, and Dave Black, a former state amateur champion, are shown as they practice for the annual state meet, which begins at East Lake Tuesday. One of the strongest fields since Bobby Jones won the first tourney here in 1916 with a 2-up victory over Perry Adair is expected to enter. The Georgia State Golf Association was organized in 1916 by Major John S. Cohen and the late Lowry Arnold and Lloyd Parks. It is interesting to note that Bobby Jones, who was then 14 years old, won the first state championship, which was held at the Capital City Country Club. In winning that match, his first major triumph, Bobby, three down at the end of the first 18 holes, came back after the first hole in the afternoon and played every hole in either par or birdie figures to win. The tourney will be held next week over the No. 1 course at East Lake. Billy McWilliams, who won the title last year, will defend his crown. He is a native of Rome, Ga., but will carry the East Lake colors into the tourney this year. Tuesday will be devoted to the qualifying round.

CLASSIC IS WON BY CAVALCADE

Wins 3-Year-Old Title and Rich Stake at Arlington Track.

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP)—Surging forward from last place, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade won the $35,000 added Arlington classic by four lengths today, capturing the three-year-old championship of the American turf in a dramatic finish which set a crowd of 30,000 into a delirium of cheers.

As the three-year-old son of Lance-gate, the conqueror of the 1933 Kentucky Derby, swept past the judge's stand, the conqueror of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery for the sixth time, the crowd was on its feet cheering him on while "Uncle Mack Garner, astride Cavalcade, took a quick look over his shoulder to make sure that he was safely in front.

TRAILING.

Half a length back of Discovery was Hadagal, the entry of Warren Wright, of Chicago, with Riskulus, the California challenger owned by Norman W. Church, of Los Angeles, three lengths back.

Today's race at a mile and a quarter was the fastest Cavalcade has ever run. He covered the distance in 2:02 4-5, a full second off the track record set by Sun Beau in 1931.

Cavalcade earned $30,325 by his victory, bringing his total winnings to date, both as a 2-year-old and this year, to $128,965. Cavalcade already had won $80,910 this year, and his victory today made him the leading money winning thoroughbred of 1934.

Cavalcade, coupled with Good Goods as the Brookmeade entry, went to the post a prohibitive favorite at 1 to 3. He paid $2.74 to win, $2.16 to place and $2.14 to show. The place price on Discovery was $2.52 with $2.56 to show, while Hadagal paid $2.94 to show.

A tremendous roar went up from the crowd when the field of nine bounded out of the starting gate with Cavalcade and his stablemate running last. The break found Hadagal winging out in front with Discovery second and Riskulus third. Cavalcade was bumped as the field charged to the first turn and was shuffled back to the dismay of the spectators.

As the field turned into the back stretch, Grouler, the entry of H. W. Maxwell, of New York, went to the front with Cavalcade seventh. As Grouler continued to burn up the track, Cavalcade dropped back to eighth. Thomasville moved up to second with Riskulus third, Discovery fourth and Hadagal fifth.

BACK STRETCH.

Straightened out on the back stretch, Cavalcade with Garner guiding him carefully moved up with a cyclonic rush.

He charged from eighth to third place, with Grouler, the pace setter, flying distress signals and Discovery hanging on doggedly to second position.

McWilliams Title Is at Stake Here

Strong Field Will Tee Off Next Tuesday Over No. 1 Course at East Lake.

By Roy White.

One of the largest and strongest fields ever to enter a state tournament will seek the Georgia amateur golf crown this week over the No. 1 East Lake course. It will be a wide-open event with any one of a dozen players likely to crash through the winner's gate.

Billy McWilliams, of Rome, Ga., is the defending champion, but is no sure-shot to repeat, a feat which has been accomplished by only two players, Gene Cook and Charlie Yates, since the tourney was first won by Bobby Jones in 1916 at the Capital City Club.

Four and possibly five former champions will seek the 1934 title. They are Johnny Oliver, Valdosta, 1929 winner; Charlie Black Jr., 1928 winner; Dave Black, 1930 winner, and Billy McWilliams, winner last year. Vexay Rainwater Sr., winner in 1927, is secretary of the Georgia State Golf Association, and will play, if his official duties of the tourney are not too confining. He has been playing good golf recently and had a fine round Saturday at Druid Hills.

More out-of-town golfers are entered this year than in recent years, which is another indication of the larger and stronger field. And with Yates not entered, the visitors feel as though they have a greater chance than in recent years to win.

LEADS PARADE.

In fact Atlanta's delegation will have the pressure on them for McWilliams, the defending champion, will lead the parade of the visitors. Johnny and Billy Oliver and possibly George Converse and Billy Eager, of Valdosta; Charles Kirven and his young son, of Columbus; Dean Smith and Duncan Strachan, Savannah; Charles Lanier, Americus, and Horace Wright, of Macon, are likely entries from central and southern Georgia.

Dalton, Ga., will be well represented for little Red Roberts, the city champion for the past two years; Robert McCamy and Wells Moore have entered. Roberts is 17 years old and has been playing four years. He is easily the best player in that section of the state.

Nashville Sells Dutch Prather To Dallas, Tex., After Injury

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 14.—(UP)—Dutch Prather, Nashville first baseman, was sold to Dallas, of the Texas league, today, a few hours after a pitched ball fractured a bone in his hand.

Charley Dessen, Nashville manager, announced the sale but did not disclose the cash involved.

To replace Prather, Nashville recalled Charlie Baron, young first baseman, who has been with Jacksonville, Texas, in the West Dixie league.

Prather will be benched for three weeks from the injury sustained when Clarence Struss, Little Rock pitcher, hit his hand with a fast ball in today's game.

U. S. PLAYERS ARE CONFIDENT

Williams Expects Team To End Great Britain's Reign on Courts.

By Roy White.

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—After putting his five-man squad through a two-hour practice session on Wimbledon's courts, R. Norris (Dick) Williams, team captain of the United States Davis cup forces, declared to his players were "cautiously confident" of ending Great Britain's international tennis reign.

"I think they are in as fine shape as I ever saw a bunch of tennis players," Williams said. "They act like a lot of young colts."

Even Wilmer Allison, despite his boat trip, appears in an excellent frame of mind. You can say that if we are beaten it won't be because of lack of condition."

Today's practice session in no way resembled "test matches." The players informally took turns against each other without completing any of the matches.

Allison, who was summoned from the United States a few weeks ago after George M. Lott Jr., the veteran doubles player, complained of Lester R. Stoen for his partner, looked pretty ragged in practice, but Williams expressed the opinion that the Texan would round into shape quickly.

Although he insisted he has not decided on the doubles team for the inter-zone final, the impression here was that Williams would give Stoen a chance with Lott in view of the towering Californian's great showing in the Wimbledon final.

As Williams must name his team Monday, he hardly will have sufficient time to size up Allison as a probable doubles partner and it is considered virtually certain that Stoen will be given the assignment.

Frank X. Shields, the first ranked American singles player, and Sidney B. Wood Jr., another United States singles performer, worked spiritedly during the two-hour workout and performed in such a manner as to convince observers that they are on top of their games.

Prusoff, Hendrix Battle for Title

CLEVELAND, July 14.—(AP)—Henry Prusoff, Seattle tennis star, will battle for the Ohio singles championship here tomorrow.

Prusoff today entered the finals by defeating Byron Bauer, Erie, Pa., in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

In the other semi-final match Hendrix defeated Milton Ruel, of Milwaukee, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

FIRM MARK.

For 22 years Oregon high school middle distance runners have been striving without success, to beat the 1:56.8 half mile mark set by L. V. Windnagle and the 4:29 mile mark set by Paul Wilson on the same day in 1912.

Zell Eaton Celebrates Twenty-First Birthday in Finals.

By Charles A. Grumich.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 14.—(AP) Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, will celebrate his twenty-first birthday trying to win the western amateur golf championship, and Dave Goldman, of Dallas, will try to spoil it by beating the slim tournament medalist out of the first major title within his grasp.

Goldman, who is 25, reached the finals of the thirty-sixth annual tournament today with a hard-fought 1-up victory over Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, the national collegiate champion, while Eaton easily defeated Verne Stewart, of Albuquerque, N. M., and Stanford University, 6 and 4. To oust Stewart, Eaton needed only to hold as much as he could of the 7-up advantage with which he finished the morning 18 holes, but for Goldman it was a tight battle all the way after he went to lunch thinking about a 1-up lead the 20-year-old Georgian held over him.

Weintraub Dominates Honors in Southern With Six First Places

SPEECH LEADS ALL PITCHERS WITH 16 WINS

Duck McKee, Cracker Outfielder, Trails Leaders in League Hitting.

Phil Weintraub, Nashville slugger, has captured all honors in the hitting department this week. Phil leads in runs scored with 83; hits, 118; total bases, 190; two-base hits, 20; home runs, 11; runs batted in, 70; and percentage with a mark of .392. Three players are tied for the lead in three-base hits with McKee, Atlanta; Press, Little Rock; and Chapman, Memphis, being the players. Hutcherson, Memphis, is second in Weintraub in percentage with a mark of .354. Other leaders are: Allenton, Knoxville, .342; Cuto, Memphis, .340; McKee, Atlanta, .339; and Trapp, Little Rock, .335. French, Knoxville, has stolen the most bases, 19. Ward, New Orleans, is runner-up with 17.

Speech, Nashville, is the leading twirler with 16 victories against 3 defeats for an average of .842. Gable, Nashville, has won 5 while losing 1. Kelly, Memphis, 13 and 4; and Johnson, New Orleans, 10 and 4 are the other leading twirlers.

New Orleans has made the most double plays, 19, which is nine more than Chattanooga has made. Nashville leads in team batting with a mark of .285, while New Orleans leads in fielding with .974.

DETROIT TAKES AMERICAN LEAD; CUBS ADVANCE

Chicago Beats New York, 11-7; Now One Game Behind.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(UP)—Detroit and Chicago, chief western outlanders for major league pennants, are in a battle of attrition today, with full lineups against the Yankees and the Giants today, and as a result, Mickey Vernon's Tigers replaced Joe McCarthy's outfit in 1st place in the American league, and Charley Grimm's Cubs moved within one full game of Bill

They played before a crowd of 25,000 the fans blasted the ankles out of first place with a ninth-inning four-run rally to win, 12 to 11. It was a slugfest, the Tigers making 20 hits against 14 for their opponents. Gomez, Deshong, an Atta and Grimes pitched for New York, against Vic Sorrell, Auker, Hogsett and Marberry.

Supported by 17 single-base hits and seven-run rally in the fifth inning, Jim Weaver turned in an 11-to-7 victory over the Giants. He yielded two hits, four runs and four earned runs.

HARDER STARS.
Mel Harder, who pitched brilliantly in the All-Star game, blanked the Washington Senators with four hits as the Cleveland Indians won, 2 to 0. Earl Whitehill allowed eight safeties.

The St. Louis Browns scored two runs in the ninth inning and nosed out the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 7. The Browns made 16 hits.

HARDER
In the other American league game the Chicago White Sox defeated the Philadelphia A's, 10 to 5. Milt Garmak allowed 10 hits in winning. His mates led off Dietrich, Cascarello and Mahaffey.

Young Johnny Babich pitched against Stengel's Brooklyn Dodgers to 10-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. He yielded four hits while his mates found Walker, Vance, and money for 11. The White Sox, in the eighth inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-to-3 victory over the Boston Braves. Bill Swift was the winning pitcher, yielding eight hits, against 13 by Brown, Mangum and Jimmy.

PHILS WIN TWO.

Timmy Wilson's Philadelphia Phillies registered their tenth victory in their last 13 games by sweeping a four-inning doubleheader from the tail-end Cincinnati Reds, 18 to 0, in a slugfest, and 5 to 4 in the nightcap.

Whitey Foye was the hero for the Reds in the first game. The Phillies pounded him for four hits. The Phillies pounded Brennan, Benton and Kleinhaus for four safeties. E. Moore bested Paul errier in the second tilt. The hillies made 11 hits against eight for their opponents.

Other home runs were: Babe Ruth, 15th inning, a 450-yard drive; and Cossotti, Yanks; Dykes and Bonura, White Sox; Werber, Red Sox; Moore, Giants; Cuccinello, Brooklyn; McCann, Braves; Bottomley (2), Cincinnati; Delancey, Cards, and Walters, Phillies.

Knights and Brown Fight for Title

CHARLESTON, S. C. July 14.—

—Joe Knight, the Cairo (Ga.) lefthander, and LeRoy Brown, Charles in marine, will meet here Monday night in a 10-round bout billed as for the light-heavyweight championship of the south.

Sammy Travis, Miami, and Red Walsh, Charleston, lightweights, will meet in an eight-round semifinal bout.

The classes were started several weeks ago to aid in the development of young golfers in the club but it is grown in such proportions that it is impossible to give the large class attended Friday proper instruction. And Beckett was more than pleased with the large number of young girls who responded to the call and will form a class of girls starting Friday.

Three white handis held up the Dutch Oven Bakeries at 1131 Ponce de Leon avenue Saturday afternoon and took $23 from the cash register. Two entered and one remained in a waiting automobile. Only one was armed and he kept his pistol trained on Miss Mamie Whitman, of Wieuca road, while his companion rifled the cash register. They escaped in the waiting automobile.

Mrs. Charles A. Bishop, of 544 54th street, N. W., has appealed to The Constitution to help her find her husband who disappeared on June 13. He is 41 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has black hair and black eyes. Mrs. Bishop, who is the mother of four small children, asks anyone having any information to call Herk 6045.

Wade R. Kornejag, Jr. has been elected scoutmaster of the recently organized troop of Boy Scouts sponsored by the Morningstar Civic League. V. Olney is assistant scoutmaster and M. K. Kehele, father of an Eagle Scout, is chairman of the troop committee. Ben Elliott, Dr. Matthews, R. G. Kreiling, Dr. Clifton G. Kemper and C. C. Tate compose the troop committee.

Atlanta retailers of cigars and tobacco will meet at the Chamber of Commerce building at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning to put into effect the code governing the retail sale of tobacco in accordance with the recent readjustment of prices, setting the minimum for popular brands, less tax, at 10 and 15 cents. It is probable, according to J. J. McJannet, secretary of the local dealers, that the local prices for popular brands will be 12 and 15 cents on a cash-and-carry basis.

Wilbur Kurtz, Fritz Zimmer, A. T. Swanson and Charles Tharp, prominent Atlanta artists, were named on a committee by the Atlanta Artists Guild to complete plans for an art exhibit to be held in November and which will be open to all members. Mrs. Tharpe, James Battle, Mrs. J. B. Hosmer, J. N. Colman and Thomas E. Monroe were named on the public art committee.

Regional labor board has two hearings scheduled early this week. On Monday at 2 p. m. it will hear the complaint of Ralph Knox that he was discharged by the Trenton (Tenn.) Mills in violation of N.R.A. provisions. On Tuesday at 10 a. m. it will hear a complaint against the Imperial Hotel, of Griffin, that it discharged an employee because of his union affiliation.

Big Bethel choir No. 2 will present a concert of negro spirituals and folk songs in accordance with the Big Bethel church. The concert is being sponsored by the Grady hospital auxiliary.

Evangelist Frank Morrow, of Tampa, Fla., will preach at both the morning and evening services of Grant Park Church of Christ today, according to an announcement by the Rev. W. C. Sanders, pastor.

Merle A. Thompson, newspaper advertising man of New York, but formerly of Atlanta, will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon to visit relatives and friends. He will be accompanied by his wife and two sons.

Atlanta Police Singing class will not meet at the station house today, according to an announcement by E. J. McJannet.

C. Hudson, director, but will meet with the South Side Singing class for an all-day singing at Lakewood Heights Methodist church, instead.

Thomas H. Simmons, C. L. Wessinger, both realtors; Harry Morgan, retired business man, and Samuel A. Massell, real estate attorney, returned to Atlanta Saturday after a week's fishing trip at Panama City, Fla.

Arthur Sims, negro, was given two years for automobile theft on a plea of guilty to having borrowed the car of Claude Head, 988 Gillette street, to go to a funeral, and having gone to Montgomery, Ala., instead.

Schedules for baby health centers for this week were announced by Dr. P. Kennedy, city health officer, as follows: Wednesday, J. C. Harris, Wednesday, Fulton Bag & Cotton Mill; Thursday, Andrew Stewart nursery; Friday, Kirkwood. This service for babies under four years of age and will be at 1:30 o'clock each day.

Regular meeting of Atlanta Camp No. 159, U. C. W. will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in the ordinary office at Fulton county courthouse to hear the report of the camp general G. S. Prior, commander of Camp 159.

Alderman G. Everett Millican left Atlanta late Saturday night for a week's conference to be held in Pittsburg for the petroleum industry. He is a high official of the Gulf Refining Company.

R. A. Thompson, a collector for the Morris Furniture Company, who lives at 504 Ashby street, S. W., was held up and robbed of $11.50 by two armed negroes Saturday night while attempting to collect payment for furniture at the rear of 600 Whitehall terrace.

Claude McCurley, 40, who says he lives near Pittman's crossing in Gwinnett county, was treated at Grady hospital Saturday night for a probable skull fracture. He was struck by an automobile while walking in the road near his home.

FEAR WILL ESTABLISH MEAT CANNING PLANTS

Canning plants for the preservation of meats slaughtered under the emergency relief program will be established in Georgia immediately, according to an announcement Saturday by local FERA officials.

Establishment of these canning plants is part of the program of the FERA to process the cattle purchased in the drought-stricken middle west and sent here for feeding and fattening to be slaughtered later in the year. The meat will be distributed among Georgia families on the relief rolls and none of it will reach commercial channels, according to Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator of the FERA.

Plans for the canning factories will be located as soon as government inspectors, now in Texas, can arrange to inspect them. Building now in use will be utilized and no new buildings will be built to house the plants, it was announced.

NEWSPRINT OUTPUT SHOWS DROP IN U. S.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Newsprint production in the United States in June was 83,504 tons, the lowest for that month in many years, and compared with 84,384 tons in June, 1933, according to the newsprint service bureau.

Canadian output was 229,637 tons compared with 171,419 tons a year ago, and was the largest production in that month in several years.

Miss Moye Weds Luther Anderson In Cuthbert, Ga.

CUTHBERT, Ga., July 14.—A wedding of wide interest was that of Miss Laura Estelle Moye, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine M. Moye, to Luther Emanuel Anderson, of Syracuse, N. Y., which was solemnized Thursday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. J. E. Hobson, pastor of the Cuthbert Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and intimate friends. In the decorations throughout the reception suite, a color note of pink and white prevailed. Tall floor baskets of gladioli, Queen Anne's lace and roses were placed at intervals. An improvised altar was formed of ferns and palms, interspersed with standards holding cathedral candelabra and graceful baskets filled with Easter lilies. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Emilio Suarez presented a program of nuptial music, and Mrs. Edward Sealy sang. The bride wore a handsome costume of navy blue and tulle, with a long straight line veil the blouse of which was of tulle. The gown was completed with a short coat of gray with cap sleeves edged with wide bands of silver fox. Her hat was of navy blue, adorned with a single gray feather. Her bouquet was of orchids. Mrs. W. G. Elliott lighted the candles. Miss Marion Reid kept the bride's register. Mrs. Allen Hill, of Bainbridge, and Miss Doris Patterson were the bridesmaids. FORSYTH, Ga., July 14.—Interest centers in the approaching marriage of Miss Maude Beatrice Hooks, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Hooks, to Robert L. Cousins, of Forsyth, Ga., which is to be solemnized at 4 o'clock Friday, July 20. The ring ceremony will be performed by Dr. Solon B. Cousins, of Richmond, Va., brother of the bridegroom-elect. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, V. B. Hooks Sr. Her attendants will be Mrs. Warren Cousins, Miss Mary Cousins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dempsey Willis, of Forsyth, and Miss Dorothy Alexander, of Forsyth, maid of honor. Drawing the ring will be Mrs. S. B. Cousins, of Forsyth, and Mrs. Mildred Elrod, of Forsyth. Mr. Cousins will have for his best man his brother, Dr. Paul Cousins, president of Shorter College in Rome, Ga., and for groomsmen William King, of Griffin. Preceding the entrance of the bridal party a musical program will be rendered by Mrs. C. F. Heard, Mrs. O. P. Ensign and Virgil Hooks Jr., brother of the bride-elect. Mr. Hooks will play the wedding march. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hooks will entertain at a brilliant reception. In the receiving line will be Mrs. S. B. Cousins, of Louisville, Ky., mother of the groom; Dr. Solon B. Cousins, of Richmond, Va., and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Cousins, of Rome, Georgia.

Miss Curtis Weds Thomas K. Spencer.

AMERICUS, Ga., July 14.—A marriage of importance and interest was that of Miss Jean Curtis and Thomas Knight Spencer on Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Hawkins, on South Lee street, with Rev. Henry T. Freeman, pastor of Americus First Methodist church, officiating. The living room in which the simple ceremony was performed, was decorated tastefully in ferns and southern smilax and tall pedestal baskets of aspidistra. The bride's maid of honor was Miss Virginia Spencer, of Tampa, Fla., a sister of the bridegroom, and the best man was the bridegroom's brother, William Spencer, of Tampa. Miss Dorothy Curtis, of Monticello, Fla., a cousin of the bride, was her bridesmaid, and she was given in marriage by her father, William A. Hawkins. Philip Curtis, a brother of the pretty young bride, was the groomsmen. Little Jean Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Collins, was the flower girl, and carried purple perennial sweetpeas in a basket tied with maize satin ribbon. The bride's wedding gown was of heavy silver satin, simple and classic in style and masterfully made. The neckline was trimmed with a soft rolled collar, while the long tight-fitting sleeves extended into a point over the hands and had tiny satin buttons from the elbows to the wrists. The long train was fastened at the shoulder and her veil of tulle was caught at her head with real old Duchess lace. Among out-of-town guests attending the wedding were W. B. Baker, Decatur, Iowa; F. D. Baker, Okeana, Minn.; Mrs. J. D. Scherhorn, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. D. N. Beard, Decatur, Iowa; Mrs. W. C. Spencer and Miss Pauline Spencer, Tampa, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Miss Gordy and Mr. McDonald Wed at St. Philip's Cathedral

Beauty and dignity characterized the marriage Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock of Miss Louise Gordy to Edwin Graham McDonald, of Savannah and Atlanta, which took place at St. Philip's cathedral, with Dean Raimundo de Oves officiating. Arthur Davis, organist, presented a program of nuptial music prior to, and during the ceremony, which was witnessed by an assemblage of friends and relatives. The cathedral was artistically decorated with palms and ferns. The altar presented a scene of rich beauty with its seven-branched candelabra holding pink tapers, burning tapers, sprays of gladioli. Ushers were Moore Pearson and Joe Westbrook. The bride's only attendant was Mrs. John L. Evans, who wore a gown of deep blue silk, and was featured by a tiny row of buttons of the material down the back, and deep ruffled cape of the material bordered with pink tulle. The gown was form-fitting with rows of ruffles extending from the waistline in the back and ending in a slight train. A picture hat of deep blue silk completed her costume. She carried an arm bouquet of pink tea roses. The bridegroom had as his best man Edgar R. Blount, of Old Hickory, Tenn., and Savannah, and they met the lovely bride at the altar. Her attendant was further accentuated by her exquisite gown of ivory satin along princess lines, the skirt flaring in the back to form a graceful train. The long close-fitting sleeves were made of real lace draped at the shoulders to give a becoming puffed effect. Her veil of illusion tulle was held to her hair by a soft bill of satin and tulle, the veil reaching to a three-quarter length in the back and just below her face in front. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies. Mrs. S. A. Gordy, mother of the bride, was crowned in printed chiffon with green accessories, and her corsage was talisman roses. Mrs. E. G. McDonald, of Savannah, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of Elizabeth crepe with accessories to match, and her corsage was sweetheart roses. Mrs. Robert R. Ferguson, of Washington, D. C., sister of the bridegroom, wore a becoming gown of blue chiffon with blue accessories, and her corsage was of sweetheart roses. Immediately following the ceremony the young couple left for their honeymoon for points in Florida. The bride traveled in a modish ensemble of dark blue triple sheer with dark blue accessories. Mrs. McDonald, formerly of Augusta, attended Brenau College, where she specialized in music. Mr. McDonald was graduated from Georgia School of Technology, and was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. He is now connected with the Home Building & Loan Association, of Atlanta.

Following a wedding reception, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer left for a motor trip to points of interest in north Georgia, and upon their return will be at home in Tampa, Fla. The house was decorated with garden flowers. The lovely bride was gowned in an ensemble of white crepe with white accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink roses. The couple is at home at 815 Kirkwood avenue, southeast.

Georgia Garden Club Executive Board Holds Meeting

The first meeting of the executive board under the new administration of the Georgia Garden Club of Georgia was held at the Biltmore hotel, Monday, July 9, with 16 members present, and the newly elected president, Mrs. Thomas Hubbard McHatten, presided.

Round table discussions of the year's work filled the meeting with interesting developments and the year 1934-1935 promises to be one of the most fruitful in the organization's history.

Mrs. McHatten had formulated exceedingly well-planned suggestions for each chairman's work, and these were taken up separately and discussed. Of particular interest to the group was the new quarterly to be published by the Garden Club of Georgia, which has been entitled "Garden Gateways."

The first issue will appear this month and over 3,500 copies will be mailed to garden club members throughout the state. This is being done with the expectation of receiving a large number of subscribers for the success of this venture depends entirely on its reception by the members.

Mrs. Calder Willingham, of Rome, the efficient chairman, stated that she hoped a subscription drive for the new publication would feature the fall work of every club and a prize awarded to the club securing the most subscriptions. Other new and interesting phases of the work for the coming year will be garden centers with Mrs. R. L. Cooney, of Atlanta, as chairman; horticulture, Mrs. J. V. H. Rucker, of Athens, chairman; garden nurseries, with Mrs. L. G. Dangerfield, of Atlanta, chairman.

Members of the board present were: Honorary president, Mrs. R. L. Cooney, Atlanta; president, Mrs. T. H. McHatten, Athens; vice president, Mrs. James W. Woodruff, Columbus; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Milton Jernagin, Athens; and the following chairmen: beautification of highways, Mrs. R. W. Cole, Newnan; admission and organization, Mrs. T. M. Brumby, Marietta; conservation, Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, Montezuma; flower shows, Mrs. Donald Hastings, Lovejoy; horticulture, Mrs. J. V. H. Rucker, Athens; publications, Mrs. Calder Willingham, Rome; publicity, Mrs. Bolling Sasser, Atlanta; reforestation, Mrs. W. D. Hooper, Athens; programs and slides, Mrs. Lawrence Murray, Columbus.

Tampa Belle To Wed Sidney W. Jacobs Tuesday, July 24

TAMPA, Fla., July 14.—Of interest to friends is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Max Argintar of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rae Argintar, to Sidney W. Jacobs, of Atlanta, Ga. The marriage of this popular young couple will be a brilliant social event, taking place at the residence of the bride-elect's parents, 2309 Nebraska avenue, here on Tuesday evening, July 24.

Miss Argintar, a popular member of the younger set in Tampa, is a graduate of the Hillsborough High school and of the Business University of that city. Many parties are being scheduled for this lovely bride-elect, the plans for which will be announced later.

Mr. Argintar, a native Tammpan, is one of the pioneer merchants of the city. He has been prominent in the business world for the past several years. Mr. Jacobs is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Jacobs, of Tampa, and is a member of the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. At present he is attending Woodrow Wilson Law College and is connected with a mercantile business in Atlanta, where he and his bride will reside.

Miss Jane Torbert Is Bride of Mr. Rittelmeyer

The marriage of Miss Jane Elizabeth Torbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alden Torbert, of Greensboro, Ga., to John Mosal Rittelmeyer, of Atlanta, formerly of Holly Springs, Miss., was solemnized at noon yesterday at a quiet service at the Sacred Heart rectory by Father McGrath in the presence of the immediate families. The bride was attired in a tailored model of navy blue triple sheer trimmed in white pique with which she wore a navy blue felt hat and other dark blue accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of white orchids. Following the ceremony Mr. Rittelmeyer and his bride left for a motor trip to North Carolina and upon their return August 1 they will make their home in the Italian villa at 200 Montgomery Ferry drive, Ansley Park.

The announcement of the marriage of the former Miss Torbert and Mr. Rittelmeyer is of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the south, where the bride and bridegroom are representatives of prominent families. The bride's family is well known in Georgia and for generations its members have been leaders in Morgan county. Her mother was before her marriage Miss Rebekah Louise Wood, daughter of the late John T. Wood and the late Mrs. Rebecca Harris Wood, who were prominently identified with Morgan county's early growth and development. The late Benjamin Harris and Eliza Brown Harris and John Crawford Wood and Eliza Blount Wood were the bride's maternal great-grandparents. The handsome Harris home, of the ante-bellum type, was situated on the main highway between Atlanta and Milledgeville when the latter was the state capital, and was noted for its southern hospitality where countless brilliant social functions were held. Its owner, the late Benjamin Harris, was numbered among Georgia's leading statesmen and served as legislator from Morgan county before and after the War Between the States. He was also a trustee of the Baptist Female College, from which the bride's great aunt, Anna Miller, of Augusta, was one of the institution's first graduates. On her maternal side the bride is also related to the well-known Baldwin and Fitzpatrick families of this state.

Her paternal grandparents were the late Samuel Alden Tolbert and the late Janie Elizabeth Walker Torbert, of Greensboro, Ga. The late Dr. John E. Walker, also of Greensboro, who came to Georgia from Kentucky, and who was a noted physician, was the bride's paternal great-grandfather. He was a graduate of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia and during the Civil War he served as surgeon at the hospital for the wounded at Greensboro.

The bride is a graduate of the Greensboro High school and she attended the Georgia State College for Women and Emory University.

Mr. Rittelmeyer is the son of the late George Augustus Rittelmeyer, of Holly Springs, Miss., and Elizabeth Mosal Rittelmeyer, of Jackson, Miss. The late

Mrs. Eguen's Play Is Presented Over Local Radio

Listed as a radio hit of the past week was "Fool's Hereafter," a comedy in one act, written by Mrs. Murdock Eguen, which was presented by the Drama Group of Oglethorpe University over station WJTL last week. Clever lines attest the sparkling wit of the author and her method of handling the characters give evidence of her ability and artistic talent.

Saint Peter's Court in Paradise forms the setting for the play, and souls appear before him for assignments to their future resting places in heaven or Hades. As the records of the past deeds, Mrs. Eguen's courtier, William Mendell, at Moses; Luther Muckles as Bill the gangster, and Marcus Bentley as the boy, complete the splendid cast. Mrs. Eguen has been interested in dramatics and play-writing since her college days at Agnes Scott. As Miss Ann Hart, she was requested to write a May Day pageant which was presented on the annual fete day of the college. She has continued her interest and serves as the very efficient chairman of the Marionette Shows sponsored by the Junior League. With fellow members of the League, Mrs. Eguen has been an interested member of the drama group, attending each week the lectures offered by Dr. James H. Routh, at Oglethorpe.

Miami Junior League President Is in Atlanta

Miami's Junior League has a prominent representative in lovely Mrs. C. Larimore Perry, who is numbered among the interesting additions to Atlanta's summer colony as the guest of her mother, Mrs. John M. Townley, at her Palisades road residence in Brookwood Hills. As the newly elected president of the Miami League Mrs. Perry is most enthusiastic over the league's prospects for the coming year.

Highlighting the social season will be the brilliant Junior League ball to be held in February, the proceeds from the affair being used to maintain the Children's Home, which is supported by the league. The Thrift Shop, a year-round project, has an interesting display of articles gleamed from the homes of the members or donated for sale in the shop.

To her role as president of the organization, Mrs. Townley lends a wealth of ability gained during her position as publicity director, city editor of the league's magazine, and chairman of various committees. Possessing a charm of manner and a gracious personality, coupled with decided executive ability, Mrs. Perry will prove a guiding spirit for the league's activities during the coming year.

With her attractive husband, Dr. Perry, and their daughters, Linda and Amanda, she resides in a spacious home built on De Lido island in Biscayne bay, the garden with its palm trees, blossoming shrubs and gay-hued flowers proving an effective setting for the stucco walls of the home. Late in July, Mrs. Perry with Linda and Amanda, who are visiting in their grandmother's home, will leave for a trip. Linda and Amanda will visit their paternal grandmother, Mrs. C. E. Perry, of Granville, Ohio, while Mrs. Perry will join Dr. Perry to visit summer camps of friends in Maine and Canada.

Mrs. Baker Inherits Priceless Silver

"What's in a Name," Juliet's oft quoted query is belied by the good fortune which befell Mrs. W. G. Baker, the former Miss Emily Plummer, when she was christened "Emily." According to family tradition, the eldest daughter in the Plummer family bearing the name of Emily, falls heir to a priceless set of silver. The first owner was Mrs. Emily Jordan, of Edington, N. C., who was given the silver when she was married in 1792, and established her household goods in the ancestral residence in Edington. From her late grandmother, Mrs. Hubert Waywood, of Ra-

Miss Pomerene And Mr. Harvey Wed in Ohio

Of interest to Atlantans is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Calista Pomerene and Robert E. Harvey Jr., which took place on Saturday, June 30, in Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey are representatives of distinguished ancestry, and are prominently identified with cultural and social circles in Cleveland. They graduated the same year from Georgetown College in Kentucky, and their romance had its inception during their college days.

The bride, a lovely blonde, is small in stature and is exceedingly attractive. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Pomerene, of Cleveland. Mr. Harvey is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harvey, former residents of Atlanta, and is a brother of Mrs. John K. Otley Jr. He took his A. B. degree at Georgetown, and belongs to the Kappa Alpha fraternity. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey are residing in Columbus, Ohio, where Mr. Harvey is connected with the Scott Paper Company.

Misses Marion Beth Harris, of Rome, and Marjorie Yarborough, of Birmingham Ala.

MRS. RITTEMEYER is the former Miss Jane Torbert, her marriage having been solemnized on Saturday at Sacred Heart rectory. Miss Talmadge is the sub-deb daughter of Governor Eugene Talmadge and Mrs. Talmadge. Mrs. Perry is president of the Miami Junior League and is visiting her mother, Mrs. John M. Townley, on Palisades road in Brookwood Hills. Mrs. Barker is the former Miss Louise Barnwell and arrives tomorrow from Jacksonville, Fla., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barnwell, on Juniper street. Miss Harris and Miss Yarborough are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hulfish on Club drive. Photograph of Mrs. Rittelmeyer by Bascom Biggers; Neblett made the photograph of Miss Talmadge, and George Cornett, of The Constitution staff, made the picture of Miss Harris and Miss Yarborough.

Mrs. Morehead Weds Mr. Franklin In New York City

SPRAY, N. C., July 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harrison Marshall, of Spray, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Marshall Morehead, to William Crumley Franklin, of New York city, formerly of Atlanta, the ceremony having taken place on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Madison Avenue Methodist church in New York city.

The bride, a beautiful young woman, was educated at Sweetbriar College in Virginia, and belongs to a prominent North Carolina family. Mr. Franklin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Franklin, of Atlanta, descendants of well-known and leading families of Atlanta. He was educated at Georgia School of Technology and is a member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin are in Blumont, Va., where they will spend several days on the bridegroom's farm before departing for Atlanta to visit Mr. and Mrs. Franklin. They will reside at 14 Washington square after August 1, in New York city, where Mr. Franklin is a member of the firm of Biggs & Mohrman, Wall Street brokers.

Miss Brown Weds Mr. Brougham Next Saturday

Enlisting the interest of a wide circle of friends throughout the state are the wedding plans of Miss Mary Anderson Brown, of Decatur, and Marcus Brougham, of New York and York, Pa. The marriage will be brilliantly solemnized at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening, July 21, at the First Baptist church in Decatur.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, H. Rutherford Brown, and will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Donald Hastings, as matron of honor. Mrs. Eugene R. Brown, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Lane Stokes, Mrs. Chester Blackford, of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Mary Ellen Bennett will act as bridesmaids.

Mr. Brougham will be accompanied to the altar by his best man, Donald Hastings, and has selected as his groomsmen Eugene R. Brown, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Grady Poole, Dempsey Brown, Massey Brown, Granger Hansell and George Roerig.

Little Miss Mary Louise Hastings, lovely young niece of the bride-elect, will serve as flower girl, and the ring will be borne by Master Donnie Hastings, small nephew of Miss Brown.

Preceding the ceremony, vocal and violin music will be rendered by Mrs. Vivian Bryant Thompson and Mrs. Francis Collins Hutcheson, while the organ music will be given by Miss Irene Leftwich. Dr. A. L. Moncrief, pastor of the First Baptist church, will perform the ceremony.

Immediately after the nuptials the wedding party will proceed to the beautiful country home, Flower Acres, of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings, where a lovely reception will be given in their spacious gardens.

Wed in Gretna

Green Ceremony.

Walterboro, in South Carolina, looms upon the horizon as another Gretna Green, because Mr. and Mrs. Julian C. Heriot motored to this interesting spot last June to take their marriage vows. When the former Miss Harriet Henderson was visiting Mrs. T. B. Bacote, in Savannah, the latter being Mr. Heriot's sister, she went motoring with Mr. Heriot. And, as Walterboro was only a short distance over the Georgia line, it proved a magnet for these much-in-love young people.

It was as students on the campus at Oglethorpe University that they became acquainted, and their Gretna Green marriage on June 28, is the outcome of this college romance. Mrs. Heriot, a titian-haired beauty, is the twin sister of Miss Julian Henderson, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clifford Henderson, well-known residents of Decatur. Mr. and Mrs. Heriot are keeping house in a charming apartment in Savannah, where they will be attractive acquisitions to the younger married set.

Atlantans Will Sail For Europe July 28.

Embarking on the Isle de France for a European voyage, will be Mrs. James E. Hickey and her brother, James F. Alexander, who will sail from New York on July 28. They will spend several weeks motoring through picturesque England. At the completion of their motor trip, Mrs. Hickey will journey to the coast of England, to remain there while Mr. Alexander makes a ten-day stay in Paris.

Mrs. Hickey has crossed the Atlantic ocean many times to travel in Europe, but this will be Mr. Alexander's first glimpse of Europe, and his visit is certain to be filled with interesting phases. Upon their return to their native land, these prominent Atlantans will embark at Liverpool on the steamer Majestic, and will reach New York some time in September.

Mrs. Pawley Back From Shanghai To Visit Here

Listed among the important summer visitors in social Atlanta is Mrs. William D. Pawley, of Shanghai, China, and Miami Beach, Fla., who arrived for a few days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clifton Dobbs at their Sheridan drive residence. Accompanied by her adorable year-old daughter, Irene, Mrs. Pawley sailed from China aboard the President Hoover for America after a year spent in the fascinating far east, where her husband, Mr. Pawley, was prominently identified with aviation affairs.

Residing in a fashionable suburb of Shanghai on Columbia circle, the Pawleys maintained a hospitable residence where the cosmopolitan personnel of the ancient city foregathered to dine and tea with the charming chateaufort and her attractive consort. Mrs. Pawley proved one of the most attractive and sought-after members in the foreign colony, and was in great demand socially. As the former Miss Annie Hahr Dobbs, Mrs. Pawley has a host of friends in Atlanta, who are eager to welcome her upon her return to her native land. Upon leaving Atlanta she journeyed with Irene to Miami

Miss Wilson Will Be Bride Of Mr. Speights, of Decatur

MISS CORNELIA AMANDA WILSON.

Wide social interest centers today in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Cornelia Amanda Wilson to Russell Louis Speights, of Decatur. Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. Riley Wilson, and the mother was before her marriage, Miss Jennie Hutchins, daughter of James Williams Hutchins, of Atlanta, and the late Amanda Borders Hutchins. Her father is the son of the late Cornelius Riley Wilson, of Decatur, and Augustus Stephens Wilson, of Atlanta.

The bride-elect is a descendant of a long line of doctors and judges. On her maternal side she is descended from the Ryders and Reynolds families, of Georgia, and the Gantt and Simmons families, of South Carolina. On her paternal side the bride-elect is descended from the Ryders and Pratt families, of Alabama and Virginia.

Since coming to Atlanta for residence several years ago, Miss Wilson has been prominent in the younger social contingent. She is a graduate of Woodberry Hall, where she was prominent in social and scholastic activities. She is a member of the Phi Epsilon sorority and the Woodberry Hall, Miss Wilson was elected by the student body the most beautiful girl in the school. She attended Oglethorpe University and since then she has studied music.

Mr. Speights is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Blake Speights, of Decatur. On his maternal side he is descended from the Mueller and Amme families, of Charleston, S. C., and from the Whitlow and Wier families, of South Carolina and Georgia on his paternal side.

Mrs. Speights graduated from the Georgia School of Technology in 1930. He was elected to Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary commercial fraternity, a member of Seaboard and Blade, and a winner of the president's gold "T." In 1933 he became a certified public accountant in this state. Since graduating from Tech he has held a responsible position as accountant with the Swift and Company Fertilizer Works.

Briefly Told

A new woman's council has been organized by the women of the Erick Christian church at Alamo, Ga. Mrs. G. Bailey was elected president; Mrs. Frank Irwin, vice president, and Mrs. Cleon Brown, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Chester Martin and little daughter, Elsie, left Friday for a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Martin in Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Christie Entertains Today

Mrs. S. R. Christie Jr. entertains at an informal reception complimenting Miss Miriam Davis and her teacher, Mrs. Mabelle S. Wall, on Sunday afternoon after the piano recital by Mrs. Christie's studio at 121 Adams street, Decatur, at 4:30 o'clock. Misses Mary Taylor and Rebecca Moore, pupils of Mrs. Christie, will assist her in entertaining.

Miss Evelyn Jackson, Mesdames Armand Carroll and J. G. Addy will preside at the punch table, assisted by Misses Annette Davis, Dorothy Davis, Marguerite Taylor and Marie Barinowski.

Miriam Davis, Girls' High school freshman, recently tied with a senior for first place as pianist of the school. Her playing of Mozart's "Coronation" concerto with orchestra, at the recent piano recital by Mrs. Christie, was an outstanding achievement in student circles.

Studies Under Chicago Maestro

Miss Mozzelle Horton, The Constitution's gifted music critic, who left last week for Chicago, where she will study under Rudolph Ganz, of the Chicago Musical College. Mr. Ganz, a leading figure in the musical world, is a renowned concert pianist, composer, teacher, and interpreter of music. Miss Horton will take private lessons and will also enter his interpretation classes and teachers' teaching course. She is an artist pupil of Hugh Hodgson and one of his valued assistants. Upon her return in September she will resume her piano studies in the Wesley Memorial building and will resume her duties as assistant organist at St. Luke's church. Miss Horton is the only daughter of Mrs. W. J. Horton, of Senoia. Photo by Bascom Biggers.

Personals

Dr. and Mrs. Irving Rose left Saturday for Davenport, Iowa, where Dr. Rose will do research work and take a post graduate course at the Palmer School of Chiropractic.

Miss Rebecca Jones and Miss Anis Price are in Chicago where they are visiting the World's Fair. Before returning home Miss Jones will spend two weeks with Mrs. Ralph McDonald in Detroit, Mich., who is a former resident of Atlanta.

Miss Irene Gregory left Friday for a 10-day business trip to New York. Miss Gregory recently returned from a vacation trip which included Chicago, Ill., and Atlantic Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Hubert Merritt is visiting friends in Chicago and Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Carson Jr., of Topeka, Kan., are visiting their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Carson, at their home, 9 The Prado, in Ansley Park. Mrs. Carson is the former Miss Margaret Maize, daughter of Dr. D. M. J. Lorton Maize, of Kansas City, her father being the pastor of the Central Presbyterian church in Kansas City.

Miss Lillie May Robinson left yesterday for Savannah, from where she sailed last evening on the steamer City of St. Louis for New York, where she will spend two weeks at the Roosevelt hotel. En route home she will stop in Richmond, Va., for a few days with friends.

Mrs. Neal Spence left Wednesday for a 10-day stay in New York, sailing from Savannah on the City of Chattanooga.

Little Miss Carolyn Bonds is spending a week with Mrs. J. W. Stovall in Marietta.

Mrs. Newton Drake and Miss Mildred Drake, of Elberton, Ga., were visitors in the city this week.

Miss Graham Lambert leaves Sunday to spend two weeks at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Newman and J. B. Yeomans leave Sunday for a two-week outing at Daytona Beach, Florida.

Mrs. Leroy Mann, Miss Elsie Mann and Bob Mann, of Newnan, Ga., were visitors in the city this week.

Mrs. Cliff Smith, Miss Janice Smith and Robert Smith have returned from a visit in Savannah.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther S. Tatum announce the birth of a daughter, July 13 at Wesley Memorial hospital, who has been given the name of Barbara Joan.

Mr. and Mrs. James Davis Tillman III announce the birth of a son on July 12, who has been named Floyd Gaither.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Hart and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hubbard have returned from Dayton Beach, Fla.

Miss Mary Wyche, of Greenville, S. C., will arrive Monday to visit Miss Rebecca Abercrombie at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Abercrombie, 39 Avery drive, N. E. Misses Wyche and Abercrombie were roommates at Randolph-Macon College, Lynchburg, Va., during the last year. Miss Jean Hawke, of Chicago, China, another college mate of Misses Wyche and Abercrombie, is visiting Miss Abercrombie for the month of July.

Mrs. Virginia Sims has returned to Raleigh, N. C., after a month's visit with her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sims, of Angier avenue, N. E.

Mrs. Harry Hason, of Orlando, Fla., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Helen O'Brien Guile, at her home on Wyckoff road.

Misses Helen, Emily and Eleanor Owens, of Gray Court, S. C., are visiting Mrs. N. Mary Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. George and daughter, Thelma George, will leave Sunday for San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal. They will visit in Mexico, and return to Atlanta about the middle of August.

Mrs. Clare Winn Upchurch, Winn Upchurch, of New York, formerly of Atlanta, and Miss Cereva Cole, of Placerville, N. Cal., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Winn at their Morningside drive residence.

French Colony To Be Honored Today by Mr. and Mrs. Loidans

Scheduled among the important social events for today is the reception at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loidans will entertain this evening at 7 o'clock at their home on Fifteenth street in compliment to Monsieur Rene Hardre, president of the Institut Francaise, and Mrs. Hardre. The occasion will also celebrate France's national holiday, Bastille Day, which corresponds to America's July fourth, and was celebrated yesterday throughout France.

Invited to meet the honor guests are members of Atlanta's French-speaking colony, of which Mr. and Mrs. Loidans are prominent representatives, the former being French consul in Atlanta, and president of the Alliance Francaise.

During the evening a buffet supper will be served by Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. Hal Davidson and Mrs. George McKee assisting the hosts. An appropriate musical program will feature the occasion as will the decorations which will prevail throughout the home in the rooms where the guests will be received. The guest list will number 50.

Mr. and Mrs. Bellman Fete Trio of Visitors

Complimenting a trio of visitors, including Misses Marjorie Klinesmith and Kay Sellers, of New Orleans, and Clarke McMichael, of Garden City, N. Y., all the buffet supper given on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bellman at their residence on Habersham road. The affair is one of the series of entertainments honoring the attractive visitors during their stay in Atlanta.

Colorful garden flowers were arranged throughout the home with phlox, lemon lilies, zinnias and gladiolus placed in crystal bowls. The

Of interest to the hard of hearing, and there are untold thousands thus afflicted, is the attractive 20-page booklet, "Defeating Deafness," by Isabelle Berglan, distributed free by A. K. Hawkes company, 67 West Peachtree street, Atlanta. The booklet is a new person who will call or write. Quoting a well-known business executive, "I have been deafened practically all of my life and have now become worse, more so perhaps than any of you who read this. Whatever you may feel at this present moment about your affliction, be sure I have known that stage of it, for I have been through with it."

INDIAN "SWEETHEART DANCE"

SLIM, brown and straight, the Indian girls go down to the spring to fetch water. Toward them, beating the sun-baked western plains with rhythmic tread, come the young braves, magnificent in feathers. And then follows one of the most romantic of all dances—the famous Sweetheart Dance of the western plains Indians.

The young brave advances and retreats, bending forward and then bending backward, each time coming a little closer to the girl of his choice. She pretends that she does not see him, does not know what he is doing—but her sunny cheeks grow a little redder, her eyes sparkle a little more brightly—for she knows he is near!

Then the climax. The brave springs forward, sends his blanket up in a great, exultant sweep—and when it comes down it envelops the two of them, and they dance together beneath it. And when the girl accepts the blanket—she also accepts the suit of the brave who offers it!

Shall we Abolish the HONEYMOON?

On the contrary, says Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, the NRA might well take up the matter and, with the shorter week, make honeymoons longer

By Helen Welshimer

THE bride and the bridegroom had been living in the cabin by the river for nearly two weeks. The bride and the bridegroom had spoken to the grocery boy from the nearest town when he came with deliveries. Otherwise, each had given the other every utterance.

It had been fun at first. The bride and the bridegroom didn't want to talk to other people. They found life an exciting adventure to be shared together in privacy.

But gradually they had become bored. They had wished—and been ashamed of the wish—that someone, anyone, would interfere with their self-appointed solitude.

So they quarreled. They had to quarrel. There was a monotony which must be broken. They made up.

"If we had started our life together under normal conditions we wouldn't have quarreled," the bride said.

"Honeymoons are the bunk," her new husband agreed.

But the bride's sister married a little later and didn't have a honeymoon. From Saturday at noon until Monday morning was the extent of her special bridal festivities. She and her bridegroom quarreled in less than two weeks, too. The strain of carrying on their office routine, at the same time that they were setting up their home, was too much.

They made up.

"If we had had a little while all alone to grow accustomed to each other, this wouldn't have happened," the bride said.

"Honeymoons are a godsend," the bridegroom agreed.

THERE are two schools of thought on the subject as to whether or not honeymoons are advisable for newly-married people. Some psychologists and philosophers teach that honeymoons, like Santa Claus, should be abolished forever. Others insist that they bring a real beauty to life that lingers long enough to glorify a butcher's bill on a 37th wedding anniversary.

Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy at New York University, has instructed thousands of young people in rules of life and happiness during his long teaching career. He regrets the passage of the glorified beginning of marriage.

"The honeymoon of yore seems to have suffered an eclipse which darkens the sky of marriage," he says. "Newlyweds no longer head for Niagara to gaze at one of nature's marvels. No, for they must get back to work as soon as the wedding is over."

In brief, the economic set-up doesn't allow time out for anything. Not even for love. Sports editors, married at noon, must be at the ball park to cover the afternoon game. Physicians, whose weddings are arranged for 4 o'clock in the afternoon, often are scheduled for operations at 5. Stenographers usually report for duty at their offices a day or two following the ceremony.

Dr. Shaw believes that this relegating of the marriage ritual to a convenient place on a crowded program interferes with romance.

"THE old style honeymoon meant more than a wedding journey begun under a shower of rice or confetti, continued through the mist of the Falls and concluded under the roof of a cozy cottage," Dr. Shaw states. "The old honeymoon meant due courtship, an engagement of appropriate length and marriage in earnest, with domestic life which included children and excluded divorce. It was something Victorian."

"But the war, depression and repeal have changed all of this. The honeymoon does not rise in its fullness and flood the matrimonial sky with light. It is like the new moon which, as the Russian said, 'sets as it rises.'"

"That is the trouble with the modern honeymoon. It sets as it rises. The modern Romeos and Juliets have their respective jobs. They imagine that two together can live as cheaply as two apart."

"The old idea that two can live as cheaply as one has been condemned as bad arithmetic. This appears at once as soon as they set up housekeeping in a restaurant."

"But they can make a go of it with two pay envelopes and two meal tickets. So they marry. The wedding takes place on a Saturday and they must be back to work Monday. Hence the honeymoon is confined to one day.

"Cupid will not stand for such treatment. He wants the victims whose hearts he has pierced to have a whole honeymoon in which to recover. But of course brides and bridegrooms must eat, and this means more meal tickets. However, marriage means hearts as well as stomachs."

Those who contend that two people should have a honeymoon are divided in thought as to whether the time should be spent in some far seclusion—a mountain camp, a hunting lodge, an abandoned farmhouse by a bright blue lake—or in a hotel where telephones ring, friends drop in for tea, cellos and flutes become entangled with dance melodies, and confusion reigns.

There is a danger, they contend, that two people will begin the marital game in the wrong way unless the set-up is right. Those who favor privacy say that the bride and bridegroom do not want distractions, that they might as well stay at home if they are going to have them.

Those who favor life among people for the blissful period believe that exalted privacy promotes boredom, and two people who begin their married career in an environment on the order of the one in which they will remain most of the time, will have a better chance at happiness than those who plot a fairy tale for the first chapter.

ONE group of psychologists favors brief periods of unalloyed bliss. Even Heaven could grow monotonous, they argue, if one spent too much time sitting under palm trees, watching blue rivers, and counting stars.

Dr. Shaw believes that the introductory stage should prolong its special holiday.

"Marriages with abbreviated honeymoons are precarious undertakings. They are more uncertain than mining stocks. The purpose of the honeymoon is to have the newlyweds find out what it is all about."

"When the honeymoon is a thin, descending crescent in the marriage sky, the subsequent married life is threatened. No matter where it begins, it is likely to head toward Reno."

AS an argument to back up such belief, those who favor honeymoons report that the divorce market has been doing a livelier business since women have entered the economic world. Women no longer have much leisure to use in the promotion of the honeymoon stages of marriage.

Careers—even jobs—require lots of time and interest and attention. Marriage, considered as something old-fashioned which requires no special training, is neglected.

"Doubtless bride and bridegroom have careers, but marriage should be a career, too," Dr. Shaw asserts. "Business is business, but marriage is marriage, too."

"Why not have the old-style honeymoon? There is plenty of time for it, now that we have the new leisure."

"Why cannot the NRA take up the matter and, with the short week, provide for a long honeymoon?"

"The officials of NRA should look into this serious matter, for it is just as important to adjust man to wife as it is to adjust labor to capital. If a young man and a young woman are to embark upon the sea of matrimony instead of merely going rowing in Central Park, they must have time to get their bearings."

ONCE upon a time women were concerned primarily with the business of marriage. Wifehood and spinsterhood both had domestic backgrounds.

A woman kept house for her husband, her father, her brother's family, or for herself. But she kept house. She couldn't make a place for herself in a business realm.

She curled her hair, sewed ruffles on her dresses, learned to bake chocolate cakes and fluffy biscuits and asked her adorer—or her adored—to drop in for dinner. Then she arranged roses in a crystal bowl, lighted the candles, and said flowery words in a soft voice.

She usually won her point. The point, of course, was to have the young man whisper terms of endearment which could be construed—or misconstrued—into a proposal of marriage.

The girl was successful because marriage was her aim, and she was not thinking of the fact that she must be at her desk at 8:30 in the morning.

But now—Marriage has changed because women have a new conception of its importance—or unimportance. Dr. Shaw continues:

"The modern woman seems to be cheating herself out of her honeymoon. She is bound to keep thinking about the boss to whom she must return Monday morning, and she cannot think persistently about her husband."

"The modern woman deals herself another bad hand when she puts business side by side with matrimony. Boss and husband, like king and jack, should not be dealt in the same hand."

"It is hard to combine office and home, typewriter and frying pan. Married life cannot be arrived at successfully in a one-room apartment and a cafeteria."

THROUGH THESE PORTALS—

Rather old-fashioned architecturally, but many social aspirants would sacrifice almost anything to be admitted to Bailey's Beach, Newport, R.I. Known as "the golden sandpile," the beach is the Summer haunt of the patrician "old guard."

THIS is the second of a series of articles analyzing New York society as it exists today by an old-time reporter of the aristocracy, writing in a thoroughly modern manner, and of the very modern methods adopted to "crash" the sacred portals, no longer so sacred as they were in the days of the "400."

Her theme today is the diversified classifications of society with comment on the influence exerted by the Social Register, that little annual enrollment book in which is the goal of the ambitious socially-minded.

By MARY CRANE MELLISH

Copyright, 1934.

SOME people are born into society, others achieve it through perseverance, personality and pelf, and a few, like Col. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, have it thrust upon them.

What is it that constitutes "getting into society?" Is it the inclusion of one's name in the Social Register? Is it admission to that holy of holies, Bailey's Beach? Is it receiving invitations to dine at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harrison Williams or Mrs. Vincent Astor? Is it election to the Colony Club if one is an ambitious woman, or to the Racquet and Tennis, the Union or the New York Yacht Club if one is a male aspirant? Is it presentation at the Court of St. James's? Or, if one is a debutante, admission to the sacred precincts of the Junior League, the Junior Assemblies or the Autumn Ball at Tuxedo Park?

The correct answer is "Yes." But it must be borne in mind that acceptance by one of these society groups doesn't necessarily imply similar acceptance by all of them. Society as it exists today isn't an interlocking corporation; rather it is a series of zones whose borders touch and may even overlap, but which are in the last analysis independent. The question of social superiority is not involved. Ironically enough, too, an aspirant to social acceptance may wind up in a quite different division than the one originally aimed at.

FOR example, it's possible, by a little subtle wire-pulling, for an American girl to be presented at the Court of St. James's and thereby gain a certain amount of prestige in London. But such a presentation doesn't mean that Mrs. Vanderbilt is going to invite her to dinner or that she will immediately be asked to join the Junior League. Not all of the young blades at the Racquet Club are persona grata at the conservative Union League, nor is every woman in the Social Register eligible for the oh-so-exclusive, dowagerish Colony Club. Yet anyone who has accomplished any of these goals, and any one of a dozen more, is justified in saying that he or she is "in society." He—or she—is.

The nearest approach to a rule-of-thumb by which to judge the social position of a New Yorker is the Social Register. It is the nearest approach but it is not so much a yardstick as a long-range slide rule. Among its 27,000 odd names are plenty at which Mrs. Vanderbilt—any Mrs. Vanderbilt—might snort a derisive: "Mrs. Algernon Zilch? I never heard of her!"

The Social Register is society's common denominator. To those not born to the Register, it is the first goal, the first rung of the ladder. A few skip it on their way to the social heights; they are the "exceptions." The majority reach it and there their social distinction ends.

While inclusion in the Social Register does not assure one's social position, the converse is not quite so true. Almost everyone who has attained any of the other numerous social goals will be found in the little black book with the red lettering and the strange, old-fashioned typography. It is probable that every member of any of the city's more exclusive clubs is—or has been—in the Register. It is highly improbable that any girl who attends a Junior Assembly, or any beau she may ask to escort her, is non-Social Register. To this extent, at least, the Register can be taken as a guide to social standing.

First and foremost, the Social Register is a business enterprise, making money and paying taxes exactly as the corner grocery store or wine shop. And as an arbitrary organization it has no peer. Ever since its inception names have been added and dropped without any apparent logic. No one has been able to discover, and the Social Register Association steadfastly refuses to give any information, by what standards applicants are judged. About the only inkling of its code that has ever come to light followed the Stillman divorce case when James Stillman, former president of the National City Bank, asserted that young Guy Stillman was not his son. Mrs. Stillman got a divorce and the legitimacy of the baby was established. The Stillmans were forthwith dropped from the Register and when the Association was asked why it had taken that action testily replied that it was because of the "notoriety" that accompanied the case. It did not even wait for a court decision to be rendered. Nor has the former Mrs. Stillman, once Fifi Potter, been reinstated by the Register authorities since her marriage to Fowler McCormick, grandson of John D. Rockefeller and many years her junior. The marriage merely resulted in jerking Fowler out of the company of his peers.

CHARGES as lurid as those in the Stillman case once were raised against Cornelius Vanderbilt ("Sonny") Whitney by Evan Burrows Fontaine. She went to court and proclaimed that her son was Whitney's child. She sued "Sonny," charging breach of promise and lost the case. Did the Social Register Association drop the name of Harry Payne Whitney's playboy son? It did not. The Social Register had its inception in "The List," a little pamphlet published many years ago by a Mrs. Minton, a prominent New Yorker. This list was not based on wealth but was said to ganization and presides over its offices at 381 Fourth Avenue. There is nothing of the Park Avenue atmosphere about Social Register headquarters. Through a door bearing only the words, "Social Register Association," one enters a reception room that boasts not so much as a straight-backed chair. In the wood-and-glass partition opposite the door is an opening some two feet square, its lower edge forming a small blotter-covered counter. It is through this window (the ledge serves as a convenient arm rest for those too tall to talk through the opening without bending) that visitors are greeted.

Everything about the Association is shrouded in mystery. The employees are trained to say nothing, and very little of that. Nor does anything about the office indicate the Association's encompass all "the socially elect with a background of family." The late Louis Keller adopted this list and with it as a foundation in 1886 started the Social Register. A few years later Keller took his nephew, Charles Keller Beekman, into the organization and upon the older man's death Beekman became active head of the Social Register Association. He still remains in that position and, therefore, is in control of the admissions committee, which decides who shall be listed and who shall be dropped.

Bertha M. Eastmond, secretary to the late Louis Keller, acts as business manager of the organization. Through a door bearing only the words, "Social Register Association," one enters a reception room that boasts not so much as a straight-backed chair. In the wood-and-glass partition opposite the door is an opening some two feet square, its lower edge forming a small blotter-covered counter. It is through this window (the ledge serves as a convenient arm rest for those too tall to talk through the opening without bending) that visitors are greeted.

LIKE all other businesses, the Social Register has had its ups and downs. After the New York edition was launched, Keller and his associates branched out and established Registers in other cities. At the height of popularity (and that may be the same as saying at the height of the country's class-consciousness), there were eighteen registers. In 1927, seven of them were dropped. They were Providence, St. Paul and Minneapolis, combined; Seattle and Portland, combined; Southern California, including Los Angeles, Pasadena and other popular centers; Detroit, New Orleans and a southern register taking in the cities of Richmond, Charleston, Savannah and Atlanta. That left Registers for New York, Chicago, Boston, Buffalo, Baltimore, San Francisco, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia (including Wilmington), Washington and a combination volume covering Cleveland, Cincinnati and Dayton.

The seven Registers that were dropped died as a result of apathy on the part of the people whose names had been listed. In many cities these people showed no interest in that sort of a directory while in other centers, notably Detroit, there was a local directory (the "Social Secretary") that served the needs of the socially-minded.

Individual subscriptions to the Register range from $4 in some of the smaller cities to $7 for New York. The latter includes a Summer directory and the semi-annual supplements that report late changes in address, marriages and leaths. These supplements are uphemistically listed as the "Dilatory Domiciles." But what the Association likes is an order or the entire set, including the "Locator," which lists all names and indicates in which volume they will be found. An entire set, including the Locator, the Sumner edition and the Dilatory Domiciles, sells for $50.

It is, of course, impossible to determine how profitable the Social Register business has been, but one year taxes paid indicated net profits of almost $50,000. And this on an original investment of $5,000. It is presumed that everyone in the Register will buy a copy. A copy, with a bill, is sent to every family listed and they may either remit or return the book. In addition, hundreds of business houses, restaurants, hotels and stores buy either single volumes or complete sets. As a commercial directory the Register has become increasingly popular. Many businesses that wish to circularize an exclusive group find the Register a highly satisfactory and most inexpensive list.

The history of the Register is full of instances which show how little apparent reason is used in admitting new names and tossing out old ones. For example, Anna Case, the opera singer, whose humble origin is attested by the fact that her father was a blacksmith, was listed as soon as she married the dignified Clarence Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph system. Mackay, incidentally, was the son of a woman who once ran a boarding house in a mining camp. On the other hand, Mackay's daughter, Ellin, was dropped when she married Irving Berlin.

AND ANOTHER
Mrs. Harrison Williams, who represents the purely modern type of young patrician matron.

ONE TYPE OF MATRON

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, wife of Brigadier-General Vanderbilt, strolling on Fifth Avenue. She might be said to typify the more conservative sort of society woman.

Hope Williams, outstanding example of a successful actress emerging from Park Avenue, was dropped as soon as she made a name for herself on the stage, yet Ruth Draper, the "disease," has been retained. Mary Duncan, who gave up the stage when she married Stephen ("Laddie") Sanford, the hard-riding polo player, was admitted to the ranks of the chosen while Mrs. Phyllis Baker Potter, of impeccable family and background, was dropped when she married Fred Astaire, whose sister and former dancing partner, Adele, had married Lord Cavendish and thus won a place in Burke's Peerage.

AND so it goes, instance after instance. It cannot be said that the stage is responsible for one's being dropped, for Rosamond Pinchot (Mrs. William Gaston) is retained, as is Mary Hone. Mrs. Harriman Russell, closest friend of Mrs. Vincent Astor and a woman with a perfect social background, was dropped after she appeared in the Ziegfeld Follies but Bessie Morgan Belmont Timmerman, daughter of August Belmont, was unaffected by a stage career.

The first actress to marry into the Social Register was the late Edith Kingdon, who wed George J. Gould. Incidentally, when she died and Gould married Guinevere Sinclair, an actress with whom his name had been linked for several years before Edith's death, he was dropped from the ranks of the elite. But Guinevere had the last laugh for after Gould's death she married Viscount Dunsford and automatically was listed in the far more ponderous Burke's.

Other actresses who have married into the Register and remain there include Agnes Hamilton, who married Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the Metropolitan Opera, and Eleanor Robson, second wife of August Belmont. Mrs. Belmont has gained wide renown for her activities in behalf of civic improvements and various philanthropies; most recently for her work in charge of the women's fund-raising division of the Gibson Relief Committee. It has often been said that if she cared to be New York's social leader she need only crook her little finger. But Eleanor Belmont has no desire for such.

THERE is no doubt that excessive and unwanted publicity frequently results in a name being dropped from the Social Register but, like everything connected with the Association, this is not an inviolable rule. While "Sonny" Whitney survived his lawsuits, De Courcy Browne, one-time millionaire manganese importer, recently $30-a-week secretary of a Los Angeles CWA board, was dropped after he had instituted separation proceedings against his wife, Paula Lautier, a French war widow, and an alienation suit against Walter Bryant Pierce, wealthy and socially prominent broker. Gladys Deacon was in the Register but when she married the Duke of Marlborough, first husband of her best friend, Consuelo Vanderbilt, both the new Duchess and the Duke were dropped. On the other hand, Consuelo remained in the fold along with her new husband, Colonel Jacques Balsan.

Even his adoring auntie, Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell, one of the few intimates of the late Dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt, couldn't keep Jack de Ruyter in the Register. He was booted out when Freddie Rich named him as co-respondent in his successful suit for divorce from Peggy Rich.

Many other cases seem based on nothing but prejudice. Polly Lauder, $20,000,000 steel heiress, was dropped when she married Gene Tunney. Fifi Laimbeer (now Mrs. John R. Fell) was retained despite a career as musical comedy performer, Thomas Lamont is a pillar of the House of Morgan and the Social Register, but his son, Corliss, young radical with decidedly Red preferences, is no longer listed. However, Jimmy Cromwell, stepson of another Morgan partner, E. T. Stotesbury, is retained despite his book denouncing capitalism and rugged individualism. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., makes literary faces at the "400" but remains in their company. William Willock, descendant of one of New York's oldest families, married a chambermaid, Adelaide Ingebretsen, and found himself on the outside.

There are many examples of people being accepted socially without ever being in the Register. Adele Astaire, for example, was one of "Liz" Altemus bridesmaids when "Liz" married "Jock" Whitney. Fred Astaire was one of "Jock's" ushers! Jules Glaenger hob-nobs with the "best people" although his name does not appear in the sacred precincts. The same is true of the Jay O'Briens and—example of examples—Mrs. James P. Donahue, one of the Woolworth heiresses. Oddly enough, her sister, Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann, is in the Register.

Few of the old Russian nobility—the grand dukes and grand duchesses, the princes and princesses—who fled the wrath of the Bolsheviks, have found places in the Register yet many of them are society's darlings. On the other hand, Prince Alexis Mdivani, of the marrying Mdivanis, a Georgian princeling, made the Social Register. He married one of America's richest young women, Barbara Hutton, another Woolworth heiress.

TO GET into the Register, the first step is to request the Association to send an application blank. This request is usually made through someone already in the Register, but if the powers don't like the name of the applicant-to-be, the blank is never dispatched. If it is sent, the applicant must answer innumerable questions regarding his social, genealogical and business connections and return the blank to the Association along with the names of as many Social Register sponsors as he can get. Then the admissions committee goes into its huddle and renders its decision.

There are various dodges for getting into society, with or without the Register. A stable of show or race horses may turn the trick. Some parents gain recognition through their children. They enter them in an expensive school with the little de Peysters, hoping they will form friendships that will pull them into society. Often these parents prove excellent matchmakers.

Many people gain a toehold by first getting in with the cliques that make up the Sumner colonies at East Hampton or Southampton. But few are so stupid as to try this at Newport. Others, finding the doors on this side of the Atlantic closed, go abroad, spend a lot of money and gradually insinuate themselves (with luck) into the "international set" in London and Paris. Then they return home trusting that their triumphs abroad will open American doors. Charity, supporting fashionable philanthropies, is one of the oldest dodges. Likewise, there are very few of the newly-rich tycoons who are above exerting financial pressure in an attempt to win social position for their women folk.

Frequently a social secretary, of whom there are in New York a half dozen with surprising social influence, is hired to shepherd the sheep into the fold. For "social secretary" it is often possible to substitute "impoverished social light" who is glad to act as a sponsor and use his or her influence—for a price.

NEXT WEEK—Some of these systems will be explained in detail and the various groups that make up the body of society will be described and contrasted with the society of years ago. Glittering successes and tragic failures in attempts to get into society will be illustrated and the history of some of the most widely publicized families will be sketched.

Paris Presents

Summer Sees Shorter Skirts and Sun-Bonnets for Daytime

FASHIONABLE PARIS is going gay these warm Summer months with an outburst of frivolous and feminine fancies. To watch them fluttering around the gay city these mild evenings, one would never dream that there had ever been a depression. Gowns that arrest and hold the attention are the order of the day—and evening.

Not necessarily fussy, the newest frocks are distinguished more because of their daring simplicity of cut. Shorter skirts for daytime wear make Summer afternoon activities chic and comfortable.

Milady protects her complexion with a variety of smart large hats—and if she wishes to be really youthful, acquires for herself a flattering and colorful sun-bonnet. Broad-brimmed hats worn with Summer tailleurs are a special feature of the season.

A group of the more successful ensembles seen recently are sketched for you today.

A NEW SUIT ensemble consisted of a smart beige-yellow wool jacket with a broad coffee brown stripe woven in the material, worn with a black woolen dress. The dress has a novel belt of black calf wider on one side than the other. Worn with this is Schiaparelli's broad-brimmed hat that has a decided Spanish flavor.

FOR EVENING this cunning scarf of crisp white tulle (sketched above) will solve the problem. It has a rolled edge with printed rays of blue and folds in a triangle.

BELTS DO A LOT to a simple frock. Here is a stiff belt of dark blue box-calf with a second and narrower belt that overlaps the real one and runs under two brass loops.

Georgette Renal

Schiaparelli L. Lelong

FOR SUMMER EVENINGS, a charming new formal frock is of very thin spongy printed crepe. A scarf-end over one shoulder ties high to snugle under the ear in a brilliant burst of color. The back is very low and forms a wide V. Very simple and demure in line is the informal dinner or cocktail frock of thin dark brown crepe, with charming little ruffles turning unexpectedly backwards.

ITALIAN STRAW makes the delightful little bonnet at the right. The delicate veil is attached to the brim and ends under the chin in two overlapping points which fasten with snaps. It is trimmed with a nosegay of laquered forget-me-nots and poppies. Gloves go frivolous, too, and these of starched white pique with edgings of coarse lace, are especially fresh and crisp.

SIMPLE SILK FROCKS for morning or informal afternoon wear include this plain white design of Summer wash silk, dressed up with a clever scarf treatment in bright red foulard with white polka dots, and red enamel buttons. A stunning little suit of white alpaca is striped with black and gray and sports one of the stunning new black blouses. Note the bow at the scarf collar.

J. Suzanne Talbot

SUN-BONNET SUE shows two views of her latest bonnet. Made of striped white organdie, it is trimmed simply with a pleated white pique flower. The same idea carried out in black horsehair with satin cire chin-bow and flower is sensationally chic.

Georgette Renal

Also sketched above is one of Renal's most successful new dinner ensembles. Note its tailored jacket and wide revers. The material is a new soft crepe and the effect of the two greys is stunning with a sun-tan. The gown is sleeveless, cut high in front and with a very low narrow back that is really just a slash reaching to the belt.

"The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures"

From "Icones Biblicae," Swiss Etcher Matthew Merian's Chronological Story of the Bible, Published in 1625, in Germany

No. 70—"Eli Hears That the Philistines Have Captured the Ark of God, and Dies."—The two books of Samuel, called the Books of the Kings in the Biblical translations used by the Roman Catholic church, take the name applied to them in the King James version of the Bible, not because Samuel was the author, but because that prophet is the most prominent figure in the opening portion. Samuel was the son of Elkanah, a Levite, and his wife, Hannah, and was born after his mother had prayed for a son, so from his birth he was consecrated to the Lord. The sons of Eli, the priest, transgressed against the Lord, but Samuel ministered before God from his childhood. And God chose Samuel to be a prophet of the Lord and foretold the destruction of Eli's house. Now the Philistines made war against Israel, defeating them at Ebenezer. The elders of Israel decided to fetch the ark of the Lord against the Philistines. "And the Philistines fought, and Israel was smitten, and they died every man into his tent; and there was a very great slaughter for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen. And the ark of God was taken and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain." I Samuel, iv, 10-11. A messenger ran to take the news to Eli, the high priest. "Now Eli was ninety and eight years old; and his eyes were dim, that he could not see. And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army and I fled today out of the army. And he said, what is there done, my son? And the messenger answered and said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of God is taken. And it came to pass, when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat backward by the side of the gate, and his neck brake, and he died; for he was an old man, and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years." I Samuel iv, 15-18.

No. 71—"Dagon Struck Down and Cut to Pieces."—And the Philistines took the ark of God, and brought it from Eben-ezer unto Ashdod. When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the Lord. And they took Dagon, and set him in his place again. And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the Lord; and the head of Dagon and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold; only the stump of Dagon was left to him. Therefore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that came into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day." I Samuel v, 1-5. When the Philistines saw that Dagon, their idol-god, had been struck down, they took counsel among themselves concerning the ark of the God of Israel. By the advice of the lords of the Philistines it was carried unto Gath, and as soon as the ark of the Lord was moved, the hand of God was against the city. So the men of Gath sent the ark of God to Ekron, and when the ark came to Ekron, the Ekronites protested that they feared for their lives. So the Ekronites sent to the Philistines, begging them to remove the ark of God, and to send it back to Israel, for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city. The ark of God may be seen in the right center of the picture, with the image of the Philistine god, Dagon, cut to pieces before it.

No. 72—"The Philistines Send Back the Ark of the Lord."—After seven months the Philistines took counsel how to send back the ark of the Lord, consulting with their priests and diviners. And the wise men among the Philistines gave their decision. "Now therefore make a new cart, and take two milch kine, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them; and take the ark of the Lord, and lay it upon the cart; and put the jewels of gold, which ye return Him for a trespass offering, in a coffer by the side thereof; and send it away, that it may go." I Samuel, vi, 7-8. The lords of the Philistines followed the car to the border of Beth-shemesh where the people were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley. The Levites rejoiced to see the ark and offered sacrifices unto the Lord while the five Philistines returned to Ekron. "And He smote the men of Beth-shemesh, because they had looked into the ark of the Lord, even He smote of the people fifty thousand and threescore and ten men; and the people lamented, because the Lord had smitten many of the people with a great slaughter. And the men of Beth-shemesh said, Who is able to stand before this holy Lord God? and to whom shall He go up from us? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the Lord; come ye down, and fetch it up to you." I Samuel, vi, 19-21.

:-: Culbertson on Contract :-:

CONCEALED STRENGTH

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

IT IS a sound general principle of bidding that a player should give his partner sufficient information to encourage him to continue until the proper contract has been reached, but should conceal the distribution of his hand, as far as possible, from his opponents. It is equally true that in the play a hand, wherever the Declarer can do so without injury to his contract, he should seek to mislead the opponents as to the location of high cards in order to gain what is usually an absolute necessity in fulfilling a notrump contract—control of the time needed to establish low-card tricks.

The hand below is an example of a very fine deceptive play by Carl S. Uhrig, of Pittsfield, Mass., in which he concealed strength in the opponents' suit and thus fulfilled an over-ambitious contract.

South, dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

♥ K 9 7 6 5 4
♣ K Q 9 8
♠ N ♠ J 10
♥ A 8 ♠ Q J 10
♦ A 6 5 4 ♠ 10 9 7 3
♣ 10 9 ♠ 7 6 5 4

The bidding:
South West North East
1♣ Dbl. Pass 10
2♣ 2♦ 2♥ Pass
3NT Pass 3♠ Pass
3NT Dbl. Pass Pass
Pass

Of course, the hand should not be played in three notrump, particularly in view of North's pass after South's opening bid, but when South had reached that contract he decided to stand or fall by it.

West's opening lead was the diamond five, on which East played the nine, and South discarded the opportunity to win with the jack and promptly played the king. He was anxious that East be marked in West's mind with the jack of diamonds in order to encourage another diamond lead before the ace of spades was removed from his hand. To trick 2 he led a small heart, as West, by the double, was probably marked with the ace. West could see no reason for refusing to win the trick, and returned another diamond, positive that East held the jack. South then ran off five club tricks, the king of hearts and the ace of spades for game, and thus, by permitting his adversaries to draw an incorrect inference, fulfilled a contract which was decidedly over-ambitious.

Opportunities for such play occur quite frequently. They are, however, infrequently taken advantage of. It is certain that often, by making one suit appear much weaker than it really is, you can inveigle the defending players, at best groping in the dark, to continue their attack against your strongest defensive line, so that by the time they have found the weak link in your armor, they have sacrificed the most priceless of assets in hands played at notrump—namely, the factor of time.

SIDNEY RUSINOW FAVORS LEAD OF SECOND CARD IN SEQUENCE.

Mr. Sidney Rusinow, a member of the Vanderbilt-championship team-of-four, recently came out in advocacy of abandoning the time honored top of a sequence lead in favor of leading the second card in the sequence. For instance, holding king-queen-jack, Mr. Rusinow believes that the best results will usually be attained by leading the queen. Of course, if this convention is used, explanation must be made to opponents.

In connection with this type of play, Mr. Rusinow now recommends the following variation:

When holding king-queen blank of a suit, on lead against a suit contract, lead the king instead of the queen (just as when holding ace-king blank, you lead the ace). If your partner holds the ace, or sees the ace in dummy, or sees Declarer's ace win the first trick, he can appreciate the situation immediately. The following example will illustrate the point:

♠ K Q 5
♥ Q 9
♦ K Q J 7 8
♣ J 8 4
♠ A 6 5 4
♥ A 8 6 5 4
♦ A 7 6 5 3
♣ A J 10 9 7 4
♠ A K 7
♥ 10
♦ 10 9 8
♣ 10 9 8

On lead against a four-spade contract West opens the club king and continues the queen. East overtakes the queen and returns a third round, which West ruffs. This is the only defense which will defeat the contract.

Other interesting situations of a similar type will arise and can be similarly handled.

The Vinegar of Today.

Vinegar has played an important part in man's diet since ancient times. It is mentioned in the writings of the Hebrew prophets and was used by the Greek physician, Hippocrates, who was known as the "Father of Medicine."
However, it is as a condiment and appetizer that vinegar is best known. When used as a seasoning it aids in the free flow of saliva and gastric juices, and in this manner renders valuable assistance in digestion. In addition to the use of vinegar in the home, on salads and vegetables, it has a wide use in home pickling and preserving... and in the commercial manufacture of mayonnaise, prepared mustard, and other forms of relish.
There are many kinds and qualities of vinegar on the market today, but White House Pure Apple Cider Vinegar is accepted as the standard among housewives who expect rich, sparkling vinegar of delicious flavor and delicate smooth in texture, wholesome and economical... only the purest and best bears the White House brand. 2 tablespoons Ballard's Obelisk
3 cups boiled Corn Rice
Wipe lamb with a clean, damp cloth. Cut into medium-size pieces and remove fat. Melt Clix Ideal Shortening in fry pan, add lamb and cook until a delicate brown. Cover with boiling water. Add Corn Rice, pepper and curry powder mixed with a little cold water. Cover and simmer for about 2 1/2 hours, or until lamb is tender. Make a smooth paste of the Ballard's Obelisk and water and add enough to thicken the liquid. Mound hot Corn Rice in center of a hot platter, and pour the curried lamb around it.

CLIX CHEESE NUT TID-BITS
1/4 cup Ballard's Obelisk Flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 lb. Clix Ideal Shortening
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup grated orange
1/2 cup pecans (chopped)
Grate cheese and cream with Clix sugar and Carey's Salt. Grate orange and incorporate with fingers work in Ballard's Obelisk Flour. Roll 1/3 inch thick and sprinkle with the chopped pecans. Run rolling pin over dough to make even edges. Next, combine with Nonpareil Confetti and roll again. Chill in Ice Refrigerator for one hour. Cut out with a dough cutter. Bake slowly with low flame.

ARISTOCRAT SPINACH SUPREME
Heat 1 cup Aristocrat Milk in double boiler, add 2 cups grated cheese, salt, pepper, Clix Meat-Pop, and stir until cheese is melted. Thoroughly drain 1 large can spinach, add to it Aristocrat Milk and the cheese. Mix well, place in baking dish and cover with Merita Bread crumbs and 3 slices bacon cut in pieces. Bake 30 min. in moderate Magic Chef oven.

LOVELY MACARONI CREAM PIE
Prepare according to directions, package Lovely Butterscotch Pudding. When cool add 12 pulverized macaroni. Pour into previously baked pie crust. Cover with red currant jelly, 2 egg whites beaten stiff, and sweetened Brown Magic Chef oven. Chill in Ice Refrigerator and serve.

SAUER'S SHERRY DRESSING
1/2 cup Carey's Sauer's Sherry Flavor
1/2 cup Duke's Mayonnaise
1/2 cup Aristocrat Whipped Cream
1/2 teaspoon Sauer's Iodized Salt
Stir the Sauer's Sherry Flavor into the Duke's Mayonnaise, then fold in the stiffly whipped Aristocrat Cream and the salt. Serve very cold with any fruit salad.

BROOKFIELD BUTTER COOKIES
1/4 lb. Swift's Brookfield Butter
1 lb. brown sugar
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
Enough Ballard's Obelisk Flour to make dough roll well. Mix Brookfield Butter and sugar; add beaten eggs. Roll thin. Bake in quick Magic Chef oven.

CAREY'S TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL
1/2 teaspoon Carey's Iodized Salt
1/2 cup tomato juice
1 tablespoon ketchup
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Grated fine and juice 1 lemon
Dash Mexi-Pep
Combine ingredients in order given, mixing thoroughly. Chill in ice box until very cold. Shake well in tightly covered container and serve at once. Serves 8.

Many New Uses for Salt.

In the past few years Medical Research Laboratories have discovered many new uses for salt as a medicine. The newer discoveries along with some of the older ones will appear on this page from time to time so that you may take advantage of the relief they offer.
Great care is taken by the medical profession to impress upon the buyers of medicine that purity is an absolute essential.
Remember when you are using salt as a medicine that only the purest salt obtainable should be used. Carey's Iodized Salt has the highest purity possible. For your protection use this salt exclusively.
Rice should be cooked in rapidly boiling water, not that it cooks more quickly, but the action of the water separates the particles in a tightly covered container and stand apart.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOME-MAKERS

Garnishes
Edible garnishes are always best. Perhaps the simplest means of garnishing is a sprig of parsley on meats or a nice slice of lemon on fish.
When Making Jelly.
When the jelly is ready to pour into glasses, pour the glasses in a pan of hot water to prevent their cracking. The pan should be shallow and the water about two inches deep.
Soup Too Salty.
Grate a raw potato and cook it with the soup a few minutes longer. The potato will absorb the salt.

General Diet for Increasing Weight

Eat larger amounts of food than you are accustomed to. If this seems difficult it is often better to increase the number of meals to four or five instead of three. Let the extra meals consist of crackers and Aristocrat Milk, cocoa made with Aristocrat Milk, chocolate egg shake, etc., and fit one in between breakfast and lunch or during the afternoon or before retiring.

Use at least a quart of Aristocrat Milk a day.
Plenty of Aristocrat Cream
Plenty of Brookfield Butter.
Fruit, especially dates, figs, bananas and alligator pears.
Johnston's Peanut Butter
Perkwest—100% Whole Wheat.
Vegetables, especially potatoes, carrots, beets, corn, sweet potatoes and greens.
Cornstarch
Cream Soups
Aristocrat cream sauce on vegetables.
Aristocrat Ice Creams.
Sweets in the form of pure candy, Georgia Boy Syrup, Merita Cakes, Lovely Desserts, etc.
All meats in moderation.
All fish; Daufuski Oysters.
Olive oil, salads of all kinds with Duke's Mayonnaise.

Do You Have a Dry, Parched Skin?

If your skin is lacking in natural oils and moisture, give it a thorough cleansing each night with Dixie Deb Cold Cream. This pure penetrating emollient is just what your skin needs to stimulate the oil glands and restore natural beauty. Dixie Deb is economical, too. You can afford regular treatments.

Inexpensive Food Value.

Perkwest, the healthful, vitamin breakfast, is an inexpensive cereal when compared with other cereals from the standpoint of its food value. Regular servings of Perkwest will pay large dividends in bodily well-being.

A Modern Cleanser for Modern Kitchens

The woman who is proud of her colored porcelain stove, her gleaming sink and refrigerator, her shining aluminum kettles and chromium kitchen fixtures, should not endanger their beauty with old-fashioned, harsh, scratchy scrubbing powders.

She needs the modern, creamy cleanser... Skidoo. A creamy paste of rich coconut oil and grittyless powder that changes clinging grease and grime to tiny globules which easily wash away. Can't dim polished finishes—can't reddens or toughen hands—yet cleans five times faster because of its finer ingredients that require no hard scrubbing. Keep a can of Skidoo handy.

Bring Your Kitchen Up to Date With a Magic Chef.

Your ten-year-old gas range is probably still doing very well the job for which it was designed. And you may know of many 10-year-old automobiles that are still faithfully providing transportation. But the gas range of today... like the automobile of today... is designed to give so much more than the mere essentials of cooking and keep your kitchen cool... just the degree needed... and many other "Magic" features combine to make Magic Chef the stove of today!

See the beautiful Magic Chef models at your Gas Company!

Be Doubly Sure.

You get the best! K.C. Baking Powder is Double Acting and Double Tested. Try it in your favorite recipe—you'll find it better, purer, and more efficient.

Yes, Indeed—Choice Soft Wheat Makes a Difference.

To make breads and biscuits whiter and more tender, bake them with Ballard's Obelisk Flour. It will improve the flavor and texture of cakes, too. It will make your pastries flakier! For Ballard's Obelisk Flour is milled from the very finest grades of choice, selected soft wheat. It is this superior grain-ingredient that improves your baking.
In addition, Ballard's Obelisk Flour requires less shortening, less kneading, and keeps bakings fresh longer.
Ask for Ballard's Obelisk by name—Grocers everywhere carry it.

"Pep" the Appetite

Have a bottle of Mexi-Pep handy for every meal—just a dash is all you need to "pep" up the lazy appetite. At your nearest Grocer's!

Dogs Prefer "Doggie Dinner."

Dogs can't talk, but your dog will surely let you know how happy he is when Doggie Dinner is placed under his nose. He knows a balanced ration when he smells it. Keep this fine beef product on hand—at all good Grocer's!

Have You Seen Them?

Prove Its Merit Yourself.

After all, no matter how highly we may speak of Clix... the ideal Shortening... no matter how many authorities may testify to its goodness, there may yet remain in your mind some question with reference to its superiority over other shortenings.
To remove all doubt, if any there be on this score, all we ask is that you yourself try Clix in your own baking and cooking. Use it for your breads, cakes, pie crusts, icings, your cookies, your doughnuts. Try it, indeed, for every purpose for which a shortening is required, because that is the one way you can prove to yourself beyond all doubt that Clix measures up in every respect to the highest claims for it.
Call for Clix by name—at all good Grocers.

Give the Kids a Party.

And serve their favorite refreshment... Ice Cream. Only be sure it's Aristocrat... the purest and best. Get it in the "party" colors—at your nearest dealer's.

Hospitality Demands Clean, Fresh Ice and Plenty of It.

An added joy in being host is found in having on hand at all times plenty of clean, crystal pure ice for every purpose.
Salads and fruits are more tempting and tasty garnished with sparkling clean ice.
Especially in summer time, water, tea and other drinks taste so much better when chilled with real fresh ice—and not "stale" ice which has picked up food flavors and gases in the process of freezing.
An approved ice refrigerator will do more than keep your foods in a state of perfection that cannot be equaled in any other form of refrigeration. It will supply you with an abundant supply of crystal clear, pure, taste free ice. You will enjoy the contrast from using ice that gives that off-flavor taste for your hot weather drinks.

Delicious Flavor.

A crisp, brown waffle is fine, but do you know what it takes to add delicious flavor? Georgia Boy Syrup is the answer. There's a store in your neighborhood that has it. You'll say it's the best syrup you ever ate!

It Never Fails!

Pour the cream off your Aristocrat Milk and Whip It! Maybe that sounds incredible if you are not familiar with the super-richness of Aristocrat... but this cream will whip every time. And the milk will still be sufficiently rich for drinking and cooking purposes.

The Better Rice.

Rice is good and wholesome—think of the Orientals—they practically live on rice... but, as in all things, there are grades in rice—demand Cornet Rice for purity and fine quality.

HELLO, JOHN - WHAT HAS HAPPENED TODAY? YOU LOOK AS IF YOU HAVE GOOD NEWS.

I HAVE - YOU START TOMORROW GETTING READY FOR THAT VACATION TRIP - WE WON'T HAVE TO GIVE IT UP AFTER ALL.

THAT WOULD BE GOOD NEWS, JOHN. BUT YOU OUGHT NOT TO BE FOOLING ME - YOU KNOW AFTER ALL THE EXPENSE OF MY ILLNESS, WE JUST CAN'T GO, WE ARE IN SUCH A STRAIN.

YES WE CAN - THE EMERGENCY IN THIS FAMILY'S FINANCES NO LONGER EXISTS!

BUT HOW CAN THAT BE?

BECAUSE I GOT A LOAN FROM THE FULTON LOAN SERVICE, AND HAVE TAKEN CARE OF EVERYTHING WITHOUT HAVING TO TOUCH OUR VACATION FUND. EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS WILL TAKE CARE OF THE LOAN.

CASH FOR QUICK LOANS TO INDIVIDUALS -

You will appreciate the quick action of Fulton Loan Service, Inc.

We lend to people of Atlanta and nearby towns, on automobiles, household goods, diamonds, etc., or on endorsements. Low rates, convenient repayment terms. All transactions private and confidential.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

INTO THE RAGING SEA

WHEN TARZAN TRIED VAINLY TO BREAK HIS CHAINS, THE MASTER OF THE GALLEY-SLAVES LAID THE LASH STRONGLY ON HIS BACK.

AGAIN THE MAIDEN'S CRY REACHED THE APE-MAN'S EARS AS THE SAILORS RUSHED TO THROW HER OVERBOARD, IN THE BELIEF THAT SHE HARBORED AN EVIL SPIRIT.

THEN THE ARAB SLAVE MERCHANT, SEEKING TO PROTECT HIS PRECIOUS MERCHANDISE, FIRED INTO THE ASSAILANTS. ONE FELL; THE OTHERS SLUNK AWAY.

LATER TARZAN WAS BROUGHT ON DECK TO REST, FOR THE SLAVE DEALER DESIRED TO PRESERVE THE STRENGTH OF HIS MIGHTIEST OARSMAN.

THE APE-MAN WAS ASTONISHED TO SEE THAT THE MYSTERIOUS GIRL WAS YET ALIVE. AGAIN A HOPE AROSE THAT HE MIGHT SAVE HER AND HIMSELF FROM SLAVERY.

AN ELDER AMONG THEM SPOKE: "IT IS SUCH A STORM AS I HAVE NEVER SEEN, YONDER CLOUDS ARE THE CHARIOTS OF DEATH!"

VIOLENT GUSTS OF WIND, HERALDS OF THE COMING GALE, STRUCK THE SHIP AND HEELED HER OVER, AND WAVES RAN HIGH.

THE SAILORS WERE DETERMINED NOW TO APPEASE THE WRATH OF THE STORM BY HURLING THE MAIDEN INTO THE SEA AS A SACRIFICE!

WHEN THEY RUSHED UPON HER, THE ARAB CAPTAIN FIRED UPON THEM AGAIN, BUT THEY WOULD NOT HALT.

THEN MIGHTY TARZAN BATTLED THE FANATIC MOB TO SAVE HER BUT HE WAS OVERPOWERED BY FORCE OF NUMBERS.

PLEADING FOR MERCY, THE HAPLESS MAIDEN WAS SEIZED, AND FLUNG INTO THE RAGING WATERS!
